Curtain Falls Upon Naval Parley With Signing of Treaty

Historic Spectacle at St. James' Palace When Conference Comes to Close With Formal Adherence to Pact by Delegates of Powers—Three-Power Treaty Now Ready for Ratification

M. Briand Hopes Soon For Settlement With Italy

(Associated Press)

LONDON, April 22.—Signed and sealed by twenty-seven envoys of the five great sea powers, the London Naval Treaty of 1930 rests in the archives of the British Foreign Office. With that the work of the delegates who have labored here for three long months was over. The signing of the treaty was enacted under mellow sunshine which streamed through the four high windows of Queen Anne's drawing-room of old St. James Palace. English springtime had replaced the fogs of January, prevailing when the conference opened, and outside the palace flowers bloomed and birds sang.

CEREMONY OF SIGNING

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. the closing plenary session required nearly three hours for addresses from chief delegates. The actual signing took less than fifteen minutes.

The moment of historic significance in the disarmament movement was quietly announced by Prime Minister MacDonald, the chairman, who stood in front of the great red chair at the centre of the conference table and said "we have now reached the moment for signing the treaty."

United States Secretary Stimson as head of the American delegation, first, as signing was in alphabetical order, signed the document.

Mr. Aristide Briand, of France, followed the Americans, and as treaty signing is no new adventure to him he grasped the stout barrel of the official fountain pen and signed quickly. The other envoys followed and the completed signatures filled three and one-half pages.

When the last Japanese delegate had inscribed his name with painstaking care there came a human touch which relieved the proceedings of the stiff formality of prepared addresses. M. Briand, handling the

Membership Roll Of Good Templar Order Decreases

(Canadian Press Cable)

LONDON, April 22.—A fairly substantial loss of membership was reported today at the convention of the Good Templars, one of the oldest temperance societies. The establishment of the soda fountain, American style, aboard ships of the Royal Navy, however, was hailed as "a new era in naval administration."

The chief templar said it would be foolish to deny the loss in membership was deplorable, but there was no misapprehension concerning the power of the brewer, with all his millions and madness for more, who was regardless of the suffering inflicted on every hand. Appeals to reason and humanity failed if they meant an appeal to the brewer to loosen the chains binding his victims.

ELECT BANK HEADS

BASEL, Switzerland, April 22.—Mr. Gates W. McGarrah, of New York, widely known financier, today was elected president of the Bank for International Settlements.

M. Pierre Qeusnay, French financial expert and a member of the French delegation to the Hague Conference, was elected general manager.

TWO DEAD IN PLANE CRASH ON PRAIRIES

PLANE IS EQUIPPED FOR AERIAL SURVEY

(Canadian Press)

REGINA, Sask., April 22.—Flying Officer H. W. Carew, of Vernon, B.C., and Sergeant A. Richards, of Winnipeg, members of the Royal Canadian Air Force stationed at Winnipeg, crashed to their deaths here about 10:15 a.m. today, when the motor of their Fairchild monoplane stalled as they were taking off from the northeast corner of the Regina municipal air field. They were killed instantly.

TERRIBLE CRASH

The two flyers had remained in Regina overnight and were on their way to Saskatoon. Observers noted that the plane took an extraordinarily long run over the field before leaving the ground. It suddenly zoomed up to a height of about 400 feet when the motor failed and it dropped flatly to a 300-foot level. The flyers then attempted to make a felt turn and the huge plane dropped like a plummet, nose down. It hit the ground with a terrible crash. Digging into the soft earth almost two feet and then springing back about six feet to rest, a mass of wreckage. Both flyers were pinned in the cabin of the craft.

Aviators of local flying organizations who witnessed the accident laid the cause to the recklessness on the part of the occupants of the army machine. They declared that

AUSTRALIA MAY GET NATIVE SON

Announcement Is Made That Australian Has Been Recommended as Governor-General

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 22.—An Australian may become the next Governor-General of Australia, succeeding Lord Stonehaven, whose term is expiring. It was authoritatively learned today that Sir Isaac Isaacs, Chief Justice of the High Court, has been recommended to succeed Lord Stonehaven. If the appointment is carried out Sir Isaac would be the first Australian to hold the post.

Rt. Hon. Sir Isaac Alfred Isaacs, senior Justice of the High Court of Australia, is seventy-four years of age. He was born in Melbourne. Before his elevation to the bench he was prominent in Commonwealth and state politics.

Empire Trade Will Be Chief Issue of Election Campaign

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, April 22.—Empire trade is getting into the by-election campaign in West Fulham, where Dr. G. E. Spero, Labor member elected last year with a majority of 2,211, has resigned. The by-election is also the first in a London constituency since the Labor Government came into power, and it is the first by-election since the budget, when Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden declared for the adherence of his party to free trade principles and for the removal as soon as possible of protective duties.

Sir Cyril Cobb, the Conservative candidate, was the member of Parliament for the division from 1928 until his defeat by Dr. Spero last year. He is in favor of safeguarding of home industries from unfair foreign competition, and for the fullest possible development of Empire trade.

TO PRESERVE MARKET

"The necessity for imposing taxes on foreign foodstuffs may arise in order to preserve a sheltered market for Empire produce as against the competition of foreign imports, and to secure the entrance into the Dominion and foreign markets of our manufactured goods," he says.

"If this necessity arises, careful consideration should be given to the suggestion that before such a bargain is made the subject of parliamentary action, it should be definitely and specifically to people in this country for their decision," Sir Cyril states. "I should support the summoning of an Imperial conference at the earliest moment for the purpose of discussing this problem in all its aspects."

Lord Beaverbrook, who has lately been manifesting distinct dissatisfaction with Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin's former pledge of a referendum of food taxes, or at any rate with the Conservative interpretation of it, is expected to speak on behalf of the Conservative candidate tomorrow.

DEFENDS BUDGET

Mr. J. W. Banfield, the Labor candidate, defends the budget as placing a burden on the shoulders of those best able to bear it, through the income tax revisions. He declared the present Government has already sanctioned schemes for developing national and Empire resources to a value of more than £80,000,000 ($400,000,000).

No Liberal candidate has been chosen yet, but there is a Communist candidate, Mr. J. MacLaughlan.

The vote in 1928 was: Spero, Labor, 16,190; Cobb, Conservative, 13,979; G. A. Gale, Liberal, 5,920.

EMPIRE UNITY TO BE IDEAL OF CANADIANS

Sir Robert Borden Says It Is Necessary, Not Only for Dominion, but World's Peace

YPRES LED WAY TO SOMETHING GREATER

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, April 22. — Solemnly pledging "the proud memory of the first thirty thousand," Sir Robert L. Borden, former Prime Minister of Canada, tonight exhorted an Ottawa audience here to recall the sacrifices of Canada's soldiers and to pay tribute to what these sacrifices had accomplished for this country. The occasion was the annual gathering of the Red Chevron Club, survivors of the old First Canadian Contingent, who celebrated the Second Battle of Ypres in customary fashion this evening.

SELF-SACRIFICING VALOR

It was remembered that fifteen years had passed since April 22, 1915, when the Canadian division filled the breach at Ypres during a gas attack, and by their self-sacrificing valor obstructed the onward sweep of the Germans to the channel ports.

"Within a period that is but a moment in the lifetime of a nation,

Clean Sweep at Montreal Seen In New Choices

MONTREAL, Que., April 22.—A complete victory for Mayor Camillien Houde was seen today in the first meeting of the Montreal Council since the municipal elections of April 7. The executive committee, the cabinet of the city council, was elected, and will consist of Aldermen Bray (chairman), Savignac, Mathieu, Weldon and Fortin. All five of the new members of the executive committee were Houde candidates in the elections. The retiring committee was headed by Alderman A. A. Desroches, between whom and Mayor Houde there was a lively antagonism. The mayoralty slate was elected today by 29 votes to 9.

PREMIER HAS RETURNED TO DUTIES HERE

Hon. S. F. Tolmie Deals With Lumber Export and Industrial Matters During Tour

GREATER CONFIDENCE SHOWN IN PROVINCE

Inquiries With Regard to Pacific Great Eastern Ry. Come From New Sources

WHILE IN Ottawa Premier Tolmie was instrumental in getting results for British Columbia which means much to the industries of this province. Through his mediation with the heads of the railway companies, a concession much sought after by the shippers of various classes of vegetables to the prairies have been granted, being a reduction in the minimum weight that may be shipped as a carload lot.

There was formerly a minimum weight for a carload lot of 24,000 pounds. This was raised to 30,000 pounds with the result that the shippers of rhubarb and vegetables of various kinds were penalized considerably. It was found that 30,000 pounds was more than could be shipped without loss from spoiling of these commodities.

A move in favor of reducing this figure to the old weight of 24,000 pounds was started, so that the shippers might not have to pay on the higher tonnage when a smaller amount was shipped. This application was not attended with success, but during the presence of the Premier in the East he took the matter up with the railway heads, with the result that it conceded that the minimum weight for a car should be reduced to 26,000 instead of 30,000, which was agreeable to the shipping producers.

LUMBER EXPORTS

Dr. Tolmie was also in a position to present the case of the lumber interests before those in authority at Ottawa during his visit, with the result that the situation now looks quite bright for the carrying into effect of working arrangements with both New Zealand and Australia which will be to the advantage of the lumber interests on this Coast.

While the Premier was in Ottawa the members of the commission which went to Australia in the interests of the lumber trade were in the East pressing upon the Government the necessity of assisting in

Bandits of Mexico Are Still Busy

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Dr. George Purnell, third American victim of Mexican kidnapping bandits in a period of two weeks, was held captive tonight in a rough and wild country northwest of Guadalajara. Federal troops were scouring the country in pursuit of the kidnappers. Only this morning the American Embassy received word that Dr. Purnell, a dentist, who has lived for nearly thirty-five years in Mexico, had been seized near Guadalajara on Sunday

It was reported from that city this afternoon that the kidnappers were demanding heavy ransom. Mr. Raleigh Gibson, American Consul, was in the field all day trying to get information about Dr. Purnell and to arrange for his release, but could not be reached late today.

Dr. Purnell is sixty-four years old. He has a wife and three children.

Jails of Canada Secure Against Fire Outbreaks

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, April 22.—"Positively impossible," was the comment of General W. St. Pierre Hughes, superintendent of penitentiaries, here today when asked if a fire such as destroyed the Ohio State institution with the loss of more than 300 lives could happen in any Canadian penitentiary.

"Our institutions," said General Hughes, "are entirely fireproof."

All the cell blocks in the Canadian penitentiaries were fireproof, he said.

Bill Much Extends Prohibition Laws

WASHINGTON, April 22.—A bill to extend the prohibition law to all territories subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, including Hawaii and the Virgin Islands, was introduced today by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut.

Delegates of U.S. Leave London for Home After Parley

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 23.—The American delegation to the London Naval Conference left Southampton for New York at dawn today, with the sailing of the Leviathan at 7:30 a.m. They boarded the ship at midnight.

Laureate Choice Matter of Much New Discussion

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, April 22.—The literary, and the ordinary public, too, are wondering who will become the next Poet Laureate, or if, indeed, there will be any successor to Dr. Robert Bridges, who died yesterday. The question of whether this honorary position would lapse was raised after the death of Lord Tennyson, and Tennyson's successor, Austin, was not appointed until Tennyson had been dead four years.

But it is likely that His Majesty after a reasonable interval will, on the advice of the Prime Minister, confer the title of Poet Laureate upon some scholarly man of verse and thereby continue this special royal recognition of poetry, which began as early as the days of Chaucer, who received an allowance of wine from the King's wine butts.

Rich Egyptian Is Toronto Visitor

TORONTO, Ont., April 22.—A direct descendant of Mahomet and probably the richest man in Egypt, Syed Alsagoff, wearing an authentic Mohammedan fez, aroused little attention when he arrived in Toronto, due to Oriental atmosphere the coming of the Shriners has created. Mr. Alsagoff is a municipal commissioner, justice of the peace, banker, racehorse owner and controller of pilgrim traffic.

Colwood Park Association Bids on Concession Subject to Erection of Buildings

TEN-YEAR PERIOD IS SUGGESTED

An offer to expend the sum of $30,000 in building a new grandstand and outbuildings, including race track, at the Willows Park, provided the city would grant the association a racing concession for a further ten years, in addition to the two years of the unexpired present lease, was made to the City Council last night by Mr. Percy Fox, managing director of the Colwood Park Association, on behalf of the company.

The Colwood Park Association's proposal was outlined in the following communication, which Mr. Fox presented to the council:

"I enclose herewith three blueprints of a proposed new five-eighths-mile track with grandstand, paddock and other buildings.

"The new track is shown moved to a location 375 feet north of the existing track, which position, I understand, gives the required space for new buildings required by the B.C. Agricultural Association.

"Having seen in the press that the Agricultural Association is anxious to develop the exhibition buildings and grounds, and seeing that the Government have offered to subscribe to this wrok, to facilitate and expedite this object I am authorized by my directors to make you the following offer:

BASIS OF OFFER

"1. The Colwood Park Association will expend a sum of $30,000, which

Inquiry Opens Into Disastrous Fire in Ohio Penitentiary

Instructive Disclosures Made in Evidence of Guards of Prison—Keys Had to Be Taken From Warder Before Doors of Burning Cells Could Be Opened—Undertakers Embalm Dead Men

Over Twenty Murderers in Jail Are Burned to Death

(Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 22.—With the death list swelled to 317, investigation of the disastrous Ohio penitentiary fire last night was marked today by a clash between county and state authorities over a proposal to suspend Warden P. E. Thomas until all facts are known. Demand for Thomas' suspension was made by County Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., but the issue was shelved when Governor Cooper took the case out of his hands by assigning the Attorney-General to make the official inquiry.

WARDEN IN BOX

The investigation opened with the warden on the witness stand The board of inquiry was composed of Governor Cooper, Assistant Attorney-General Earl Shivley, Mr Joseph Godown and Mr. Harry Levy, Welfare Director Hal Griswold and two members of the State Clemency Board.

The warden's testimony revealed that Thomas Watkinson, guard in the cell blocks housing companies G and H, where all the victims perished, refused to turn over his key to the cell ranges to other guards. Watkinson was suspended investigation. Later he denied he was responsible for not opening the doors.

DISCLOSURES MADE

The inquiry also disclosed:

That Thomas assigned his chief deputy, J. C. Woodward, to take charge within the prison walls when fire broke out at 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

That the warden himself was stationed outside the prison to prevent escapes.

That Night Guards Thomas Little and W. C. Baldwin, just coming on duty, had to take the range key away from Watkinson to get to the cells where some 800 prisoners were locked behind bars, suffocating in dense smoke that broke from the fast spreading fire.

That Little and Baldwin could get no higher than the fifth tier before they became exhausted, leaving most of the convicts in the fifth and sixth tiers to die.

RAIDERS ARE SURROUNDED BY SOLDIERS

Capture of Insurgents Who Raided the Chittagong Arsenal Expected in Short Time

NO MORE RIOTING IS YET REPORTED

(Associated Press)

CALCUTTA, April 22.—British authorities believed tonight the Indian insurgents who raided the Chittagong arsenal Saturday were surrounded and that capture would soon follow.

Forty soldiers of the Eastern Frontier Rifles and a troop of Burma Light Horse engaged a party of about thirty of the rebels on a road a few miles north of Chittagong today, but details as to the outcome were lacking.

HUNGER STRIKE NOW

As to other aspects of the Indian situation, political prisoners in the Alipore central jail, including J. M. Sengupta, mayor of Calcutta, went on a hunger strike as the result of an alleged assault by jail officials. They were imprisoned because of activity in the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi.

Public demonstrations were held tonight in North Calcutta despite police orders prohibiting such meetings. Police did not interfere, however. Considerable tension also was reported in the South Calcutta district.

In Madras police charged to disperse a mob which had stoned a police station. The crowd reassembled near another station and stoned it. Report from other centres indicated the situation was quiet.

Allege Cruelty To British Boy By Ontario Man

PETERBORO, Ont., April 22.—His body packed by bruises from kicks and blows which, he claims, were rained upon him by his employer, a British immigrant boy, Arthur Goodsall, aged seventeen, was last night brought to the children's shelter in this city for care and treatment.

Provincial Constable Thompson and John Edgar, inspector of the Children's Aid Society, investigated the case and have laid charges of assault and causing actual bodily harm.

GRAND FORKS SETTLERS MEET HON. F. BURDEN

The settlers in the Grand Forks irrigated area, after meeting with the Minister of Lands, Hon. F. P. Burden; the special commissioner, Mr. W. Sanford Evans, and Dr. W. H. Gaddes, appear to be better satisfied with the situation in connection with the fruit business. Mr Burden returned to the Capital yesterday and said that the residents seemed to realise that an intelligent interest was being taken in them and their problems now.

The object which they had in meeting the minister and the others was for the purpose of ascertaining what was to be the policy of the Government with respect to the report of Mr. Evans. Moreover they wished to find just how the plan suggested by Mr. Evans was going to work out.

With regard to the policy which the Department of Lands was to adopt with respect to the recommendations, Mr. Burden assured the residents that this would be a matter of Government policy rather than one in which he, as Minister of Lands, would alone be concerned.

He therefore advised that this subject should stand over until the full report of Mr. Evans was forthcoming and the Government had had the opportunity of going into it and formulating a policy expected to fit the requirements of the fruit industry.

Premier Is Now on Way To Ottawa

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, April 22.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, accompanied by Senator Haydon, arrived here on the Ss. Arcadian late today from Bermuda after a five-day holiday.

The Premier, who was looking very fit, declined to say anything for publication beyond the fact that he had a most enjoyable holiday.

"No," he said. "I don't want to be interviewed. I've been on a holiday and I think I should escape an interview this time." Senator Haydon was of the same opinion and declined to say anything beyond declaring with enthusiasm that he had enjoyed himself.

Other Canadians on board were Sir Henry Thornton and Lady Thornton.

Tokio Bus Strike Ends and Men Return to Work

(Associated Press)

TOKIO, April 22.—The strike of tramway and bus workers of Tokio, begun Sunday, apparently failed today, as 4,000 strikers resumed operations with reduced wages, which caused the walkout. Municipal authorities, who operate the transportation systems, predicted that conditions would be normal tomorrow in this city of more than 2,000,000.

Although 12,000 of the 13,000 transportation workers quit work, the authorities maintained a reduced service with the aid of volunteers. In Kobe, 1,300 tramway workers struck in sympathy with the Tokio strikers, and the strike threatened to spread to Osaka. The Kobe tramways continued to operate but with a small force.

Since Sunday tramways and buses of Tokio had given about half the usual service. Many persons were injured severely in accidents caused by inexpert crews. There was little disorder caused by strikers. A few of their leaders were arrested by police who dispersed mass meetings.

Economic distress in Japan, due to widespread unemployment and decreased wages, was reflected in the strike of tramway workers, who resisted the Tokio municipality's order cutting their wages.

Maritime Freight Rates to Be Inquiry Subject

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, April 22.—A public hearing of interest will be held by the Board of Railway Commissioners here next Monday, when the board will have before it the application of the Halifax Harbor Commission for reduced rates on eastbound grain. The Nova Scotia port authorities ask that the present rate from Fort William, Port Arthur and Armstrong to Halifax of 21.30 cents per bushel on wheat and 20.40 cents per bushel on other grain be disallowed and that there be substituted a tariff showing a rate of 11.6 cents per bushel on all grains and that the present differential of six cents from Montreal and Quebec be continued.

Allied with this is an application from the Transportation Commission of the Maritime Board of Trade for an order directing the Canadian National Railways to publish an all-rail rate on grain on car loads from Armstrong, Ont., via the National Transcontinental Railway, to Saint John, West Saint John and Halifax, N.S., of 19.34 cents per hundredweight for export.

A third element is a contemplated development of the Maritime Board of Trade's request, envisaging acceptance of it by the Board of Railway Commissioners. In it the Canadian Millers' Association of Montreal asks that, in the event of the last application being granted, the order be extended to include the same rate on grain products for export.

is the estimated cost of building the grandstand and outbuildings under the proposed plan, including track.

"2. In consideration of which the city are to grant a racing concession for a further ten years, in addition to the two years of the unexpired present lease.

"3. The city to arrange with the Oak Bay Municipality not to raise the present licence fee of $750 during the period of the new lease.

"4. The Colwood Park Association to have the right to use such old fences, sound lumber, etc., from the present structure where they may deem advisable.

"5. The Colwood Park Association not to be bound to use machines after the remaining two years of the present unexpired lease, the reason being that the agreement with the Australian Totalisator Company expires then, and if there were no other machines available at that time the Colwood Park Company would be at the mercy of the Australian Company.

"6. The bleachers stand, which is used solely by the Agricultural Association, to be erected by them.

"7. The cash to pay for the new track and buildings shall be deposited in the Royal Bank on acceptance of the offer by the city, and shall be used solely for the purpose of carrying out the work, and all payments to be countersigned by the City Engineer.

"8. A safeguarding clause shall be inserted in the agreement protecting the Colwood Park Association in the event of racing being barred in the province by the Legislature during the term of the lease; the wording of this clause to be agreed upon by the City Solicitor and the company's solicitor.

"9. The offer to be dealt with as expeditiously as possible to enable a start to be made upon the work on May 25, so that the whole may be completed for racing this year on August 16.

"10. The city or Agricultural Association to do any work they may require in the infield for purposes of athletic sports, as they may require, but no buildings to be erected on the infield.

"11. Generally the existing clauses in present agreement to be embodied in the new agreement.

"12. The city to provide all water supply and fire protection necessary. The city to provide drain outlet to connect to ditch immediately inside the track rail for the efficient drainage of the infield. All track drainage to be provided by the company."

OPEN TO TENDER

Following the reading of the letter, Mayor Anscomb expressed himself emphatically that any renewal of the racing concession for a further ten-year period must be open to public tender in order that anybody interested may bid and the city secure the fullest possible consideration for the racing concession at the Willows.

Alderman H. O. Litchfield inquired whether the Colwood Park Association, Limited, intended, if it secured a ten-year racing concession, to sell out its rights to some other concern or company, either locally or outside of Victoria.

Mr. Fox said there were only five shareholders in the Colwood Park Association, and they had put up their own money. They had made no agreement with anyone, either in the city or outside Victoria.

Mr. Fox told the council that the cost of erecting the buildings and rails at the Willows would be approximately $20,000, and the cost of constructing the track would be about $10,000.

MOTION ADOPTED

Alderman James Adam moved, seconded by Alderman W. T. Straith, that the letter and plan be referred to the British Columbia Agricultural Association for report as to whether or not, in its opinion, the work called for in the plan, was suitable for the needs of Willows Park.

Alderman E. S. Woodward sponsored an amendment, that the letter and plan be referred to the British Columbia Agricultural Association for report.

The amendment was defeated. The Adam-Straith motion was then approved.

Western Premiers to Hold Conference on Immigrants For Settlement on Farms

(Canadian Press)

EDMONTON, April 22.—An interprovincial conference called for the purpose of deciding upon one general immigration policy for the Prairie Provinces will be held in Winnipeg early next week. The tentative date for the conference has been set as Tuesday, April 29.

Those taking part in the conference will be Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba; Premier D. J. T. M. Anderson, of Saskatchewan, and Hon. George Hoadley, acting Premier of Alberta.

Arrangements for the holding of the conference were completed by long distance telephone this morning.

IMPERATIVE STEP

In announcing the calling of the parley, Hon. George Hoadley pointed out that unemployment had made such a step imperative by the Governments of the prairie provinces.

"Last year Alberta informed the Federal authorities that she did not want any more Central Europeans for the time being. This wish was respected, but 10,000 of these Central Europeans were shipped into Winnipeg for distribution and by a process of infiltration Alberta got a large portion of them anyhow," the acting Premier declared.

"From this it can be seen that unless all three provinces adopt a uniform policy in respect to immigrants, nothing will be gained. The recommendations of the three provinces will also carry more weight with the Federal Government than would individual recommendations."

ALL PREMIERS AGDEE

Both the Premiers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan agreed to the proposed conference with enthusiasm.

"It is not that we wish to permanently stop immigration, but rather to shut off the flow of labor until such time as we can dispose of the surplus workers we already have in the West," Mr. Hoadley pointed out. "We will not, of course, ask for the exclusion of immigrants with sufficient funds to start in farming and support themselves. It is only those classified as laborers that we wished stopped so that they will not become a burden on the country. Approximately 80 per cent of those on the unemployed lists at present are Central Europeans."

PRELIMINARY PARLEY

OTTAWA, April 22.—The meeting of the Premiers of the prairie provinces to discuss immigration is taken here as a preliminary to the Dominion conference to be held probably in June, at which all the provinces will be asked to send representatives.

Immigration officials explained that under the agreement with the railway companies they have until May 31 to complete their movement of farm laborers from Central Europe.

It has been cut down this year to 8,000, which is less than last year and only about a quarter what it was in 1928. In fact, the movement is the smallest of this class since the agreement first came into effect years ago. Under present conditions it is practically impossible to fix the province in which the immigrant may or may not enter, once he lands in Canada.

The railway agreement expires this year and no doubt after the advice of the provinces has been obtained a new agreement will be worked out.

PREMIER HAS RETURNED TO DUTIES HERE

the matter. Dr. Tolmie took an interest in the mission and interviewed the ministers, with the result that it appears likely that there will be a satisfactory arrangement made.

Dr. Tolmie returned to the city yesterday, and immediately plunged into the duties of his office, remaining from the time of the arrival of the afternoon steamer until after 7 o'clock last evening in his office.

INDUSTRIAL FUTURE

The Premier brings also an encouraging report that industry is looking this way more than ever before, and that at least three projects are in hand looking to establishing in British Columbia. One of these, says the Premier, is of an outstanding importance. He is not at liberty as yet to divulge the details of the plan, or the character of the undertaking. There is, however, every prospect that it will establish in the province, and if this is done it will mean much for British Columbia.

The investment of Eastern capital in British Columbia is having the effect, Dr. Tolmie says, of drawing the Eastern investors more in touch with the Pacific province. He found many requests for information along the line of opportunities here with the idea of making further sound investments in the province.

GREATER CONFIDENCE

There was evident the greatest confidence in the future of British Columbia in the East. The savings on deposit in the banks, the ready sale of bonds and resources of the province, and the geographical position, having in view the trade of the future, were all stressed as most favorable outlooks.

Men of experience in the East expressed their appreciation of the road policy of the Government. The value of the tourist trade to the country is a matter which is keenly appreciated in the East, and the importance of British Columbia in connection with this line of enterprise was referred to by men of experience.

ROADS TO YUKON

In this connection the matter of the project of the road to the Yukon and Alaska was referred to. There is a project advanced now, he said, to build a road from Edmonton to Mayo.

The project associated with the idea of building through British Columbia into the Yukon and on to Alaska, however, is still much in the public eye.

The Federal Government will investigate the Yukon section of the proposed road this Summer. Investigation will be carried out by British Columbia in its territory. The United States Government has set aside a sum for investigation in Alaska.

SOCKEYE TREATY

The Premier believes that the sockeye treaty will likely be approved by Parliament at the present session.

"Providing amendments which may be made by the United States are satisfactory, I believe the treaty will be accepted by the Canadian House this year," said Premier Tolmie.

LEGISLATION APPROVED

The feeling in the East was that the legislation passed in the Legislature this session would have the effect of stabilizing the industry, and work to the advantage of the country.

P.G.E. MATTERS

"Interest in British Columbia generally is typical of new inquiries about the Pacific Great Eastern Railway," said the Premier. "We have been asked to furnish information about this line to influential parties who have not previously been interested."

While the Premier would not admit that new inquiries about the railway constitute definite offers, he indicated that he regarded them as highly important.

"I expect that the report on the P.G.E. will be ready by June of this year. By the time that some officials interested have returned to Canada it will be ready for consideration."

COAL CONFERENCE

"In June we expect to proceed with the conference on British Columbia coal. These will be two highly important matters for consideration during the early Summer.

COMMISSION ON LIQUOR

"While I was in Ontario I took advantage of the opportunity to confer with Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, on the working of the three-man commission. I secured valuable information on this subject, which is at present before our Government."

CENSUS PLANS

While in Ottawa the Premier took up the matter of the five-year census for British Columbia. The Prairie Provinces enjoy this at present, and Dr. Tolmie feels that British Columbia would benefit from the same provision. He promises to pursue the matter further.

TRIBUTE TO MR. ANDERSON

The Premier paid a tribute to the late Mr. James R. Anderson, who was killed here recently.

"Mr. Anderson was the first Deputy Minister of Agriculture in British Columbia, and he did a great service in laying the early foundations for agriculture in this province," said the Premier.

"He was in charge of the department when I first entered the service, and it was through his insistence that I learned to speak in public. He was a great botanist, and well versed in all lines of development in British Columbia. He remained a close student of the province to the day of his death. His loss will be felt in Victoria and British Columbia at large."

FEDERAL ELECTION

Speaking of the chances of a Federal election, the Premier offered the opinion that this was not decided upon probably as yet by the Prime Minister. The matter was one that he appeared to be weighing carefully, as to whether it were wiser to go this year or delay another.

The most talked of matter in the East at present was the "King Nickle Speech." There was a feeling that such a position as outlined by the Prime Minister, that not a nickle should go to assist the unemployed in provinces under Conservative administrations, was something that was hardly conceivable. It seemed hardly possible to believe that it could be suggested that while a case of unemployment was being discussed with families in need, that the political affiliations should be the subject of consideration.

SEE CHAMPIONSHIP HOCKEY

Dr. Tolmie had the opportunity while in Montreal of seeing the championship hockey match between the Canadiens of Montreal and the Boston team. He was also able to realize the noise that could be made by 13,000 ardent sons and daughters of Montreal boosting for their team.

DON'T SUFFER WITH DANGEROUS INDIGESTION

Do you suffer after meals with a belching, from sour and acid stomach? Many believe they have heart trouble and tremble with fear, expecting any minute to drop dead. This condition can be prevented, likewise relieved.

Take Carter's Little Liver Pills after meals and neutralize the gases. Sweeten the sour and acid stomach, relieve the gas and encourage digestion.

The stomach, liver and bowels will be cleansed of poison, painful and dangerous indigestion disappears and the system enjoys a tonic effect. Don't delay. Ask your druggist for a 25c. pkg. of Carter's Little Liver Pills.—(Advt.)

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN CAR ACCIDENT

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—John W. Maxwell, thirty-four; Frankie Hunter, thirty, and George, thirty-one, all of Hollywood, were found crushed to death in the wreckage of an automobile near Inglewood, a suburb, today. The automobile was totally wrecked. The broken speedometer indicated it was traveling more than seventy miles an hour when it left the road, leaped an embankment and ran into a tree.

B.C. TEACHER CONVENTION NOW SITTING

DOUKHOBOR WORK IN PROVINCE TOLD OF

VANCOUVER, April 22.—Vocational counsel in schools was outlined and its importance stressed by Mr. R. Fleming, assistant superintendent of Seattle schools, before the British Columbia Teachers' Federation in annual session here, this afternoon.

A vocational programme for a school system involved three factors at least, Mr. Fleming said. First, an opportunity for pupils to secure systematic information relative to occupation. A second factor was a challenge. Boys and girls should be made to realize the ultimate demand, that they choose an occupation and the importance of making preparations for that choice. The third fact, Mr. Fleming stated, was counsel. A boy or girl should have the opportunity to discuss with a sympathetic school counsellor, his or her problem of vocational choice. The counsellor would not make a choice for them, but guide them into the necessary consideration for such a choice.

DOUKHOBOR CHILDREN

The educational problem of educating Doukhobor children in the British Columbia settlement was dealt with in an address by Mr. P. H. Sheffield, provincial inspector, Nelson.

"We are endeavoring to create among the children an interest so great that it will more than overcome the traditional enmity which their parents have against schools and governments," he said.

Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, gave a general outline of present-day problems of educational legislation in the province.

In the home economics department an address on "What is Progress?" was given by Mrs. D. S. Lewis, of the Washington State Board of Vocational Education, at Olympia.

HOME ECONOMICS

An outline of this work, its problems and challenge, against its importance, were interestingly sketched by the speaker.

Home economic officers elected for 1930 were: Chairman, Miss E. M. Switzer (North Vancouver); vice-chairman, Miss I. Elliott (Vancouver); secretary, Miss M. E. Gibbon (Vancouver); committee, Miss Hathaway (Vancouver), and Mrs. N. E. Murphy (North Vancouver).

The convention opened in the auditorium of the Kitsilano Junior High School, with Mr. G. S. Ford, president, in the chair.

Mayor W. H. Malkin welcomed the delegates and short addresses were given by Mr. W. J. Baird, chairman Vancouver School Board; Mrs. T. A. Barnard, vice-president of the Provincial Trustees' Association; Mrs. E. Mahon, president Provincial Parent-Teacher Association, and Mr. I. Dilworth, vice-president British Columbia Teachers' Federation.

VIGOROUS PROTEST AT LOWER GRANT

Fish Processing Industry of B.C. Objects to Hindrance to Work of Biological Board

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 22.—British Columbia's fish processing industry will protest vigorously against the proposed reductions by the Dominion Government of $26,000 in the estimates of the Pacific Branch of the Biological Board of Canada, whose research is adding immeasurably each year to the knowledge of the fishing reserves in this province.

Headed by the canned salmon section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the industry today issued a call to a special meeting of protest, which will be held here Thursday afternoon in the C.M.A. Offices. A general protest against the Government's attitude in cutting a total of $60,000 from the general estimates of the board, of which the $26,000 cut from the Pacific Branch's work is a part, and a petition asking that this sum be provided for in the supplementary estimates will be drafted, it is expected.

Premier King Homebound, and Cabinet to Meet

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, Ont., April 22.—Homeward bound from his brief holiday trip to Bermuda, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King is expected to reach the capital on Thursday morning. A meeting of the Cabinet, the first since Parliament adjourned on April 11 for the Easter recess, is scheduled for Thursday afternoon. The Prime Minister and practically all his ministers will foregather at this sitting.

You ARE PAYING FOR A PACKARD

Why not own one?

The important thing to consider in the buying of a motor car is not the price of purchase—but the cost of owning.

There are eight items of cost involved in owning any automobile—license, garage and insurance; gasoline, oil and tires; repairs and depreciation.

Compare these costs as between a Packard Standard Eight and any car of its size down to half its price and you will find:

That the license cost for the Packard is little if any more.

That garage cost is the same.

That insurance may be slightly higher, but only by a few dollars annually.

That the three operating items—gas, oil and tires—show no advantage for either car.

And that repairs for the Packard, for reasons which you will readily appreciate, actually cost less.

Finally, you will find that depreciation—the one big item of ownership expense—costs no more for the Packard than for a half-price car, provided the Packard is driven twice as long. And this offsets the difference in purchase price.

It is literally true, therefore, that you are paying Packard ownership costs if you are driving a car of like size and trading it in every year or two—without enjoying the advantages of Packard performance, Packard comfort, beauty and distinction.

Why not, then, have the Packard?

The price of the most popular model of the Packard Standard Eight—the five-passenger Sedan—is but $3465, Canadian Factory List. Ten other body styles are available on the 127½ and 134½-inch wheelbases at from $3380 to $4035.

We will gladly accept your present car as cash. If it is of average value it will make or exceed the down payment on your Packard Standard Eight. The remainder can be arranged in convenient monthly payments—so that you take possession of your Packard with no cash outlay whatever.

When may we serve you?

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

EMPIRE UNITY TO BE IDEAL OF CANADIANS

Canada has grown into full nationhood," said Sir Robert.

"The thirty thousand who crossed the ocean in the Autumn of 1914 were pioneers in the march which led to that crowning event. Renowned as was their valor and distinguished as was their achievement in the battle line, let it be their constant pride that they led the way to something more far-reaching and enduring than the victory on the battle plains of Europe."

Canadians should not forget that theirs is a nationhood within a commonwealth to whose development and history, to whose institutions, sense of liberty, of justice and of international rights the world owes much. In Ottawa, not long since, General Smuts spoke truly and eloquently of the need to keep uppermost in our hearts the unity of the Empire, Sir Robert said.

"OUR HIGHEST INSPIRATION"

"I join my voice to impress upon you that the unity of the British Commonwealth should be our highest inspiration," the speaker continued. "To ourselves, to the other Dominions, to the Motherland, we owe the supreme duty of maintaining it; but more than all, we owe this to humanity. Not alone to the sister nations of the Commonwealth, but the entire world that unity is of the most vital significance.

"Another ideal I set before you with equal earnestness," Sir Robert went on, "is the ideal of international right and justice, the banishment of war, the peaceful determination of international disputes.

"Peace in the highest sense cannot be made by treaty alone; it was not made in 1919 at Paris, it is still in the making. But the future still holds in promise a happy outcome."

After an export ban of sixteen years, the first load of livestock was shipped recently from England.

CAMPAIGN FOR CLEAN CITY IS HAVING EFFECT

CITIZENS OF ALL CLASSES ASSIST

Mr. Walter S. Miles, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and his committee handling the "Clean Up, Paint Up" campaign, started something on Monday which they are going to finish satisfactorily to themselves and with credit to the city before next Saturday afternoon rolls around. Seen yesterday, Mr. Miles reported progress for the first two days of garbage collecting. From Mr. George Allison; superintendent of the city garbage service, he had received the information that his "telephone had been red hot since Monday morning at 7 o'clock." Mr. Allison, in his report, further stated that up to 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 116 calls had been attended to. A year ago, the total calls for the week amounted to 320. A scowload of garbage collections was completed Monday night, and a second load was started yesterday morning. "The work this year," concluded Mr. Allison in his report to Mr. Miles, "clearly shows that we are not going to have the volume dealt with last year, the material being collected indicating that much of the old junk lying around had been pretty well cleaned up previously, so that we are not going to be pressed so hard. We are operating two extra trucks for this special service, and several extra men. This clean-up is good business, and I am very much pleased with the situation."

Mr. George Beck, chairman of the committee in charge of the "clean-up," reporting to Mr. Miles yesterday, stated that the committee had met with a hearty response from merchants and citizens alike, all being anxious to share in the beautification of Victoria, realizing that after all the main object of the intensive stress on "clean up, paint up" week is the educational lesson brought about to continue the good work throughout the year. "In interviewing many of the stores we found that there had been an increase in the sale of such things as paint, brushes, brooms, lumber and so forth. Altogether, we are more than satisfied with the progress made so far this week," was Mr. Mr. Miles' parting comment.

Group of Seven Hold Exhibition at Toronto Gallery

USE OF DRUGS IS DECLINING

Supt. of Vancouver General Hospital Gives Interesting Facts in Address

NURSES IN B.C. IN EXCESS OF DEMAND

Toronto's enviable position as a centre of public health activities was emphasized by Miss Margaret Kerr, instructor of public health nursing at the University of British Columbia, in the course of the talk which she gave yesterday afternoon at the session of the Graduate Nurses' Association of British Columbia. The afternoon sessions, held at the Jubilee Hospital Nurses' Home, were well attended. Miss Mary Campbell, the president, was in the chair, and other speakers were Miss Grace Fairley, superintendent of the Vancouver General Hospital, and Miss Ethel Thornley, head nurse of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Victoria. Following the afternoon session the members were entertained at tea by the Jubilee Hospital Alumnae Association. The morning was occupied with a visit to the Queen Alexandra Solarium, Malahat Beach, when Dr. C. Wace, the medical superintendent, and Miss Stone, welcomed the visitors and took them through the institution. Dr. Wace subsequently addressing the group and pointing out the persistent need of funds for the carrying forward of the work.

Miss Fairley was the first speaker at the afternoon meeting. She called attention to the increasing new demands made by nursing schools. These demands should, she thought, be met, and to do so there must be a readjustment in the curriculum of the training school. Dietetics would have to be given much more recognition in the course of studies. Speaking of materia medica, Miss Fairley said that there was a definite decline in the use of drugs, whose chief function now was for sedative, purgative, or stimulant purposes. Most drugs today were given in tabloid form, and the great thing was for the student to realize the difference in the composition of the tabloids and their effect on the patient.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS

This speaker also called attention to the benefit which would accrue from a public health nurse understanding the social conditions surrounding the family unit. She should also be taught the signs of disease. In conclusion she left the reminder that the nurses' three years of training should be considered definitely as a period of educational development for the nurse.

TORONTO LEADS

After traveling extensively through the United States and visiting a number of nurses' training schools and public health nursing centres, Miss Kerr was able to speak from a comparative standpoint of the position of these and the Canadian institutions of the kind. She spoke of some of the programmes of public health nursing, such as that of the East Haarlem Association and the Belview Association of Nursing, New York. Through such agencies demonstrations were given to the public of the necessity of public health activities. She also spoke of Detroit, where about 500 public health nurses were employed. She mentioned Toronto, however, as having one of the best public health services on the continent, its standard being so renowned all over North America that travelling scholarship men usually spent at least a month studying the methods used in this Canadian city.

Miss Thornley, speaking for the private duty nursing committee, gave a typical picture of nurses who had been graduated less than a year, saying that seven per cent held public health positions, twenty-four per cent institutional positions, and sixty-nine per cent dropped into the ranks of the free lance of private duty. Any nurse doing district work, or what was now called public health work, must put teaching first. Every visit must be of an educational nature, which would leave the patient and the family wiser and better than when she came into contact with them.

Among the points which Miss Thornley emphasized in the public health nurse's relations to her patients were the right approach, the right contact with the family, and the necessity of securing co-operation. Economic problems were also considered. Training and good judgment combined would effect wonders. A fully effective public health nurse could not be evolved in one short year.

Possibly, said Miss Thornley, the hospital would some day be a health centre, and there would be closer contact with health and social agencies. At the present time the only chance which the nurse had for studying persons was when they were sick. They lacked opportunities of becoming familiar with the mass of the population in an average state of health.

The importance of instruction of the mother during the pre-natal period was stressed, and in conclusion the speaker touched on the little mothers' leagues, personal hygiene, mother craft, social hygiene, and the whole question of the family and the disturbing or happy influences of the home. The nurse must remember that the mother could not absorb in a few minutes what it had taken the nurse years to learn.

In the course of the session Miss Randal, reporting on the conditions of nursing in British Columbia, indicated that the supply was far in excess of the demand, the training schools at present turning out many more nurses than could be absorbed. In the training schools of the province approximately 970 nurses were in training, and the register of nurses contained over 1,800 names.

Absolves Prince Stated Involved In Coining Plot

By A. R. DECKER
(Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service.)

VIENNA, Austria, April 22.—Louis Windisch-Graetz, Hungarian Prince, who was involved in a plot to counterfeit French francs, has been rehabilitatated by a Hungarian military court of honor. The Prince has already served a short sentence in jail for complicity in the counterfeiting affair of 1926.

The reason for Prince Windisch-Graetz' rehabilitation has just been made known with the announcement of the engagement of his daughter, Jagdalena, to the rich landholder, Count Stephan Karolyi, son of Count Ladislas Karolyi.

Nine Chosen As Directors Of Chamber

Out of the eighteen names which headed the primary ballot for directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the following nine have been selected: Messrs. C. L. H. Branson, H. M. Diggon, P. B. Fowler (the president of the chamber), Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., R. H. B. Ker, W. A. Luney, George McGregor, James Parfitt and J. W. Spencer.

Nine other directors have a year to serve. Those just elected will sit for two years.

Staying With Scouts

Mr. H. T. Ravenhill, who recently resigned the position of district commissioner, still retains the post of assistant provincial commissioner, which he has held for the past three years. His valued services will still, therefore, be at the disposal of the local executive when so required.

SAYS VICTORIA HAS FUTURE IN MANUFACTURING

Mr. R. W. Mayhew Tells of Plans to Build $200,000 Plant Here for New Product

LOCAL WORKERS HIGHLY LAUDED

"There is a future for Victoria in manufacturing," declared Mr. Robert W. Mayhew, managing director of the Sidney Roofing and Paper Company, Limited, in addressing members of the Kiwanis Club yesterday in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Mayhew voiced his belief that the city's industrial future did not lie in big, but in smaller industries.

"I think that such clubs as the Kiwanis and other service bodies can give valuable assistance to the welfare of such concerns by showing encouragement and taking a practical interest in their development and progress.

"No industry in Victoria, or any other place, can do its best unless those at its head feel they have the support, co-operation and sympathy of the citizens," he asserted.

The speaker remarked that Victoria possessed all the open spaces that were required for good factory sites for almost any size of industry, that there were good transportation facilities, and ample power for manufacturing concerns.

"However, when we have to pay three times as much in Victoria for bulk power as they do in Tacoma and Longview, despite the abundance of the local supply in contrast to the Tacoma shortage, it appears to me that the time is ripe for some impartial authority to make an intelligent analysis of the power situation and rule as to whether the B.C. Electric Company is charging too much or too little for electrical power," Mr. Mayhew stated.

Canadian mills were capable of making any grade of paper which the demands required. In spite of that, however, no less than $12,000,000 worth of paper was imported into this Dominion last year. The capital invested in paper production in Canada was nearly $600,000,000, an increase of $300,000,000 in the last ten-year period. Last year's tonnage of newsprint was 2,381,000 tons, or 900,000 tons greater than the output of the American paper mills. Over 32,000 workmen were employed in the industry in Canada last year. He regretted that paper-making machinery was not built in this province, and felt that this field offered an opportunity to machinery firms.

Alluding to the operations of the Sidney Roofing and Paper Company's plant on the Industrial Reserve, Mr. Mayhew said: "We employed labor to the extent of 900 days in 1915, and last year we gave 35,000 days' employment. In the year 1915 we consumed electrical power costing $200, but last year we paid $37,000 to the B.C. Electric for power. These figures will give you an indication of the progress of our development."

Stating that one industry helped another, the speaker showed that a number of small industries had come into being owing to the existence of the roofing and paper company here.

Mr. Mayhew said the company had been experimenting with a view to manufacturing an insulation board different from anything on the market. As a result of the tests which had been made, the company would undertake the manufacture of such a board from waste material of shingle mills. He said the new product would be manufactured in a special factory which will be erected in the near future on the Industrial Reserve at a cost of $200,000, and employment will be given to between thirty-five and forty-five men.

"We have in Victoria as good a class of labor as will be found anywhere. They give no trouble, but render good service and are keen and intelligent fellows. Our men are loyal to us, and we are happy to have them in our employ. We should be proud of them," he said.

The speaker said he would like to see the condition of laboring men bettered, and he was of the opinion that industry would not be hurt at all, in the long run, if a system of health insurance was created. "I hope the day will come when it will be established," he declared.

In closing, Mr. Mayhew said: "It was nothing short of disaster to the workingman when the technical school by-law was defeated here. Let us keep our boys in Victoria and give them a fair chance. Let us give them an education that they can use in their everyday lives."

PLANS COMPLETE FOR UNVEILING

Fourth Tablet Commemorating Gallant Dead Will Be Unveiled

Preparations are well advanced at the Parliament Buildings for the unveiling of the Provincial Civil Service War Memorial tomorrow. The Legislative Chamber has been cleared of its desks, and will be used in connection with the ceremony. The address connected with the event will be given by Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Prime Minister of the Province; while Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, will offer a dedicatory prayer.

The proceedings will commence at 8 o'clock. Preceding this there will be a programme of selections by the band of the Sixteenth Canadian Scottish Battalion, from 7:30 until 8 o'clock. Space has been reserved on the floor of the Legislative Chamber for the relatives of those whose memory is commemorated by the placing of the memorial tablet in the rotunda of the buildings.

The provincial civil service will be accommodated in the unreserved space, while the galleries will be open to the general public who attend.

Following the address of Premier Tolmie in the Legislative Chamber, the assembly will move to the rotunda, where the ceremony of unveiling will take place. A flood light will be placed in the gallery so as to illuminate the tablet as it is unveiled.

The programme to be followed will be:

Address by Hon. S. F. Tolmie. Unveiling of the Memorial Tablet in the rotunda. Dedicatory prayer by Hon. J. Hinchliffe. One minute's complete silence. "Last Post." "God Save the King."

From the chamber the assembly will move to the rotunda in the following order:

ST. GEORGE FOR ENGLAND

In the age of chivalry many countries fought under the banner of St. George. He is not alone England's patron saint but also exercises tutelary power, or did, in Sicily, Arragon, Valencia, Genoa, Malta and Barcelona. Orders bearing his name have been created in Spain, Austria, Genoa, Rome, Bavaria, Russia and Hanover. In England, since the days of Harry the Fifth, and even before, the cry of "God and St. George" has resounded on battlefields and his festival has been celebrated on this date, to a greater or lesser extent, for some hundreds of years.

The red flag of St. George has served to mark England's exploits on the seas. Under this Drake sailed round the world in the Pelican. Under it, too, Raleigh founded Virginia, and it flew on the ships that fought and dispersed the great Armada. That red cross flag was the one which Sir Richard Grenville refused to strike aboard the Revenge when he fought the whole Spanish fleet numbering 53 sail. That was the noblest fight in all Britain's history and as gallant an episode as any extant.

On April 23 the two English possessions of which those of the race think of more than any others are the Navy and Shakespeare. The flag of St. George , now red on a white background, is still flown by the British ships of war. It is the proudest ensign on the seas. It is the badge of rank and command of British Admirals. It was under that flag that Nelson went to his end at Trafalgar. The Vindictive, steaming to her deadly work beside the Mole at Zeebrugge, did so under the White Ensign and Sir Roger Keys signalled her, "St. George for England." This anniversary is thus a vivid reminder of the exploits of what His Majesty has called the "Sure Shield of Empire." It commemorates as well the birth of Shakespeare and history records that the greatest of poets died on this date of the year.

Whatever are the recollections of the date they are those of proud and inspiring character. It was on April 23 that the power of Saladin was overthrown by Richard Coeur de Leon. On April 23 the famous tournament was held by Edward III at which the Order of St. George, later to become the Order of the Garter, was created. It is an anniversary marked with many deathless pages, all of which reflect honor on England and it is full of proud memories for those who had the privilege to be born in that land with traditions that stir the blood. The English people, indeed, have a goodly heritage, something worthy of the highest emulation. They have implanted in their history the ideals of liberty, justice and mercy, and for the perpetuation of these they have been ready to fight any time during the last thousand years. They have a heritage of adventure and enterprise the greatest the world has ever known. The English have spread themselves over the face of the globe. Fundamentally England is at unity with herself whatever may be the storm and the stress through which she passes. In times of crisis she rises to the greatest heights. It is well to remember these things on this age-long day of service and sacrifice and dauntless courage.

"FITNESS"

Shaun Goilin, the winner of this year's Grand National, is a gelding "of unknown pedigree." The lack of knowledge about Shaun Goilin's ancestors has led Mr. Ernest Barker, in a letter to The London Times, to discourse on the quality of "fitness." He does this in relation to latter-day tenets affecting eugenics and the value of breeding from stocks of known pedigree. The lesson of Shaun Goilin is that there is no such thing as fitness if by fitness is meant something absolute. Mr. Barker points out that there are only 5 per cent of those tested for Great Britain's police force "fit" to be policemen. In 1917 only 33 per cent of those tested for national service were fit to be soldiers. "There are, perhaps," says Mr. Barker, "only .0001 per cent of those interested in politics 'fit' to be Prime Ministers." On the other hand, the writer says that, "in the providence of God there are 100 per cent of us "fit" to be men and to rise to the dignity of human life, human duties and human personality."

In other words, the contention is that "fitness is relative to some standard of measurement.' Mr. Barker says that standard is obviously something subjective. "It comes," he says, "from the mind of the person or body of persons who fix or estimate the standard." The authorities of the police force fix the police standard; the authorities of the Army fix the standard for soldiers, and so on; but, he asks, who is to fix the standard for men, as men—for citizens, as citizens? He confesses ignorance on this matter, but believes it is a matter that belongs not only to biologists but also to moralists and statesmen. Moreover, he is of opinion that those who do the measuring should not only measure by standards but also measure the standards by which they measure. The fact remains, says Mr. Barker, that "the gelding is described as of unknown pedigree."

PEAKE PASHA

There has been a fresh outbreak of trouble in Transjordania, Transjordan tribes being in conflict with the Wahibis. The matter, while regrettable, is not of the greatest consequence, for the cloud of dissension bids fair to be dispelled; but it has a general interest in rather an unusual way. One of the men who is responsible for maintaining order in that part of the world is an Englishman of whom the Empire knows very little; but whose deeds might have been imagined by a writer of fiction. He is Colonel Peake, or, as he is called there, Peake Pasha. With a handful of men of his own choosing he has been in the main responsible for the good government of wild and turbulent people distributed over an area of 25,000 miles. General Gordon controlled an enormous army in China in suppressing the Taiping rebellion with nothing more than a cane. There have been times when Peake Pasha carried an armament little less formidable. On one occasion, when trouble arose suddenly and neither funds nor arms were immediately available, he had to search far and near for weapons of defence where weapons of defence apparently did not exist. At last, to everybody's surprise, he turned out his cavalry and camel men armed with swords. They wore swords of a kind which no modern nation was producing and such as no moderff armory preserved. Whence, then, had they come? The swords had been found in heaps, stack upon stack, in the old citadel of Cairo. They were the very swords Napoleon left there after his unsuccessful Battle of the Pyramids. With these swords he meant to carve a way to India, to give France an Oriental empire and to emulate the feats of Alexander the Great. "That man made me miss my destiny," he used afterwards to say of Sir Harry Smith, who faced him there and barred his way to the East. The weapons which he discarded as useless served to arm the descendants of the men against whom he fought.

STAINLESS STEEL

"Good, good, said the Baron, sitting in his hall
For iron, cold iron, is master of us all."

Stainless steel may one day be the master of us all in the world of invention. It may revolutionize the flying-boat and aircraft industry. Until lately this metal did not always live up to its high-sounding name, for it corroded in sea water. After experimenting as patiently as any alchemist of old, Messrs. T. Firth & Son have evolved a nickel chromium steel which is definitely resistant to sea water action. So great is the success of this precious new metal that flying-boats fitted with stainless steel-plated hulls will have a longer life than a ship. It is believed that the new hulls will be everlasting—accidents, of course excepted. For years the flying-boat designer has looked longingly for some kind of stainless steel as the ideal covering for flying-boat hulls up to the water line. The usual duralumin covering is liable to sea-water corrosion and must be constantly watched.

This particular type of steel becomes harder with cold rolling, so that special mills, stout enough to roll the required sizes of sheet steel, were set up by this enterprising firm. Messrs. Short Bros., of Rochester, had experimented in all-steel aircraft and they had been pressing steel makers to experiment in stainless steel. Directly this discovery was made they set to work enthusiastically to find out the difficult workshop technique for moulding this hard plate, which has a density three times that of duralumin, to the shape of a flying-boat hull. It seems only a question of time before there is widespread manufacture of all-stainless steel aircraft, both on land and water, for the extra weight is very slight.

POLITICAL RAILWAYS

New Zealand is finding out that success in the conduct of railways is difficult, if not impossible, as long as the ultimate control is political. The State railways in that Dominion have been subject to successive experiments in managerial direction. There has been a progressive deterioration in the financial results. There has been reckless expansion of capital obligations, as there is in so many instances where the money has to be found by the taxpayers. It is political exigencies and not commercial principles that govern the conduct of State railways. In New Zealand the railways are losing $5,000,000 a year. Ultimately the taxpayers have to find this money.

The campaign against religion in Russia proceeds along three lines. Firstly, there is a studied purpose to treat religion with utter contempt. Secondly, religion is fought by counter-propaganda. Thirdly, religion is being crushed gradually by legislative and administrative machinery. No revolutionary government in history has more assiduously sown the wind during its term of office. It will assuredly reap the whirlwind.

MEMORY

The trees may lose their painted leaves again,
The flowers may fade, the sunsets pass,
Winter may seal up life in crystal glass;
Yet, in the midst of these, we shall remain.

Beech-nuts horse-colored, sodden mould,
Earth soiled by use, flung fold on fold,
—Margaret F. Woodzell in The London Observer.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Like music on the waters is thy sweet voice to me.

We believe the above quotation is from one of the poems of Byron, although subject to correction upon the matter. As a rule the most sweet voices which come over the radio or from the disc upon the gramophone are not like the sounds of distant music upon the waters. Indeed such sounds are very far from that. But what would you? One cannot have everything, lacking the price to pay for it. If circumstances and environment are unfavorable, and you cannot listen to really high-class music at first hand, it is better to listen to such music at second hand or through "remote control" than not listen to it at all. The chief penalty attached to listening to the music of the radio is the voice of the announcer and the most severe penalty attached to listening to the music of the gramophone is the noise made by the needle scratching through a defect in the record.

* * *

Still, with all its distractions and imperfections and whatever musicians who are artists in their profession may say about it, mechanical music has been a wonderful boon to common people who delight in a "concord of sweet sounds." But for the magical disc, how many of us could have heard the voices of Melba singing that "Ave Maria" from "Othello," or Kirby Lunn singing "The Three Fishers," or of Caruso singing almost anything but an English song? And but for the radio we should not have had the pleasure of listening to one of the sweetest boyish voices we ever have heard singing an Ave from the works of another of the great composers.

* * *

As we thought of these things and listened to the voice of the boy who sang like an angel (thinking at the same time of what Johnson said of Goldsmith—that he wrote like an angel and talked like a fool), another thought persisted in obtruding itself upon our mind: the thought that in the course of a year or two the angel voice of that boy would "break" and become even as the voice of a mere man, possibly the voice of a "sobbing tenor," to become an affliction to all who heard it, perhaps the voice of a robust baritone booming through the air like the bellowing of a bull of Bashan.

* * *

Life is tragical. The golden voice of Caruso is silent, or what is left of it is but an echo from the past. Madame Kirkby Lunn has departed from this world, and may be singing in the glorious choir on the other shores of eternity. Of the great artists who are left, their time is limited. Their voices will eventually be broken by Time's remorseless course. Those who are wise will not lag "superfluous on the stage," travelling throughout the world and making farewell appearances before a public infinitely saddened as it strives to listen patiently to the melancholy wreck of the greatest gift of the gods. We do not believe there is any tragedy in life so tragic as the sound of a voice that time has robbed of its once supreme qualities and that discretion decrees should be still. In any walk, business or sport, of this life, supremacy is but for a day. Those who are at the top are haunted by the thought that in course of time they must be flung from the apex and take their appointed places among those at the bottom, or thereabouts. It cannot be said of any, as the poet said of somebody, that time cannot wither nor custom stale the infinite variety of their accomplishments. It has been said that the individual who gets most out of life is he who has invigorating work to do and is blessed with a robust physique and good appetite. Genius has its brief moments of exaltation and its long periods of depression. Consider the lives of the poets and the records most of them inscribed upon the tablets of time. They sang like angels, and most of them behaved like fools.

If you talk with many of our leading public men, some of them will tell you they deplore the day they were so bereft of their common sense as to leave the ranks of the common people and become politicians. For democratic public opinion is as fickle as woman is currently reported to be, and the hero of today becomes the outcast of tomorrow. The common man who is content with a common lot and a common task is assured of such blessings and happiness as can be gathered in this world of tribulations and vicissitudes, for if he never attains to high estate he cannot be subjected to the shock "of a great fall." All the world is a stage, and the observer of human events derives more enjoyment from watching the tragical or farcical performance than the actor in the play.

Dear R. B. D.—Free Trade versus Protection has been a much-discussed problem for years; but Mr. Dandridge, when quoting England as a shining example of the benefits of free trade is not drawing a fair parallel. For example, almost all of England's free imports are non-competitive, mostly foodstuffs, and must necessarily be as cheap as possible in order to pay English workers a relatively lower wage to enable England to compete with the world as regards shipbuilding,coal mining, engineering, cotton and woolen goods, and so on almost indefinitely. If England produced these foodstuffs to a major extent, protection would be absolutely imperative. Without the food imports, England would starve to death in about three weeks. Complete industries, when wages are moderate, must be protected in every country. When wages rise abnormally in any or all trades—then Free Trade to equalize living costs.

We shall shortly see an example of Free Trade as regards the lace industry in England. Philip Snowden or Ramsay Macdonald, or the two combined, have intimated their intention of abolishing the Safeguarding Duties on lace at the earliest possible moment. This will be little short of a crime, and will undoubtedly result in thousands of lace workers, moderately paid and hard-working, being thrown out of work. By the way, our friend Mr. Thomas, Lord of the Privy Seal, Minister of Unemployment and so on, far into the night, will soon have drawn his $25,000 for his year's "work." What has he done? You tell us!

PROOF

Only so little done of all our dreams,
So few of all our fancies came to bloom;
We doubt, at last, the promise of hope's gleams
And feel our dearest longings formed for doom.
Time ruthlessly cuts down where we have sown,
Desires must wither in unfriendly soil,
And often we must journey on alone
While others reap the fruit of all our toil.

Only so little done! Herein it lies,
The certain proof we thirsted for in vain
While Earth vouchsafed unto our seeking eyes
No answer from green hill or plain;
So little done, but justice yet must be Achieved, and so God made eternity.

This Week's Great Day

DEATH OF SHAKESPEARE

On April 23, 1616, William Shakespeare, the greatest dramatist in the history of the world, died at the age of fifty-two.

Less is authentically known of Shakespeare's life than any of the other celebrities of his day, and this is possibly owing to the fact that he was regarded more as a talented actor than a great writer by his contemporaries, for they apparently failed to realize that his plays would live for all time, and thus his many literary friends, including Ben Johnson and Michael Drayton, lost the golden opportunity of recording for the benefit of prosperity the life and doings of the most illustrious figure in the annals of literature.

His father was one of the leading men in the little market town of Stratford-on-Avon, where he established a general store, in which he carried on the combined trades of glover, butcher, and dealer in agricultural produce. William was born in 1564 and was educated at the local grammar school, where he remained until he was thirteen, when family reverses necessitated the boy being taken from school to assist in his father's store.

Shakespeare was only eighteen years of age when he married Anne Hathaway, a woman eight years his senior, and four years later he left his native town and traveled on foot to London, where he seems to have at once turned his attention to the theatre, and having proved himself a capable actor he speedily became a popular member of the leading company of the day.

Of his thirty-seven plays only sixteen were published during his lifetime, so that it is difficult to determine the order in which they were written, "Love's Labor Lost" seems to have been the first, and was produced on the stage in 1591, when the author was twenty-seven. Thenceforward he wrote a couple of plays each year, and as they are said to have only brought from ten to fifteen pounds apiece, he must have made a considerable income by his acting. A year before the production of his first play he purchased an interest in the Globe Theatre at Southwark, and this, with other investments, subsequently produced him an income of £600 a year, which enabled him to purchase a fine residence at Stratford-on-Avon, to which he retired when he finally left London in 1611.

He was the intimate friend and associate of the most brilliant men of his day, including Sir Walter Raleigh, and had many influential patrons. He was a well-known and popular figure at Court and was frequently honored by command performances for the entertainment of Queen Elizabeth, who was delighted with the character of Falstaff in the play of "Henry IV" that she specially requested Shakespeare to introduce the corpulent knight in another play, which resulted in the writing of "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

The last five years of Shakespeare's life were passed in prosperity and honor in his native town, where he took an active interest in local affairs. Early in 1616 his health began to fail, and the festivities with which he celebrated a visit from his friends Jonson and Drayton brought on a fever which caused his death.—(Copyrighted).

ST. GEORGE'S DAY BANQUET

Sir,—Some doubt seems to exist as to whether or not ex-service men are being invited to attend the annual St. George's Day celebration, to be held on Wednesday evening in the Empress Hotel.

Permit me to say that the Royal Society of St. George was organized for the purpose of cultivating and disseminating a spirit of patriotism amongst all members of the British race throughout the world; and on St. George's Day, April 23, a special toast is always proposed to "The Army, Navy and Air Force." At the banquet to be held on Wednesday, Old Campaigners who are still with us, are being invited to attend the banquet, and to wear their decorations. A hearty invitation is most certainly extended to all service and ex-service men to attend this great celebration on St. George's Day.

H. LANGLEY.

President, Victoria Branch, Royal Society of St. George, Victoria, B.C., April 22, 1930.

PENSIONS AND RELIEF

Sir,—May I ask for a little space in your paper re above subject, which is being debated at present at Ottawa and elsewhere?

It is surely about time that drastic revisions be made in the present consideration of and distribution of adequate pensions to the returned man. The average returned man is not out for sympathy, but desirous of and entitled to fair, just treatment for his disabilities, incurred for his country and his neighbors by his service during the war.

There is no getting away from the fact that the man who served in any theatre of war and was fortunate or unfortunate enough to return home has undergone a deterioration of his physical and mental condition. Especially so is that the case with the middle-aged man. I am very certain that the man who was around thirty to forty years old on joining up has a very poor chance of reaching the allotted span of three score years and ten, owing to the strenuous punishment of mind and body entailed during such service.

And now, during these last few years, we find that physical breakdowns, causing the man to quit his work, and insufficient pension granted to him are not only working hardship on the man himself, but are creating a state of chaos in his family, in many instances, owing to insufficient funds to keep the home on a level paying basis.

Now, this state of things is not right, but should be made so as soon as possible. Take, for instance, a man getting a 10 per cent pension with allowance for wife and one child—$11.50 per month—and the man unable to get in the labor market as a worker. How, in the name of common sense, can we say we are doing right when cases like this are before us?

I see by the press that unemployed men back East were receiving relief around $1 per day. But what is done for the returned man who is not employable owing to his physical disabilities and is expected to maintain himself and family on a 10 per cent basis as above?

It certainly needs the efforts of everyone who has any real spirit (and I don't mean "hooch") to bring about a betterment in the living status of the physically unfit returned man.

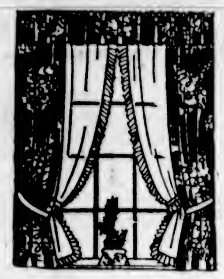

If the organizations work collectively on this matter, along with the large number of women's organizations, on behalf of the women and children, who, you must remember, are the most vital part of our civilization from a racial standpoint, we shall advance toward a fair, sensible solution of this present-day problem. It certainly is not a credit to a country to put a man on the scrap heap at around forty or fifty years of age, with less than enough to feed and clothe him, simply because he had the principle to fight for the protection of his own and somebody else's backyard.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian West. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

To find the depth of water on the sill of the Esquimalt drydock at any tide, add 18.3 feet to the height of high water as above given.

AGED SENATOR IS LAID TO HIS REST

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., April 22.—In the presence of a distinguished gathering representing church and state, the body of Hon. Georges Casimir Dessaulles, centenarian member of the Senate, was buried here today. A large delegation from Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec arrived this morning for the ceremony, while thousands of the Senator's fellow-townsmen assembled at the religious service and later at the graveside.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist, April 23, 1880)

The Legislature, after considerable discussion, decided yesterday to ask the Dominion Government to pass an Act, similar in its provisions to the Queensland Act, relative to the Chinese. The Act provides that Chinese shall pay $10 per annum for a free miner's license, and for bustos licences double the amount paid by other people.

The bill to regulate the management of lands in British Columbia transferred to the Dominion Government is now before Parliament at Ottawa.

MINISTER IS IMPRESSED BY FERTILE AREA

Hon. W. Atkinson Returns From Visit to Invermere Valley — Farming Possibilities

CITES CASE OF AN AGGRESSIVE DANE

The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. W. Atkinson, is busy at present looking into the requirements of the various sections of the province preparatory to taking any action which is deemed necessary to bring about better conditions in the agricultural industry. He returned this week from the far eastern parts of the province, the Golden and Invermere Valley, where he became much impressed with the possibilities in a farming line.

He gives an instance of what can be accomplished there in the matter of production, where a person manifests the necessary thrift to make good.

A young married Dane was referred to, who, with some twenty acres of land, is clearing this as fast as he can, and at the same time making the land as it is reclaimed produce profitable crops. He, and some of his friends of the same nationality, are making good in their endeavors, says the minister.

The situation is simplified from the fact that irrigation for the raising of alfalfa is a matter of little trouble. All that has to be done is to divert the natural flow of water from the surrounding mountains, which is followed by a splendid production of this valuable fodder.

This settler whom the minister had in mind had a sleek cow in the stable, and had also in the pen several hundred dollars' worth of hogs. He had, moreover, just sold $120 worth of carrots which he had raised and carried over the Winter.

There are wonderful opportunities, Mr. Atkinson thinks, in the dairy line in these valleys, with the ease with which alfalfa and other crops may be forced by irrigation, which is a simple matter because of the ease with which the water can be diverted to the land. There is a creamery at Golden, and another at Invermere, which are separated by some eighty miles, so that the opportunities exist for the building up of a good dairy business.

Application on the part of those who are engaged in the farming industry is required to bring about a happy condition of affairs as far as the valley is concerned, in his opinion.

MRS. GOODLAND IS CALLED TO REST

Wife of Former War Graves Commissioner Passes Away After Long Illness

Yesterday morning, Mrs. Ethel Haill Goodland, wife of Col. Goodland, C.B., D.S.O., former Deputy Controller of the Imperial War Graves Commission, passed away at the family residence, Cadboro Bay Road, after an illness of some years' duration.

Mrs. Goodland, who was fifty-two years of age, was born in Oxfordshire, England. Before the war she resided for many years in Chilliwack, and accompanied her husband to France in the year 1919, when he received his appointment on the War Graves Commission, remaining with him during the whole of the nine years that he was in charge of the British cemeteries. In the year 1928, Col. and Mrs. Goodland took up their residence in Victoria.

The remains are reposing at Col. Goodland's home in the Uplands, from which the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment will take place in St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill.

Inquiry Opens Into Disastrous Fire in Ohio Penitentiary

That Ohio penitentiary guards, numbering 337 on both day and nights shifts, are required to watch 4,300 prisoners at salaries ranging from $130 to $150 a month.

UNDERTAKERS BUSY

While the investigation was under way a corps of undertakers spent a busy day embalming the bodies of the fire victims at an improvised morgue, into which the horticultural building at the State Fair Grounds had been converted.

The number of known dead rose today from an estimate of about 300 this morning and in the prison hospital were 231 injured, five of whom were in a critical condition.

Except for the presence of several companies of soldiers, the last of the troops called last night to maintain order, the interior of the prison resumed a more normal appearance today.

Routine was on schedule. The woolen and cotton mills which had been ignited by flames from G and H cell blocks could not be operated but the 4,000 inmates were kept in their cells until regular feeding time. Later the convicts took their usual exercise in the prison yard.

A check disclosed that one prisoner escaped during the excitement last night and two others are missing. The escaped man is Michael Born, thirty-two, sentenced from Wood County in 1929 to serve one to fifteen years for burglary. Prison officials believe he disguised himself and walked through the main gate.

The missing men are J. B. Boone, of Clinton County, and Charles Knapp, of Summit County.

BOARD INSPECTS CELLS

Before the inquiry board began its investigation it made a trip through the damaged cell ranges. Three members of the board found mute evidence of the swiftness with which the flames and smoke spread.

Convicts had dropped pieces of candy only partly eaten. On the floor of the cells were unopened letters and overturned checker boards indicating that some of the men were at play when overcome. In one cell a water-soaked book lay open on the floor.

Warden Thomas testified he sent Guards Little and Baldwin to the cell blocks with cell keys as soon as the fire was discovered. He said he did not give specific instructions to open the cells but explained that when keys are called for there could be only one use for them.

He said he gave Woodward order to take charge of the situation inside while he went outside to prevent escapes. Prison fires usually are of incendiary origin, and their purpose is to shield an escape plot, he said.

The warden told of watching convicts in dormitories and breaking light bulbs and windows. He said he sent a trusty to release them into the prison yard, but found this had been done by Mrs. Thomas.

LACK OF JUDGMENT

Thomas attributed Watkinson's alleged failure to open the range door to lack of judgment. He said Little and Baldwin exercised common sense in taking the key from him.

Watkinson followed the warden to the stand. He placed the blame on Captain Hall of the night guard, who, he said, had instructed him not to open the ranges. Watkinson testified he stood with the key in the lock and told Hall he was ready to open the door whenever he received the word.

It was at this point that Little and Baldwin stepped in and took the key from him.

The investigation will continue tomorrow.

Governor Cooper took personal interest today in disposing of the bodies of the victims. He said he planned to spend a great deal of time tomorrow making certain the bodies are delivered to relatives for burial.

TWENTY MURDERERS DEAD

More than twenty murderers serving life terms met death last night in the fire, identifications established today disclosed. Virtually all of the 317 victims of the blaze were long-termers, many under sentences of twenty-five and thirty years.

Convicted robbers and burglars led the list of those killed. Among the victims were men sent up for stealing automobiles, criminal assault, pocket-picking and other crimes.

One of the most notorious among the dead was Oren Hill, of Columbus, who met his fate in one of the cells he guarded months ago. Convicted of having aided a convict to escape, Hill, then a guard, became one of the guarded.

Other dead were Charles Poulin, Cleveland bank robber, serving thirty years to life; and Robert Stone, slayer of Henry Thurston, railroad detective and brother of the magician.

Another notorious character who lost his life was Edward Nagel, Jr., thirty-five, Cincinnati hi-jacker and racketeer, serving life for the murder of Ashur Pickens, an insurance agent.

Two other life-termers who perished were Theodore Cotral, forty-four, Dayton, and Walter Dadowski, thirty-eight, of Cleveland. Cotral was sentenced on first degree murder charges for the stabbing of his common law wife, Lula Norman. Dadowski shot and killed his mother-in-law, Elizabeth Twashow.

BUREAU WILL ISSUE 35,000 PAMPHLETS

This year the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau will issue no fewer than 35,000 Vancouver Island folders, as compared with 10,000 of a few years ago. The value of these folders is becoming more and more apparent, and this year Sooke, Parksville, Ucluelet and Qualicum have all entered the race in an attempt to attract visitors. The folder, which will be in the hands of the publicity bureau early next month, will consist of twenty pages, and will give detailed information regarding sightseeing trips, bus routes and air transportation.

Former Resident Of Luxton Buried

The funeral of Mr. Harry Curtis, who for some years after the war farmed his land at Luxton, close to this city, took place from St. Alban's Church, Edmonds, on Monday last, interment taking place in the Church of England Cemetery, New Westminster. Mr. Curtis, who was seventy years of age, was a buyer in England for twenty-five years. During recent years he has been proprietor of the Curtis Stores at Cloverdale.

Sumas Lands Sell Better Under Agency

The Sumas reclaimed lands are now being disposed of rather more rapidly, according to announcement made by Hon. W. Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, on his return to the capital. The handling of the lands is in charge of the selling agents, Fell and Scarff, and already some $275,000 worth of the lands have been disposed of.

Hon. W. Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, says that there has been no option given by this Government on 4,000 acres at $100 an acre. There was some time ago an option given on 1,000 acres at $106 an acre, plus a deferred capital charge of $50 an acre, but that deal did not go through, and the lands have since been given over to a selling agency, Fell and Scarff.

A memorial tablet to Squadron Leader A. G. Jones-Williams and Flight-Lieutenant N. H. Jenkins, who lost their lives in an attempted non-stop flight to the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, was unveiled recently at Northolt Aerodrome, Middlesex, England.

"Teacher of half the Doctors of Europe"

. . . he recommends yeast for 3 great modern ills

Half the great doctors of Europe, it is said, have studied under Dr. Kraus. For 20 years he headed Germany's most important clinic.

For three great health troubles—constipation and disorders of digestion and the skin—Dr. Kraus urges the remarkable food, fresh yeast.

"Until recently," he says, "few people realized that constipation is injurious to the whole system. Drastic cathartics and habit-forming pills often were depended on. Little was done to correct the cause of the condition.

"Yeast stimulates the intestines to normal, healthy action. Regular evacuations occur. Normal digestion is restored. Skin disorders such as pimples and boils are combated."

Follow this great physician's advice! Every day eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast. Each cake is rich in two precious vitamins—B and D. At grocers', restaurants, drug stores and soda fountains. Directions on the label.

READ WHAT THESE GREAT DOCTORS SAY

DR. LORENZO CHERUBINI, Professor of Medical Pathology at the University of Rome, declares: "Yeast is invaluable in treating disturbances of the intestines, of digestion and of the skin."

DR. PAUL GERBER, noted internal specialist, says, "The creation of the 'sunshine' vitamin D by irradiating yeast should be a boon to millions who are indoors most of the day. Vitamin D builds hard bones and teeth and helps keep them strong. Because of its richness in vitamin D and vitamin B, yeast is a source of renewing energy and endurance."

"'Yeast will help you,' my doctor explained—"

(Left) "For some time I had suffered from intestinal trouble," writes MISS NORMA HENDERSON from Toronto (at right, in photograph). "I was very weak, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything. When our doctor was consulted he said he thought yeast would do me a lot of good. And it did! My friends remark on how well I seem."

(Right) "Twenty-four boils—all over my back and shoulders!" writes CLIFTON PRINCE of Worcester, Mass. "I was the most miserable person alive . . . Seeing a cake of yeast under a microscope convinced me. It was full of living yeast plants! I started to eat it and the result was miraculous. Since then all my family have eaten it. A doctor advised it for my grandchild. My son eats it as a laxative and tonic."

Fleischmann's Yeast (with the familiar yellow label) is the only yeast that contains "sunshine vitamin."

MISS GILLESPIE TO SPEAK ON MONDAY TO YOUNG PEOPLE

The young people of all the churches of the city are invited to the mass meeting to be held in the Central Baptist Church and which will be addressed by Miss J. C. Gillespie who will arrive from Japan next Saturday. The meeting has been arranged for Monday next, April 28, at 8 p.m.

The Japan Evangelistic Band, under whose auspices the rally will be held, is an interdenominational missionary socity and its work is aggressively evangelistic. Miss Gillespie has been in Japan for many years and will appear before Victoria gatherings fresh from the field and with a great fund of interesting information and striking, convincing experiences. This meeting is open to all, and a hearty invitation is extended.

Miss Gillespie will also speak at the Sunday morning service in the Central Baptist Church.

"This is enough to try the patience of a Job," exclaimed the vicar to his wife, after reading the newspaper, "Last Sunday I preached from the text, 'Be ye, therefore, steadfast, and the printers have made it read, 'Be ye there for breakfast.'"

EVIDENCE HEARD IN SUPREME COURT ACTION BROUGHT BY MINISTER

Rev. J. S. Patterson Claims Damages From Branson, Brown & Company, Ltd.

Evidence in a suit for damages entered by Rev. John Smith Patterson against Branson, Brown & Co., Limited, was given yesterday in Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Murphy, and further hearing of the action is to proceeded today. Messrs. Hamilton Reid and F. C. Elliott appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. H. A. Maclean, K.C., for the defendant.

Plaintiff in April, 1929, instructed the defendant company to buy for him on margin 63,000 bushels of October wheat, and deposited with the company various marketable securities as collateral in lieu of cash. The price was $1.22½ per bushel. On May 6 the company sold the wheat, partly at $1.14 per bushel and partly at $1.13⅞ per bushel. The company then notified the plaintiff that upwards of $9,000 was due to it from him to cover the decline in price, and that in addition to making over the collateral securities to the company, he would have to pay some $700.

Plaintiff alleges that the value of the marketable securities he had deposited as collateral was some $2,400 in excess of the loss in market value of the wheat at the time he was sold out; and that he was prepared to advance an additional $4,500 to protect his holdings; but that he was sold out without being given the notice to which he was entitled. Defendant alleges that plaintiff was credited with a fair value for his securities, and that he was given reasonable notice.

PLAINTIFF TESTIFIES

Mr. Patterson, called as witness, said that in February he had interviewed Mr. Branson, at the company's office, had been told that it would be quite satisfactory to deposit collateral as security for margin in purchasing wheat, and had been advised to invest in wheat. After some preliminary transactions he had, in April, instructed the company to purchase 63,000 bushels of October wheat in Winnipeg on his account. He had deposited securities to cover a ten-cent margin; and it had been agreed that if the price of wheat should so decline as to make it necessary, he would deposit further collateral.

At 7:30 o'clock in the evening of May 7, he had been called up on the telephone by an official of the company, and had been told that the price of wheat had dropped, so that he would be sold out unless he deposited further collateral. In answer to this he had told the company not to sell and that he would call in the morning with the additional amount required. In the morning he had gone to the office of the company with $4,000 additional marketable securities and $500 in cash. He arrived there at 8:45 o'clock a.m. and was then told that he had been sold out at 6:15 o'clock in the morning; that he had lost all the securities he had put up, and that, in addition, he owed $700. He had told Mr. Humber, the official of the company whom he saw, that he had $4,500 with him which he wished to put up to protect his holdings, but Mr. Humber had replied telling him that it could not be done.

THE OUTCOME

Mrs. Patterson was with him at the time, witness continued, and they had together gone to see Mr. Branson, who had told them that the transaction was closed, except that $700 was due from him to the company. Witness wished for time to consider what to do and had told Mr. Branson so. Witness was about to go on a trip to the Old Country and proposed that the matter should stand over until his return. Mr. Branson had said that he would lay the request before his directors, and witness had later received a letter from the company asking for payment forthwith of the amount it claimed from him.

Witness said that he had later computed the loss on the wheat due to the decline in price and compared it with the market value of the securities deposited as collateral. The latter value he had found to be approximately $2,400 greater than the total amount of the decline in price of the wheat.

Asked if the telephone call at 7:30 p.m., May 7, was the first notification he had from the company that additional margin was needed, witness said that it was. Asked what he could say of any statement that he had been called up and notified earlier in the day, he replied that any such statement would be absolutely untrue. In reply to a further question he said that he had been given no intimation that he would not be on time if he called at the office with the additional security before 9 o'clock in the morning.

TELEPHONE CONVERSATION

Mrs. Patterson testified that on May 7, she and Mr. Patterson had been away from the house all day since between 10 o'clock and 10:30 o'clock in the morning, returning about 6:15 o'clock. No one had telephoned from the company's office before they left the house in the morning. In the evening there had been a telephone call for Mr. Patterson. What Mr. Patterson had said in the conversation which then took place over the telephone had been heard by herself and three others who were there. These were Mr. George Hamilton, Mr. G. Lithwell and Miss Patterson. Witness corroborated Mr. Patterson's account of the conversation. She also corroborated his statement as to taking $4,000 in securities the following morning and $500 in cash, and going to the company's office at 7:45 o'clock.

Miss L. H. Patterson testified that at the time of the transactions in question she was an employee in the offices of the company. On May 7 she had gone to the office as usual before 9 o'clock and had left at 5:30 in the afternoon. She had not been told that her father's account would require further provision for margin and had not been told to take any message to him or to give him any information, although on previous occasions messages had been sent by her. She had heard clearly Mr. Patterson's part of the conversation over the telephone with the company's representative on May 7 at 7:30 p.m. Mr. Patterson had said: "I will be down in the morning and make it right." He had spoken loudly so that his words were distinct.

Later in the evening, when Mr. Patterson had gone out, Mr. Humber, another official of the company, had also telephoned, asking for her father. She had told him that her father would be in later and asked if Mr. Humber would leave his telephone number so that Mr. Patterson could call him up. Mr. Humber had answered: "Tell him not to bother. I am going to bed now." Mr. Humber had not left any message and had not said that her father would be sold out if he did not put up additional collateral before 6:15 o'clock the next morning.

Mr. H. W. Miller, called to testify as an expert in the buying and selling of stocks and bonds, was asked to estimate the selling value of the securities deposited with Branson, Brown & Co. and sold by them as forfeited by Mr. Patterson. He placed this value at $9,915, approximately.

Testimony given by Mr. George Hamilton was put in evidence. It was to the effect that he had heard the telephone conversation at 7:30 p.m., and that this was as Mr. Patterson stated.

DEFENCE EVIDENCE

Called for the defence, Mr. C. L. H. Branson said that an order had been sent in to Winnipeg at 6:14 o'clock to sell 63,000 bushels of wheat, held for Mr. Patterson. This was necessary, he said, to protect themselves from loss. The company was responsible to its agents in Winnipeg for maintaining coverage on wheat held. Wheat had continued to drop, at one time to $1.02 1-2, and to protect his holding Mr. Patterson would have had to put up an additional $12,000 in collateral. Later on, in July, witness said, answering a question, October wheat had jumped to $1.73. When Mr. and Mrs. Patterson had come to see him on the morning of May 8, Mr. Patterson had appeared quite satisfied that the company's action had been a proper one. Mr. Patterson had said nothing to him about having brought additional collateral with him, or being in a position to put up more margin. On the contrary, he had asked for time to pay the $700 asked from him.

Mr. O. M. Prentice gave evidence that on May 7 Mr. Patterson's margin was diminishing and nearly wiped out. When the securities left as collateral by Mr. Patterson were sold by the company, they had realized a net credit to him of $8,938.61 after deducting the company's brokerage charges and other minor amounts.

WHEN MARKET OPENS

Mr. H. A. Humber, called for the defence, said that on May 7 he had instructed Mr. Blythe to call up Mr. Patterson on the telephone at 8 o'clock a.m. to tell him that more protection was needed for his wheat account. Witness had heard Mr. Blythe do so. At 10:40 p.m., witness had called up Mr. Patterson's house, but the latter was not in. Miss Patterson had answered the telephone. He had told her that his instructions were to sell Mr. Patterson out when the market opened unless we received sufficient additional amounts from him to protect his account. In the morning of May 8 witness had gone to the company's office about 5:45 a.m., and had expected Mr. Patterson to call in before 6 o'clock. Witness had kept back the order to sell until 6:15 o'clock. At about 9 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Patterson had come. Mr. Patterson had told him that he had about $4,000 in bonds in his pocket for additional collateral, but witness had not asked him to produce it, as the sale had already taken place. The sale was necessary. Wheat had dropped about eight cents a bushel from the close of the last preceding market day to the close on May 7.

Cross-examined, witness said he had not sent any message by Miss Patterson on May 7. He had not told Mr. Patterson that he would have to be at the office by 6 a.m. if he wished to be there when the market opened. Witness thought that reasonable notice had been given to Mr. Patterson and reasonable opportunity to protect himself.

GRAND BALL OF TRANSPORTATION MEN IS READY

The bus drivers and taxi men are looking for a merry time on May 1, when a grand ball will take place at the New Shrine Auditorium from 9 o'clock to 1 a.m. The public is requested to secure tickets, as the number is limited. They can be obtained at the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Depot, and all other transportation depots, taxi-stands and gas stations, also at David Spencer, Ltd., Morris' Cigar Store, Collender stands, Capitol Palace of Sweets and other cigar stands. The new Pontiac standard sedan will be given away at midnight. This car is now on view at McRae, Meldram Motors, Ltd., 933 Yates Street. An orchestra will be in attendance.

MRS. P. B. SCURRAH

President of the Women's Canadian Club here, who was yesterday nominated by acclamation to attend the conference of Canadian Clubs which will take place in London, Ont., in June.

City & District

Appointed J.P.—Mr. A. N. Middleton, of Vancouver, has been appointed a Justice of the Peace for the Province of British Columbia.

Freak Tulip—A tulip with double blossom from an united stem has been brought to The Colonist office. The grower desires to remain anonymous.

Medical Officer — Dr. L. G. d'Easum, of Hedley, has been appointed medical health officer for Hedley and district, and school health inspector for certain schools in that district.

Relieving Official — Dr. S. W. Leiske has been appointed school health inspector for Deep Cove, North Saanich and Sidney schools, during the illness of Dr. P. J. Emerson.

On Visit to City—Mr. C. D. Stockdill, assistant to Mr. D. C. Coleman, vice-president in charge of Western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, arrived in the city yesterday morning, and will remain here until today. He is accompanied on this occasion by Mrs. Stockdill.

Contract Awarded — The City Council last night accepted the tender of Mr. L. J. Bradshaw for painting the roof of the City Market, at a price of $216, this being the lowest tender. City Building Inspector James Barf was instructed to supervise the work.

Permission Given — Fire Chief Vernon W. Stewart's recommendation that permission be given to Walter Walker & Sons, Limited, to install one gasoline tank, capacity of 2,000 gallons, and one pump on private property on the Industrial Reserve, was approved by the City Council last night.

Here on Exhibition Business—Mr. J. A. Mooney, general manager of the World's Grain Show, which is being held in Regina in 1932, was in the city yesterday conferring with the members of the provincial committee that is associated in the carrying of the plans of the show to a success.

City Watersheds—The Watershed Trespass Exemption By-Law, 1930, by which certain waters and watersheds will be excluded from the operations of provisions of Section 8 of the Victoria City Act, 1930, was reconsidered, adopted and finally passed by the City Council last night.

Clover Point Project—The Chamber of Commerce yesterday morning struck a special committee to co-operate with other Victoria bodies which are interested in taking over Clover Point from the Dominion Government and using it for park purposes. Those forming the committee are: Messrs. R. J. Jameson (chairman), J. Rose, Thomas Scott, H. Lethaby and A. S. Denny.

Land Department — Adopting the recommendation of the finance committee, the City Council last night authorized the city land commissioner to sell on his own responsibility any city owned lots at the regular list price, the usual terms to apply, and assured him, on completion of the necessary documents, that the council would confirm all sales.

Harris Green — The city police commission recently suggested to the civic authorities that the bushes along the curbs of Harris Green, on Pandora Avenue, between Quadra and Cook Streets, be removed. The parks committee reported to the City Council last night that it was not an opportune time to deal with this matter, but it would be given consideration in the Fall of the year.

Expects Dissolution — General A. D. McRae, M.P., was in the city yesterday, accompanied by Mr. T. H. Kirk, M.P.P., conferring with Premier Tolmie and other members of the Government on matters affesting the organization of the province preparatory to the conduct of a vigorous campaign, should the Dominion election be called. General McRae, who is the organizer for the Dominion of the Conservative party, is of the opinion that the election is coming this year.

Largest Party From Here—Up to the present twenty-seven persons have joined the party which Dr. Clem Davies is leading to the Passion Play at Oberammergau. He has been informed by the American Express Company, under whose auspices the tour to Europe will be conducted this Summer, that his group is the largest of any arranged to date. Colorado Springs is second with nineteen. The party will leave Seattle by special coach in the last week of June, in order to join the new motorship Saturnia on July 4 at New York.

Revolver Shooting—During the chief constable's revolver shooting contest, held here on Monday, Detectives Jack Rogers, Marcus Phipps, William Stark, Walter Calwell and Sergeant Thomas W. Hall ran up a grand total of 1,080, composed of 720 for twenty rounds at twenty yards and 360 for twenty rounds at twelve yards, rapid fire. Mr. C. K. Snell was the referee. The contest is Dominion-wide between police teams, from April 21 and 27, and the local score is above the highest for British Columbia during 1929, giving the Victoria team a good chance to win the coveted shield.

AUSTRALIA SOON WILL FLOAT LOAN

(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's)

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 22.—Pursuing its determination not to enter the London money market until conditions are more favorable to the Commonwealth Government, the Federal Loan Council will shortly enter the Australian market with the flotation of a $50,000,000 loan.

CLOVER POINT AREA PROPOSED AS RESERVE

PROTEST LICENCE ON HOTEL SITE

The City Council last night, in adopting a recommendation of the parks committee, decided to ask the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter, I.O.D.E., to use its influence with the Dominion Government to the end that the strip of land between Dallas Road and the sea, extending from Cook Street to Clover Point, be handed over to the city of Victoria for use as a park.

The report of the parks committee on the matter of the Clover Point rifle range, which was approved, read as follows:

"Referring to the suggestion from the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter, I.O.D.E., that the city take immediate steps to secure from the Dominion Government either a lease or gift of this area, together with a grant to assist in the development of the property as a public park.

"This committee is of the opinion that the area referred to should be reserved for use as a public park and suggests that the I.O.D.E. chapter referred to be so advised and requested to use its influence with the Dominion Government to the end that the area may be handed over to the city for use as a park. If this is done, your committee will go as far as possible to improve this area."

BEER LICENCE

The action of Mr. F. M. Preston, city engineer and water commissioner, in voicing protest against the application for a beer licence for the new Goldstream Hotel, which is being built on the original site, was endorsed by the City Council.

Commissioner Preston's letter to the Liquor Control Board on the matter was as follows:

"I note from an advertisement in The Colonist that May G. Miller-Smith is applying for a licence for a new building to be erected on the site of the old Goldstream Hotel.

"Part of the City of Victoria watershed property is very close to this particular spot, and logging operations are now going forward on this part of the city's watershed, and I am personally of the opinion that the granting of this licence would not be in the public interest.

"No doubt you will remember that not so long ago, a similar application was refused for the building situated at the corner of the intersection of the Old Sooke Road and the Island Highway.

"The enforcement of the Provincial Health Regulations with regard to our watersheds is not easy, and I am afraid that the granting of the requested licence would only make the task harder."

Skeleton of Man Found on Shore Of Jervis Inlet

VANCOUVER, April 22. — The skeleton of a man has been found on the shore of Vancouver Bay, Jervis Inlet, according to a brief wire received by the British Columbia Police in Vancouver from Powell River. The wire states that the skeleton may be that of Charles Johnson, who was lost some years ago.

The police launch P.M.L. No. 3 will leave tonight or on Wednesday to investigate.

PEASANT COSTUMES TURN MOURNING

Rumanian Village Witnesses Sad Spectacle of Funeral of Fire Victims

By A. R. DECKER

VIENNA, Austria, April 22.—Gay peasant costumes in the Rumanian village of Coteshti have given place to garb of mourning for the victims of the church fire, which entrapped the congregation on Good Friday night. Yesterday 108 dead were buried. Two other churchgoers are not expected to survive.

Comparatively few of the victims were killed by burns. Most of the deaths occurred from the smoke and gas, and by beams when the roof fell. Among the dead are sixteen choir boys, aged twelve to fourteen. A restaurant keeper died together with his six children, and another man perished with his four children.

A collection is being taken up throughout Rumania for the survivors and families of the unfortunates. Premier Juliu Maniu has visited the scene of the disaster.

MODEL "ASSEMBLY" PLEASES TEACHERS

VANCOUVER, April 22. — Distinctly unique in its design, remarkable for its regard to detail and vivid in its portrayal the "Model Assembly of the League of Nations," as presented by the Modern History Club of the Victoria High School, assisted by students of nine Vancouver schools, provided a pleasing feature of the convention of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation at the Auditorium tonight.

MODERN STAGE NEEDS SUPPORT

MISS LILLIAN CHRISTINE, ADDRESSES WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB

No Comparison Between Well-Played Stage Play and Finest "Talkie," Speaker Maintains

There can surely be no comparison between the well-played stage play and the finest "talkie," maintains Miss Lillian Christine, leading lady of the Gordon McLeod Players, who was the speaker at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon. In connection with her clever talk on "The Drama," Miss Christine made an eloquent little plea for the support of the spoken play, which, unless it returned to something of its erstwhile popularity from the box office point of view, was doomed to extinction. The "talkie" could give much more elaborate scenic effect and greater detail, as far as the eye was concerned, than the stage play. But surely the stage gave something which the screen lacked, a human touch, a sense of the personality, and for that reason was entitled to preservation.

"I feel that it is through the children of the present day that the theatre is to be saved, and this must be effected by educating their theatre sense. In Victoria there must be hundreds of boys and girls who have never seen a real play. I am not asking you to keep them away from the cinema. I go to the cinema myself. But I do ask you to encourage them to go to the theatre as well so that they can judge for themselves," urged the speaker.

Interest in Miss Christine and her subject was shown in the unusually big attendance, the ballroom being crowded. Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, the president, caused some laughter when, in referring to Miss Christine's versatility as an actress, she recalled that among other things she had on one occasion taken the role of Harry Lauder's wife. At the close of the lecture, after Mrs. P. E. Corby had moved a cordial vote of thanks, the speaker was presented by the president with a bouquet. The musical programme was particularly pleasing, Miss Marguerite Van Vooght, pupil of Gertrude Huntly Green, giving two beautifully played numbers, Schubert's "Impromptu in B Flat" and "Old Vienna" (Godowsky), and Mr. McGrath, of the Gordon McLeod Players Company, and the possessor of a pleasing tenor, singing three numbers, "Iris" (Edward Teschemacher and Gwynne Davis), "Bedouin Love Song" (Ciro Pinsuti), and, as an encore, Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve."

HISTORY OF DRAMA

Miss Christine prefaced her talk on the drama by expressing her appreciation of the many kindnesses she had experienced from the women of Canada. Theatrical life was not without its hardships, but these had been made bearable by the friendship encountered on all sides.

"The basis of all art is religion. It is certainly the strongest force behind dramatic art," the speaker claimed in opening her address. Primitive man, wherever his home, whatever the age, had employed music and the dance in the worship of his gods. The origin of the Greek drama was the ceremonial connected with the worship of Bacchus. From this ancient time she followed the history of the drama, through the miracle plays performed in the churches in the middle ages up to the first beginnings, in Europe, of the secular theatre. This was in the sixteenth century. The first little company had started in 1528, being composed of a group of vagabond comedians, who carried their own scenery, but had to invent their dialogue as they went along. By the end of the century this style of entertainment had invaded Italy, France, Spain and England. Then had come the Elizabethan era, which gave the world the greatest of all dramatists, Shakespeare, who brought patriotism as well as humanity to the drama.

Briefly she reviewed the development of the modern drama, one of the samples of which singled out for special reference was "Journey's End," "the greatest of all war plays."

Miss Christine justified the use of exaggeration in certain things connected with the theatre—accessories, for instance. The stage today, however, used a very mild form of exaggeration when compared to the Greek classical stage, which, in order to impress the vast audiences in great auditoriums where the actor's natural proportions and expression would have been entirely inadequate, developed masks, towering head-dresses, greatly padded figures, and thick-soled shoes, which, all told, developed their stature to an average height of seven feet six inches. All the roles were acted by men, and the mask, therefore, had to signify not only the age, the mood, the character, but the sex of the actor. Today, although expressional effects were still exaggerated, the tendency was toward the natural.

Women's Provincial Command Plans Meet Here in May

THE Women's Provincial Command, Canadian Legion, and all auxiliaries affiliated with it will hold a convention in Victoria on May 15-16. Mrs. Bloomfield, zone representative, has arrangements well in hand, and a meeting is to be held on Sunday next at a place to be named later.

Mother Would Like to See Sons Marry

THE PHOTOGRAPHS here show Queen Mary of England and three of her sons, chief figures in a biography of the Queen written by Mrs. Cavendish, and just published. (1) Prince of Wales, whose unmarried state, according to the biographer, his mother, Queen Mary, feels keenly. The Queen has decided views on marriage, so the chronicler states, particularly the unmarried state of three of her sons. (2) Portrait of Queen Mary of England, taken in 1928. (3) Prince Henry, Duke of Gloucester, who was suggested by the biographer as an admirable governor-general for the Dominion, and (4) Prince George, youngest son of Queen Mary.

St. John's Scene of East Wedding

Miss Cecilia Ethel Passmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Crosson, Mary Street, was married to Mr. Albert Edgar Nex, second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nex, Montreal Street, at St. John's Church on Wednesday, April 16. Rev. Canon Chadwick officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. Crosson, and wore a charming gown of ivory crepe back satin, with uneven hemline, shirred bodice and long, tight-fitting sleeves. Her embroidered veil of Brussels net was held with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried Ophelia roses, Calla lilies and white sweet peas and carnations.

Mrs. Alec Wallace was matron of honor, wearing a gown of peach taffeta and silver lace, and a large lace straw hat to match, trimmed with long streamers. Her flowers were tulips, sweet peas and carnations.

The two bridesmaids, Miss Freda Rippingale and Miss Mary Nex, wore taffeta frocks in shades of orchid and pale green, respectively, with lace straw hats to match, trimmed with streamers. Their bouquets were of tulips, sweets peas and carnations.

Mr. Herbert Bradley was best man, and the ushers were Mr. W. Passmore and Mr. R. Nex. Mrs. Harry Wilkinson sang "O Promise Me" during the service.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, who wore a smart ensemble, and the mother of the groom in a blue flat crepe gown and hat to match. The reception rooms were artistically decorated.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. S. Hallett, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hallett and Miss Irene Hallett, all of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. R. Frew, of Wellington, B.C., and Mr. E. Leask, Cowichan Lake.

Assisting in receiving the many guests were Misses Claire Watcher, Topsy Ellie, Jo Pollard, Annie and Edith Nex, Louise Van Maastricht, Flo and Winnie Abbott and Beth and Grace Stewart. The many beautiful gifts included a walnut mantel clock from the Union Oil Company staff and service stations. The bridegroom is a partner of the Fountain service station of the Union Oil Company.

The bride and groom left on the midnight boat for Vancouver, from where they will motor to California, where the honeymoon will be spent, and on their return will reside in Victoria.

The bride traveled in a silk ensemble in Independence blue suede crepe, with hat to match, and a fawn coat, and with these she carried a golden muskrat coat, the gift of the bridegroom.

During the recent annual census of homeless persons in London, forty-one men and ten women were found one night in the crypt of the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields.

BOOKMAKERS ON STRIKE

When a totalizator was installed recently in the shilling enclosure at the Aiblon Greyhound Race Course, at Glasgow, Scotland, the bookmakers went on strike. Incensed at the absence of the "bookies," the crowd threw the bookmakers' stands and stools on to the course during the races and afterwards rushed the railings and entered the tote enclosure. Police reinforcements were necessary to restore order.

One of the locust swarms in the Jericho area this year was five miles long and one mile wide.

Soft as Springtime

Women are turning to Modess for comfort

Gracious softness, a yielding pliancy, rounded sides which cannot irritate, greater absorbency—these refinements assure greater comfort.

Trained nurses in our employ have interviewed thousands of women. Practically without exception, women who have used Modess tell these nurses that they prefer it because of its greater comfort and efficiency.

We have discovered that the saleswomen in the stores carrying it almost invariably prefer Modess for their own use. This fact alone has influenced many customers to try Modess.

These few simple proofs that every woman who tries Modess is impressed by its fineness will, we hope, encourage you to test it yourself. Buy one box of Modess. We will be surprised if you are not convinced that it is far superior to the kind you have been using.

SHE THOUGHT:
"Nice boy—but 'B. O.' makes you impossible."

Yet, to be polite, SHE SAID:
"I'm terribly sorry—but I won't be in any night this week."

Girls liked him at first

(Body Odor)

SHE DID so hate to turn him down again. He was good-looking, agreeable, just the type she liked. But what could she do? "B.O."—body odor. No, she couldn't overlook that.

Fortunately he discovered his fault later and the simple way to correct it. Today he's well liked—welcomed everywhere—engaged to the very girl who once thought him "impossible."

"B.O."—we all need to guard against it! Even in winter our pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste daily. We become so used to this familiar odor that we don't notice it in ourselves. But the least trace of "B.O." is instantly apparent to others.

Yet, it's easy to avoid offending. Just wash and bathe with Lifebuoy, the delightfully refreshing toilet soap millions love. Its mild, abundant, deep-cleansing antiseptic lather purifies pores—quickly ends "B.O." Its pleasant, extra-clean scent, that vanishes as you rinse, tells you Lifebuoy purifies!

Pupils Give Concert

Mrs. Ruby Moore's pupils gave a short concert on Saturday afternoon in the presence of an audience of parents and other friends, the following taking part: Violin, Margaret Hembrow, Jim Smith, Gladys Keir, Albert Tilley, Melbourne Little, Georgie Little and Jack Moore; piano, Rosamond and Dorothy Jones, Ruth and Faith Goodwin, Vera Tilley, Olive Kilby, Marjorie Murray, Vera Larsen, Mollie, Betty and Ian Llewellyn. Ian Llewellyn conducted an ensemble number which was notable for its fine rhythmical effect.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

Unless coats are slightly restrained in their treatment of flares they are in tiers. In either case the long, slim silhouette is retained, and hiplines are moulded. The flared models are either nipped in at the waistline by virtue of their cut or snugly belted, permitting graceful fulness somewhere below the knees. A slight bloused effect is general in coats developed of both sports and dressy fabrics. Soft woolens, finely woven tweeds, moracain and heavy silk crepe adhere consistently to these sartorial dictates. Characteristic of tiered models is that of soft basket-weave beige wool sketched above.

Furs are coming out flatly for Spring coats. The most important are black galyak. Bands of this sleek black fur are found developing scarfs, banding collars and capelets, and decorating sleeves on models of all colors. There is something distinctly tailored and neat about galyak that has given it enviable popularity in this late 1930 mode. It is not then surprising to learn that the scarf collar of this smart coat is of black galyak.

Many Attend Thankoffering Meeting

The Easter thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S. of the First United Church was held at noon on Monday in the Sunday school auditorium. One hundred and twenty-five persons sat down to luncheon, and following this, the president, Mrs. W. E. McIntyre, took the chair. Mrs. Bowden sang a number of charming songs, accompanied by the organist, Mr. Guerney. Mrs. Cousland read a portion of Scripture and Mrs. Clarke, of Gordon Head, read a paper on "The Doukhobors." Mrs. Gibson gave an interesting talk on "The Japanese in This Country." Mrs. Faker spoke on "The Ukranian Settlers in Canada." Mrs. Campbell, the treasurer, reported that the sum of $145 had resulted from the thankoffering collection. Mrs. Howell led in prayer of consecration. Mrs. McKillop presented a decorated Easter basket, which had been sent by Mrs. Nasmith, superintendent of the Mission Band, who was unable to be present. The following ladies were presented with a gift from the basket: Mrs. Welton, honorary president; Mrs. McLennan, ex-treasurer; Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, whose presence after a serious illness was welcomed; Mrs. Campbell, treasurer; Mrs. D. Smith, secretary; Miss Rattray, who is Mrs. Nasmith's assistant; Mrs. Hood, presbyterial president; Mrs. Drake and Mrs. McKillop, a teacher of the young ladies' Bible class. Mrs. Hood then gave a gracious Easter message. The meeting closed with the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and the Mizpah benediction.

Dance at Port Renfrew Aids Solarium Fund

A very successful five hundred party and dance was held in Cathels & Sorenson's Hall, Port Renfrew, on Saturday, April 12, and the proceeds, $100, donated to the Solarium. Much credit is due to Messrs Cathels & Sorenson for the use of the hall and also to Mr. and Mrs. Duval, Mrs. Perry, Messrs. I. Halvorson, T. Karlson and Captain Goodwin.

"PRISONER" WILL NOT LEAVE

Lewisham, England, police have a prisoner in a cell of their station which they are anxious to get rid of, but has no desire to go. It is a large swan, which alighted in a busy street and tied up traffic. Two even larger policemen finally captured it. Police reports show that it has a large appetite and no friends.

CHAPTER XXVIIII

Rhynsault was gone, dragged out by the men-at-arms. The Grand Master had departed, and Johanna returned to her room in the Lion of Brabant.

A little later a tall, cloaked figure came striding down the street and across the threshold of the inn. Presently a knock fell upon her door, and, when it opened in answer to her bidding, the tall figure stood there under the lintel, the cloak now loosened, the head bare. She fell to trembling violently, as with a half-stifled cry she rose from her window-seat.

"Are you content, Johanna?"

"Content?" she echoed. "He is dead, and I am living. Am I the cleaner by his death? Not all his blood could wash out one spot of my defilement."

"Defilement?" quoth he, and frowned.

"What else? What else do you account it?"

"Purity," he added, "is of the soul; and over your white soul, Johanna, Rhynsault possessed no empire."

"Yet the world . . ." she was beginning.

"Ah, leave the world," he bade her, and took her hand. "Or face it under the shelter of my name."

"Your name?"

"I am asking you to be my countess, Johanna. It is more than I ever hoped would be permitted me by fate. I will make amends to you, my dear, for all the suffering you have borne."

She set a hand upon his shoulder, turned her face upwards, and frankly met the sombre gaze of his dark eyes now full of pain. "I shall thank Heaven every night of my life that you have sought me, Anthony; for in the pride you have brought me, you have restored to me all that I had lost. But we must go our separate ways."

He strove to move her from this by every argument a lover knows. But she remained unshaken.

"You are a great prince and I am the daughter of a merchant and the widow of another merchant. We are not matched as the world judges."

"The world! The world!" he cried impatiently. "What have we to do with the world?"

"Merely to live in it," said she.

He bowed to her will when that befell. "I will not press you further now. But I am as certain that the destiny which has made clear at last the path will not suffer us to end our lives apart." Abruptly he asked her: "Whither do you go, Johanna?"

She told him that she would be returning to her father's house in Flushing.

She suffered him to kiss her at parting. It was their first kiss, and her own firm resolve that it should be their last.

Next morning early she departed from Brussels, her mission there so singularly accomplished. If she bore sorrow and longings with her, yet she bore more peace than she had ever hoped to know again.

Behind her, however, she left little peace in the heart of Anthony. And to his unrest on her behalf was presently to be added unrest on quite other grounds. For at noon that day, to the amazement of all, the Duke, attended by a small company of men-at-arms, rode into Brussels and straight to the palace. In spite of all precautions, the news of Rhynsault's arrest had gone after his highness, reached him as he was about to embark at Sluys, and brought him back in a towering rage.

It was fortunate, thought the Grand Master, when he beheld the furious Duke come striding into his closet, that he had caused execution to follow so swiftly upon the heels of sentence.

"You know why I am here!" the Duke blazed at him.

Count Anthony had risen. He strove successfully for calm to meet this onslaught. "An event of yesterday has probably been misrepresented to you."

"Misrepresented? Yes, if you mean that it is untrue that Rhynsault has been tried and executed for the affair of Middelburg. You have dared to abuse my trust! Dared to trump up this business and to reverse the judgment which I myself already had pronounced! That is to push temerity singularly far. It is something for which you may have to meet a heavy reckoning."

"You have, indeed, been misinformed," said the Count. "It will save time if you read the judgment, which was set down in detail by the clerks. There you will find that the matter upon which I judged him was not at all the matter upon which you acquitted him. He was indicted for high treason. But read the judgment for yourself." And he proffered it.

Before so much apparent calm, arguing an easy conscience, the Duke's wrath took pause. Swiftly he read the document thrust upon him. But not to the end. Two-thirds of the way through, he flung it down.

"Trickery!" he roared. "Sheer trickery!"

"You cannot have observed that the judgment was pronounced not by me, but by your own judge. After that I had no alternative but to sentence him to death."

"You coerced them into it. You duped them! But you do not dupe me! You knew that I valued this man, that he had served me well, and that I needed him in Ghent. And you have deprived me of him to satisfy an obstinacy of your own. Of what did you accuse him? Of subverting my justice to serve his own ends, was it not? That shall be your own indictment." And he swung in his passion upon a cowering page of the Count's. "Summon me the guard, boy."

"The guard!" said Count Anthony. "Charles, you cannot arrest me. I am a Prince of Guelders."

"If you were the Pope of Rome and, having accepted the office of Grand Master here, had so misused it, I should arrest you and bring you to account."

"You will regret this when you are calm."

"As you will regret having taken off Rhynsault's head. The audacity of you!" He advanced upon him in his fury, and suddenly putting forth his hand seized the emblem of the Golden Fleece that hung upon Count Anthony's neck. With a wrench he snapped the chain that carried it, and so tore it from him. "You wear that no longer, sir. If I am Duke of Burgundy, a hempen collar shall take its place."

Count Anthony stiffened. "You dishonored that collar, Charles, when you thought to hang it about the filthy neck of your knave Rhynsault. My only regret at being deprived of it concerns the way in which you have taken it."

Count Anthony's arrest made some stir. His brother, Adolph, posted off to Nimeguen with the news, and from the old Duke of Guelders came strong representations to the Duke of Burgundy, which the Duke of Burgundy entirely disregarded.

The trial followed ten days later, presided over by the Duke in person, and was attended by as much of Brussels as could pack itself into the great hall of the palace, where it was publicly held. Count Anthony had demanded trial by the Chapter of the Golden Fleece, as was his right. The Duke had trampled upon that right, as he was prepared at all times to trample upon every right that stood in the way to his self-willed ends.

But he was to make the discovery that there were certain things upon which he could not trample. One of these things was the law, however much he might boast that the law was embodied in himself. After all, he sat with judges, the same judges who had sat with Count Anthony; and scowl upon them, browbeat them though he might, he could not move them from the interpretation that Count Anthony, ably arguing, compelled them to put upon it.

"I take my stand with confidence," he said in answer to the accusation of abuse of trust, "upon the indictment of the Sire de Rhynsault. That indictment was found to be justified by the fact upon which it was based. The fact was subsequently established by the confession of the accused himself. To charge me with having used this matter of a reprieve to pronounce a judgment counter to the wishes of your highness is by implication to accuse your highness of subverting the law of which you are the sacred custodian to private purposes of your own."

Although his temerity in this last may have appalled the judges, upon the soundness of his main argument they were not to be shaken.

"We find," said their dean and spokesman, the same who had urged Count Anthony's delay in the execution of Rhynsault, "that the utmost complaint justly to be made against the Grand Master is of having acted with unnecessary precipitancy in the execution of the sentence. But that is not an offence at law, and it is not lawful to frame a law to meet an event subsequent to that event's occurrence."

To which Count Anthony had ventured to reply that the senior judge had contradicted himself. Because, if a thing were not an offence at law, it could not justly be termed in a court of justice a ground for just complaint against any man.

Thus was the Duke balked of his angry aims and compelled to pronounce the acquittal of the Count, the more incensed against him because the necessity was imposed upon him by the craftiness with which Count Anthony had gone to work in the matter of Rhynsault.

But though he acquitted him, see him again he would not. On his return to his apartments in the palace, an officer brought the Count a brief note in which he was requested to depart the Duke's dominions within twenty-four hours. Disobedience of this order of exile must, of course, be attended by very serious consequences. Because of the love that had existed between them, Count Anthony begged a last audience of Charles. This was refused him. Disgraced and banished, the Count set out for Guelders on the morrow.

Curved Lines in Lingerie

CREATORS of intimate apparel gradually are surrendering the straight line to the modified silhouette in which natural curves are emphasized. While fairly straight lines still exist to some extent, the more fitted garment will predominate.

Whether it is a chemise, a step-in, princess slip, or nightrobe, it is newest when cut with fitted bodice and a gentle flare to the bottom. The lines thus are smooth, avoid abruptness and are in perfect harmony with outer wear. Clusters of fine pleats, however charming they may appear, are not an aid to smooth contours when figure lines are so moulded in dresses and even in suits.

Crepe de Chine and crepe satin, wisely used with either surface, are the two materials most favored by French as well as American designers. Georgette and some rather sheer printed silks make an occasional garment.

The tailored type of lingerie continues for day wear ultra simple in design but skilfully adapted to the modified silhouette. Lace trimmings take precedence in the expression of the very feminine mode. While several laces are employed for diversity, the favorite is alencon in natural or ecru shades.

The simplicity of the lace-trimmed chemise is apparent in the model at the left, which merely suggests the princess line with a slight curve-in at the waist.

Adapted well to sports and warm weather wear is the model of silk which combines a step-in with a brassiere, the latter cut to be almost without a back. The step-in section is made with a dart at the hips in front and very fitted in the brassiere.

Should one prefer a less severely styled garment, there is a new silhouetted version combining the step-in and pantie, the latter cut with a fitted yoke and the former scant but blousing a wee bit at the waistline to allow freedom in raising the arms, bending and such movements.

Feminine and lovely indeed are the nightrobe ensembles, generally fashioned in crepe satin with the lustrous side out. Much lace is used to further the feminine appearance, hemlines droop toward the back, and the gown is matched by a long coat having the same dipping lines. Either the gown is belted or cut to accentuate the high waistline. The coat sleeves are belled at the wrist.

COST OF LIVING STILL ON DECLINE

By THOMAS WAYLING

(Special to The Colonist. Copyright, 1930.)

OTTAWA, April 21.—The cost of living in Canada is still on the decline. The statisticians of the Federal Government report that wholesale prices in the Dominion are the lowest since October, 1916. Based on 1926 as 100, the March, 1930, index was 91.9 as against 94 in February.

Vegetable products dropped from 88.7 in February to 86 in March, and there were lower quotations in sugar, grains and rubber. Animal products dropped three points, as well as salmon, butter and eggs. Textiles dropped 1 1-2 points. Raw and partly manufactured goods were lower because of the reduced prices for grain, tin, wool, silk, rubber and cotton. Fully and chiefly manufactured goods were down a point.

The weakness of the wheat market has had a good deal to do with present lower prices. On March 13, cash wheat at Winnipeg closed at 100 7-8 and on March 21 the exportable surplus was 156,147,327 bushels.

Witness (in assault case at North London)—My wife flicked him in the face with her glove, and, as a gentleman of course, he struck her back and pushed her down the stairs.

Mrs. Quack Gets Her Corn

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Judge not all men by just a few;
'Twould be unfair this thing to do,
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Peter Rabbit would like to have talked all night with Mrs. Quack at the Smiling Pool, but Mrs. Quack was tired and presently she rejoined the other ducks and Peter was left alone. Now, Peter is a good-natured little fellow. He remembered what Mrs. Quack had said about wishing that she might have a dinner of corn. He remembered it and he wished with all his might that he could tell Farmer Brown's Boy that Mr. and Mrs. Quack and their friends had arrived and wanted some corn. But he couldn't. Of course not. There wasn't any way for him to tell Farmer Brown's Boy.

Peter was so excited by the return of the Quacks that he decided not to go home that night. Of course, he should have been home by daylight. He should have been in the dear Old Briar Patch. But he wasn't. He was still over there in the alder swamp on the edge of the Smiling Pool where the Laughing Brook comes in. Mr. and Mrs. Quack and their six friends were awake very early in the morning. Peter could hear them talking together in low tones. He couldn't hear what they were saying, but he could tell that they were deciding on something very important.

"I hear a dog," said she. "I hear a dog barking."

After a while Mrs. Quack swam over near Peter. "Good morning, Peter," said she. "I have some news for you."

"What is it?" cried Peter eagerly.

"We have decided to stay here to rest for another day," replied Mrs. Quack. "We were going on, but Mr. Quack and I are very fond of the Smiling Pool, so we have decided to stay another day. You see, too, we can easily get to the Big River where the wild rice grows."

"I am glad you are going to stay," cried Peter. "I do wish Farmer Brown's Boy would bring some corn over here for you."

Suddenly Mrs. Quack lifted her head high and sat very still listening. "I hear a dog," said she. "I hear a dog barking. I have never heard that dog before when I have been here."

Peter cocked his ears and listened. Then he grinned. "That's a new dog," said he. "That's a new dog living at Farmer Brown's. He isn't a bit like Bowser the Hound. He's little and quick. I have to watch out when he's around. If you'll excuse me, I guess I'll go and see where he is."

So Peter Rabbit hopped along up through the alders and finally poked his head out where he could look across the Green Meadows. Flip the Terrier was racing about just for the fun of running and all the time barking. Back of him was Farmer Brown's Boy and at the heels of Farmer Brown's Boy trotted Bowser the Hound.

"I wish," thought Peter, "that I could get Farmer Brown's Boy over here to the Smiling Pool. If he could once see those Ducks, I know he would get some corn for them. I know what I'll do. I'll go back and tell Mrs. Quack to fly over to the Big River. If she and her friends will do that, Farmer Brown's Boy will be sure to see them."

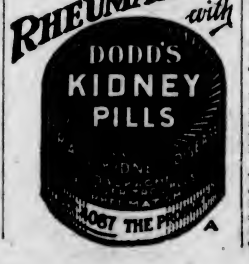

So Peter hurried back to the Smiling Pool. "Farmer Brown's Boy and that dog I told you about and Bowser the Hound are coming!" cried Peter. He hadn't intended to frighten Mrs. Quack, but this is just what he did do. Mrs. Quack at once gave the alarm signal and took to the air. All the other Ducks followed. They headed straight for the Big River.

Peter stared after them for a moment. Then he scampered back to a hiding place in the alder swamp. For a long time nothing happened. Then Farmer Brown's Boy suddenly appeared on the bank of the Smiling Pool. He began throwing corn out into the water. Peter grinned. He knew then that Farmer Brown's Boy had seen Mrs. Quack and her friends when they flew to the Big River. So it was that when they returned at dusk that night they had their dinner of corn.

Relieve RHEUMATISM with DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

IS GRANDMOTHER AT THIRTY-THREE

(Special to The Colonist. Copyright, 1930.)

TORONTO, April 20.—The claim of Mrs. R. Tawse to being the youngest grandmother in Toronto is disputed. Against Mrs. Tawse's proud announcement that she became a grandmother at thirty-four, Mrs. Hugh Bell, another Toronto woman places the statement that in June of last year she became a grandmother at thirty-three.

Mrs. Bell was married in 1910, when she was fifteen years of age. A daughter was born, who sixteen years later became Mrs. Evelyn Barr. On June 6, 1929, a daughter was born to Mrs. Barr, who was then just seventeen.

Mrs. Tawse was sixteen when she was married. In ten months there was a little Tawse, who followed his mother's example and married at sixteen. Now he is a father.

Japan Will Be Big Threat in Quest of Famous Davis Cup

Japanese Net Stars Will Present Strong Front, Says Wm. T. Tilden—Have Excellent Chance to Reach Interzone Final

By WILLIAM T. TILDEN II

MONTE CARLO, April 19.—In starting a series of articles on the teams which must be considered as possible challengers of France in the Davis Cup, I suppose one should start with the United States, last year's challenger, but I prefer climax to anticlimax, so will write first of the outstanding playing strength in the European zone before taking up the United States. There are four real threats in the European zone, any one of which may reach the interzone final. These are Japan, Italy, England and Australia.

Bill Tilden

I will write first of Japan.

The Japanese team consists of Takeichi Harada, Yoshiro Ohta, Tameo Abe and the new star, Satoh, first name undiscovered by me. This is a group of seasoned and experienced players with the exception of Satoh.

HARADA GREAT PLAYER

"Takey" Harada made his first appearance in Davis Cup play in 1924. He represented Japan in 1925, 1926 and 1927. It was in 1926 that he first proved his right to be considered among the great players in the world when he beat Little Bill Johnston, at Newport, and followed this up by beating both Cochet and Lacoste in the Davis Cup match.

This seemed to be the high point of Harada's career, for the following year he went into a slump from which he did not recover until this Winter. He did not play on the Japanese Davis Cup team of 1928 or 1929, but last December he once more beat Henri Cochet during the trip of the French players to Japan. Then Harada, was himself again. During the two years since I had seen him, I found he had increased the power of his service and improved his volley.

Today Harada is a fine all court player. He drives with terrific power, forehand and backhand. He is about the hardest hitter now in the game. His service is speedy and carries a good spin. His volleying is still uncertain, but far better than it was. Overhead, he is sound and severe. Harada uses the peculiar unorthodox grip of the Japanese stars and his ground strokes, particularly his forehand ones, carry an exaggerated topspin.

Harada is a possible point winner for Japan against any team. He should win at least one, if not two, singles in each tie.

The second singles position is still uncertain, but lies between Satoh and Ohta. Personally, I consider Satoh decidedly superior. Ohta is a baseline player with the exaggerated topspin ground strokes of his national style—a player of great courage, resource and stamina, but so limited in stroke equipment that I cannot see him a point winner against teams like England, Italy or Australia. His limitations are too definite, his weaknesses too easy to exploit.

SATOH TO PLAY SECOND?

I expect to see Satoh play the second single. Satoh, in my opinion, is the greatest potential player of any Japanese I have seen, because his style is classic, clean cut, almost American or French in its stroke production. He has none of the unorthodox grip or exaggerated topspin of his teammates. He is a strong player of ease, grace and remarkable subtlety. His service is a well placed, average pace slice of reliability, but not great offensive strength.

Both Satoh's forehand and backhand are accurate, flat drives, which he uses with consummate skill. He disguises his direction brilliantly. His volleying is sound, not particularly severe but adequate, while overhead he is magnificent. I see no weaknesses to Satoh's stroke equipment. He lacks the punishing power of Harada, but his game has far more variety. It is a more modern style.

One cannot yet tell what Satoh will show in the strain of Davis Cup matches. I have played against him twice in doubles on the Riviera and found him a cool, dangerous, fighting opponent. He is a man of great physical strength, apparently tireless, and of most remarkable quickness. I have been tremendously impressed by him, although he has not found his true game on the Riviera.

I would not be surprised to see Satoh win one or both singles in the Davis Cup against any man in the European zone.

The last member of the Japanese team, Tameo Abe, is the finest doubles player of any Japanese. Abe is not a great singles player. I would place him behind all three of his teammates, but in doubles I believe he is the best. This is due to his magnificent volleying, crushing overhead and his clever use of short angle shots in returning service.

There is a good old maxim in the tennis world that any Japanese team is a mark in doubles, but I believe this year will prove a very different story. I have twice played Harada and Satoh on the Riviera, and twice met Abe with other partners, and can say that neither team proved easy. Harada is not a good doubles player, but certainly Abe is, and Satoh is close behind Abe.

If the Japanese who, for some reason, are still uncertain about the doubles team, pair Abe with Satoh, then they have a combination which may win points against any team in the Davis Cup matches. I believe Abe and Satoh would have at least an even chance, if not better, against either Morpurgo and Gaslini, of Italy, or Gregory and Collins, of England. Only Crawford and Hopman, or Moon and Willard, of Australia, have the edge on them in the European zone.

To sum up my impressions of Japan's chances to reach the interzone final of the challenge round, I would say that if they play Harada and Satoh in singles, and Abe and Satoh in doubles, they have an excellent chance to come through. Harada may well win two singles and Satoh one, or even if they win but two singles between them, Abe and Satoh may pick up the third point in the doubles.

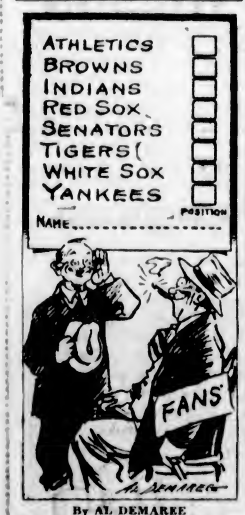

If, on the other hand, Ohta is used in the singles instead of Satoh, or Abe is omitted from the doubles, then I believe the chances are against the Japanese winning the European zone.

It seems to me that Satoh is the pivotal player of the Japanese team.

I am counting on Harada finding and holding his best form which should make him a certain winner of at least one single in each match. If Satoh fulfills his promise and can come through with a point in either singles or doubles, then the Japanese are a serious contender for the challenge round itself.

Much depends on the rapidity with which these Japanese become acclimated and accustomed to conditions. It was only in flashes that they played their best tennis on the Riviera, but when they did, they definitely showed they are a most dangerous team.

Mark 'Em as They Will Finish

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Manager McGraw of the New York Giants has a slogan which goes as follows:

"The managers and players can fool themselves but they can't fool the fans!" And it is the truth. The fans after all are the final judges. They are the ones that keep the turnstiles clicking merrily and keep the old game going.

In my above cartoon I am giving the fans opportunity to mark the positions they think the various clubs in the American League will finish next Fall.

Send in your ballots to this paper, fans, and in the next few weeks I will be able to give a comprehensive opinion of the way the fans all over the country dope them to finish.

WOMEN WILL COMPETE FOR CLUB HONORS

MRS. E. JACKSON DEFENDING CHAMP

Fair sex members of the Uplands Golf Club will congregate at the clubhouse next Saturday to tee off in the qualifying round of the club championship, according to the information received from Mrs. R. A. Semple, women's club captain. As in previous years a large and select field is expected to face the starter when the barrier goes up, and some fine competition will, no doubt, be seen before the 1930 champion is named.

Entries will close on Thursday evening at 5 o'clock and all members intending to enter are asked to place their names with the secretary at the clubhouse not later than the scheduled time. At the present close to thirty of the best women exponents of the Royal and Ancient game at the club have signified their intention of competing for the honors.

Mrs. E. Jackson, who romped through a brilliant field yast year, to capture the title, will again be among the starters. The defending champion is a fine steady player and therefore when the barrier is sprung she will leave the first tee a strong favorite to repeat her performance of twelve months ago.

However, Mrs. Jackson will have plenty of stiff opposition and it is predicted that she will have to be in fine form to come through for a second consecutive win. Mrs. Cecil Eve, who displayed sparkling form in 1929, to waltz off with the laurels, is in the field with high hopes of regaining her lost crown. Other first stringers are Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. McFarlane, Miss Bone and several others who have excelled in club competitions during the season.

MRS. E. JACKSON

Who will defend her club championship at the Uplands Golf Club on Saturday, when the members will tee off in the qualifying round. Mrs. Jackson is playing fine golf at the present time and will enter the fray a strong favorite to retain her laurels.

ARSENAL TOUR NOT CANCELED

United States Football Association Heads Stand by Agreement—Old Country Club Silent

NEW YORK, April 22.—Headquarters of the United States Football Association here yesterday said that as far as the association was concerned the tour of the Arsenal team of the English League, First Division, had not been cancelled. Permission to cancel the engagement was asked by the Arsenal last week.

LONDON, April 22.—Officials of the Arsenal Soccer Football Club today declined to make any comment on the report that the United States Football Association would not release Arsenal from their agreement to tour the United States this Summer, which would be followed by visits to one or two Canadian cities.

The Arsenal officials were also silent regarding earlier reports that instead of making the American journey they were contemplating a tour of the continent and Europe after their cup final match with Huddersfield next Saturday.

ROAD RACERS TO RECEIVE PRIZES NEXT WEDNESDAY

At a meeting of the executive of the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held last night in the board room, it was decided to present the prizes won by the various competitors at the annual Good Friday road race, on Wednesday, April 30, at the Amphion Hall on Yates Street. Following the presentation of prizes a dance will be held

SAILORS AND HUDSON'S BAY CLASH TODAY

Midweek Soccer Teams Will Meet in Crucial Fixture at Royal Athletic Park at 2:45

NAVY NEEDS WIN TO STAY IN RACE

All roads will lead to the Royal Athletic Park this afternoon where the Navy and Hudson's Bay midweek soccer elevens will clash in what looms up over the soccer horizon as the season's classic in the Wednesday Football League. The kick-off is set for 2:45 o'clock, with Hewison handling the whistle.

The match bears all the earmarks of a championship tussle with the first and second berth occupants of the league fighting to say which club shall hold the Pendray Cup for the next twelve months. The Hudson's Bay, present holders of the trophy, are at this time two points behind the sailors in the race for the honors, but to compensate this shortage of points the departmental store eleven have two postponed games to play. The Navy will be completing their schedule with today's match and must, therefore, register a win to keep in the fight. In their three previous matches the honors have been evenly divided. The Navy won the first match 4-3, then the Hudson's Bay turned out the next time and handed the sailors a 4-0 whitewash. The third match resulted in a scoreless draw. With rival squads at full strength today's game should be an interesting affair all of the way.

Hudson's Bay line-up will be as follows: Shrimpton, Tupman, Armstrong, Cull, Woodley, Oakman, Newell, Obee, Fish, Small and Davies.

Saanich United are billed to battle Batchelor's Food Stores at Beacon Hill. McKay will referee here. The kick-off will be at 2:45 o'clock.

Battle to Draw

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 22.—The veteran Billy Wallace, Philadelphia lightweight, fought a ten-round draw here tonight with Joey Goodman, Cleveland. The decision was given by Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, who refereed the bout.

Headlocks Win For "Strangler" With Cantonwine

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Strangler Lewis, former world's champion, tossed Howard Cantonwine, of Iowa, in two of three falls here tonight, after Cantonwine took the first fall in thirty-two minutes. Cantonwine used a reverse headlock to gain his only fall. Lewis came back strong and took the next two falls in twenty-three minutes and two minutes, respectively, using a headlock both times.

The Squared Circle

ATLANTA, Ga., April 22.—Sergeant Sammy Baer, 145, New York welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Ted Goodrich, 146 1-2, of Atlanta, in the eighth round of their scheduled ten-round bout here tonight.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 22.—Roy "Tiger" Williams, of Chicago, won the decision over Gorilla Jones, of Akron, in a fast twelve-round match here tonight. Williams weighed 160 pounds and Jones 152.

FORMER BILLIARD CHAMPION DEAD

CHICAGO, April 22.—George B. Sutton, famous old-time billiard player and for several years 18.2 balk-line champion of the world, was found dead in his home today by friends who called to tell him of the death of his wife, Margaret.

DEFIES FOR TIME

Jack Hobbs, of England, is still a champion cricket player at the age of forty-five and has signed a contract for more years of play.

South African Team Selected For Big Meet

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, April 22.—A team of twelve may be sent from the Union of South Africa to the British Empire Games at Hamilton, Ontario, next August. The Australian team has been appointed and today the South African nomination committee announced the South African representatives, who are, in order of merit, as follows: H. Davies, J. Viljoen, H. Hart, W. Walters, W. Legg, W. Gerhardt, J. Chandler, J. Loubsor, R. Raach, R. T. Raaf, Miss M. Clarke and Miss E. Secctombe.

THE third annual dinner of the Victoria Golf Club, which was to be held at the clubhouse on Friday, has been postponed until Friday, May 2, at 7:30 p.m. Members desirous of attending the function are requested to make their reservations with Captain J. V. Perks, secretary of the club, or sign the list on the notice board at the clubhouse as soon as possible.

SHEFFIELD IN 6-3 WIN OVER DERBY COUNTY

Wednesday in Strong Position in First Division Fight for League Championship

MET DEFEAT IN PREVIOUS MATCH

LONDON, April 22.—Sheffield Wednesday, playing in their own backyard, decisively defeated Derby County today in an English First Division soccer league game by six goals to three. Yesterday Derby County, at Derby, humbled the league leaders. The points gained by the Wednesday today put them again in a strong position in their fight with Derby County for the league championship. Grimsby's plucky fight to escape relegation was continued today when they invaded Birmingham and won. Burnley have not joined Everton in the cellar position, while the situation of Sheffield United is again in a dangerous one.

JIMMY McLARNIN IS HOME AGAIN

Vancouver Fistic Sensation Nursing Fractured Right Hand—Looks Toward Title Mix

VANCOUVER, April 22.—Jimmy McLarnin is home from the Eastern battlefronts and doesn't figure on doing anything but rest and permit his fractured right hand to heal. "I broke it in two places," said Jimmy this morning, "and in the very first round, I cracked Thompson on top of that woolly head when he ducked a right shot that might have started him on the skids had it landed right. Just the luck of the game, I guess. I broke the bone in two places and Thompson wasn't dazed by the punch. He's a good fighter, ringwise and very smart. But you can't show your best with a broken hand, you know."

JIMMY McLARNIN

Jimmy said it seemed doubtful if he would do any fighting before September. He expects a shot at Jackie Fields then in the East.

"When I fight again next will depend on how the hand heals," he said. "I'm feeling wonderful otherwise."

Red Birds to Meet Vancouver Witches In Titular Battle

Victoria High School Gymnasium Will Be Scene of Championship Encounter This Evening—Preliminary Game at 8 o'Clock

British Columbia women's "B" hoop champions will be named at the Victoria High School Gymnasium tonight when the Witches, Mainland titleholders, oppose Bill Erickson's Red Birds, city and Island champions, in a sudden death game for the provincial title. A preliminary game between the Doo-Dads and Victoria High School, flashy intermediate hoop teams, will get under way at 8 o'clock. This will be followed by the titular engagement.

The locals, under the watchful optics of Coach Alex Main and Manager Bill Erickson, have been groomed for the battle and will enter the fray in the pink of condition. In capturing the city and Island honors the Birds showed plenty of class and tonight they will display that same class against the highly-touted Witches, Vancouver champions. The Mainlanders are reported as being a somewhat huskier team than the Birds, but this has not thrown any gloom in the local camp. With speed to burn and in the pink of condition the Birds feel confident of annexing the British Columbia title.

Judge Lampman Is Elected Head of Oak Bay Golfers

U.S. NET STARS WIN WITH EASE

Eight of First Ten Ranking Players Reach Quarter-Finals in Championship Meet

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va., April 22.—Eight of the first ten ranking players of the United States won their way into the quarter finals of the Mason and Dixon tennis championship play on the course of the Green Briar Golf and Tennis Club here today. The other two of the first ten, William T. Tilden II and Junior Coen, are in Europe. Fritz Mercur, of Bethelehem, Pa., defeated Emmett Pare, of Dayton, national clay court champion, 4-6, 10-8, 6-2. Francis T. Hunter, New Rochelle, defeated Donald Cram, of Nashville, Tenn., 6-4, 6-3. Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., defeated Teddy Burwell, Charlotte, N.C., 6-0, 6-3. John Van Ryn, East Orange, N.J., defeated Thomas J. Mangin, Washington, D.C., in straight love sets. Wilmer Allison, Jr., of Austin, Tex., defeated the veteran Arnold Jones, of Providence, R.I., 6-4, 7-5, after eliminating John Tunnis, of Norwalk, Conn., in straight sets. Gregory Mangin, of Newark, Georgetown University star, defeated George Locke, of New York, and then disposed of Herbert Bowman, of New York, 6-4, 6-2.

Francis T. Hunter

Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, downed Marcel Raineville, of Montreal, 6-0, 6-3. The other quarter finalist, George Lott, Jr., Chicago, passed by Harvey Lake, of Spring Lake, N.J., and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, to reach the front line.

The women's singles produced no upsets in the second round of play, Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, Miss Virginia Rice, Virginia Hilleary, Anne Townsend, Clara Greenspan, Dorothy Andrus, Marjorie Morrill and Mrs. C. A. Lamme advancing into the third round.

CARNERA STOWS AWAY ANOTHER

Sam Baker, Los Angeles Negro, Fails to Last One Round in Portland Ring

PORTLAND, Ore., April 22.—Primo Carnera, ponderous Italian heavyweight, knocked out Sam Baker, Los Angeles negro, in the first round of a scheduled ten-round main event here tonight.

Baker was down six times in about two minutes of fighting.

Baker, who divides his time between prize fighting and the movies, hit the canvas for the first time almost immediately after the bell. From that point he was hardly ever erect for more than a few seconds at a time. Carnera used a powerful, crushing right to excellent advantage. The knockout punch was a right to the negro's jaw.

Battling Slim, Portland, decisioned Tom Moore, Los Angeles light-heavyweight, in the six-round semi-final, while Mickey Dolan won the nod over Frankie Monroe in the same number of sessions. Both fighters are Portland lightweights.

Seven members of the Cardinals have surnames beginning with the letter "H"—Haid, Haines, Hallahan, Hill, High, Hunt and Hafey. The first four are pitchers

RECORD ENTRY EXPECTED FOR BOWLING MEET

191 Five-Man Teams From B.C., Washington, Oregon and California Will Compete

MAINLAND TO SEND SIXTEEN SQUADS

SEATTLE, April 22.—With 191 five-man teams entered from Washington, Oregon, British Columbia and California, the eighteenth annual Northwestern International Bowling Congress tournament here, May 2 to 11, may be the largest in the history of the organization. Ninety-seven of the total list are out-of-town entries.

The total far eclipses the entries in last year's tournament at Vancouver, B.C., when 153 was the high record. Portland's entry for the congress in 1928 was 136 and Seattle's list for 1927 was 120.

The 955 bowlers will compete in the five men, doubles, and singles events, and sweepstakes events. The tournament will open the night of May 2 and continue until May 11.

Portland and Tacoma head the out-of-town entries with a total of nineteen each. Vancouver, B.C., is sending sixteen and Spokane ten. Two teams will journey to the meet from Oakland, Cal.

GOLF PRIZES ARE DISTRIBUTED AT THE UPLANDS CLUB

Mrs. J. Ellis, winner of the New Year Vase, and Miss L. M. Archibald, runner-up, were presented with their awards recently by Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Nickson, the donors, at a tea held by the latter two women members. Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Nickson were presented with corsage bouquets.

What part, in your opinion, do brains play in the makeup of a good golfer?

Answered by LARRY NABHOLTZ

As for types of individuals, we have the motive, nervous and mental. It has been said the motive type predominates and the claim is based on the fact that during the process of the swing the mind is not going through the panoramic calisthenics that are so usual for the mental type. In consequence, the mind is focussed on the hit and the attendant result is a good shot.

There are golf brains the same as developed in any line of concentrated study. Sweetser, Jones and Gardner are fine mental types and golfers of renown. Hagen, Doyle and Mehlhorn are placed in the motive classification. While Hutchison, Diegel, Cooper and Cruikshank are the nervous type, yet we have fine golfers in each classification.

Rather, mechanical ability in executing shots, such as rhythm, so essential to successful golf strokes, judgment of distance, concentration and tenacity of purpose are the cardinal factors in good golf.

Keating in Form

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—Due to the effective hurling of Keating, who kept the Angel's eight hits well scattered, the Sacramento Solons today won the first game of the series from the league-leading Los Angeles Club, 8 to 2.

The Solons got away to an impressive three-run lead in the first inning at the expense of Art Delaney, and continued to hammer Ballou and Gabler through the remainder of the contest.

Johnny Moore's double in the third and homer in the eighth brought in the only run scored by the Angels.

Ninth Inning Rally

PORTLAND, April 22. — Dutch Lieber, twenty-year-old former Portland high school student, pitched the San Francisco Missions to a 5 to 3 victory over the Beavers here today, as the Coast League season was opened locally before a record crowd of 13,562. A ninth inning rally broke a 3-3 deadlock and gave the visitors their winning margin of two runs.

Carl Mays pitched tight baseball but ground rules giving two bases on hits into the temporary outfield bleachers, a ninth inning error by Chatham and a lucky pinch hit by Ken Douglas, a young southpaw pitcher, beat him.

Found Five Pitchers

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22. — Oakland defeated the Seals here today, 13 to 7, after five Seal pitchers had been pounded for seventeen hits. In the first inning the Seals scored all their seven runs, driving Andrews from the box. Hurst replaced him and allowed only three hits for the rest of the game. Vergez and Griffin hit home runs for the Oaks.

DATES CHANGED FOR HOOP FINALS

New Westminster Adanacs Will Meet Acadia University on Thursday and Friday

(Canadian Press)

WOLFVILLE, N.S., April 22.—Dates for the Canadian championship basketball series between Acadia University, Eastern champs, and New Westminster Adanacs, Western winners, have been altered to Thursday and Friday of this week. Originally, the second game of the two had been set for Saturday. Total score decides the round.

Walter McWilliams, of Moncton, N.B., and "Beef" Malcolm, of Saint John, N.B., are to officiate.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 22.—New Westminster Adanacs, 1929 Dominion basketball champions, passed through here last night en route to Wolfville, N.S., where they will meet Acadia University in the finals for the 1930 title. The players took the opportunity offered by the twenty-minute stop here to loosen up.

Adanacs are confident that they can retain their Dominion honors. However, after the fate of Windsor Alumni, they are not taking any chances. Manager Hugh Gifford stated "any team that can turn back Windsor must be a good team, because those Windsor boys certainly gave us a run for the money last year." Adanacs are literally battling their way across the continent to the championship, as they have won five games out of six on their tour.

On their arrival here a message from Judge L. A. Jackson, of Alberta, one of the powers of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, was delivered to them. The message referred them to hymn 383, Anglican. None of the boys had a hymn book so they decided to postpone deciphering the telegram until they reached Wolfville.

P. S. LAMPMAN AND SON WINS GOLF TOURNEY

Local Jurist and His Son, Tommy, Captures Father and Son Competition at Colwood

SECRETARY AND SON ARE SECOND

Judge P. S. Lampman and his son Tommy played steady golf yesterday afternoon at the Colwood Golf and Country Club to capture the Father and Son competition. The local jurist and his son toured the difficult layout in a gross score of 87, which, with their handicap of 16, gave them a net total of 71, four strokes in front of the second place occupants.

Walter Parry, secretary of the club, and his son Peter, also showed signs of brilliancy and checked home with a score of 87-12-75, but at that they were forced to share second place honors with R. H. Lyons and son, who had 105-30-75. Six couples were bracketed in third place with net scores of 81, including Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers hockey club, and his son Lynn.

The tournament was well enjoyed and the scores of the various competitors are as follows:

	Gross	H'cap	Net
Judge Lampman and Tommy Lampman	87	16	71
Walter Parry and Peter Parry	87	12	75
R. H. Lyons and son	105	30	75

Trumbull Says:

Wrestling continues to flourish in New York.

By WALTER TRUMBULL

Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Say what you please concerning Primo Carnera, he is an interesting figure. They refer to him as a Venetian, a lion of St. Mark's, but he was born in a little inland village. Probably the only time he visited Venice was to buy a pair of gondolas, for use as wooden slippers.

Sullivan could slug; Firpo could pound; Dempsey was quite a socker; but none of these men was any such hitter as Primo. After they lash the pneumatic life rafts—no gloves are large enough—to his hands, Carnera starts a punch and an opponent falls before he is touched.

This might look queer, if it could not be so easily explained. First you must realize that Primo would have made a great sleight-of-hand man. It is no trick for a prestidigator to palm dimes or even quarters, but Carnera can palm automobile wheels fitted with balloon tires. When, with those mitts made larger by coverings, Primo starts a punch, the natural effect is that produced by pressure in any confined space. Carnera's opponent is blown from his feet by compressed air.

I don't see how they can suspect Primo of deceit. It must just be because they don't know him, or his manager, Leon See, or the other stockholders. Primo is only a big, happy boy. After one of his hardest battles you are likely to find him playing marbles with grapefruit, or engaged in some other childish game.

Just a big boy, that's all.

The exhibition of pictures by Helen Wills Moody, at the Grand Central Art Gallery in New York, has been well patronized. I met Rollin Kirby there yesterday and saw several other well known artists and some well known writers come in before I left. The best woman tennis player in the world was herself on hand and the very considerable crowd took turns looking at her and her drawings. These are in pencil and wash. I liked some heads she had done better than her sketches of famous court stars in action.

Wrestling continues to flourish in New York. Jack Curley's next programme calls for Richard Shikat, Curley's world champion, to wrestle Jim Clinkstock, billed as the "Indian giant."

As I have never seen Jim, I don't know whether he is heap good Indian or not, but what I always have wanted to see is Mr. Shikat matched with a billygoat.

That would be some match and if Mr. Curley will arrange it I should be glad to purchase a couple of seats on the aisle.

Ike Dorgan tells me that his heavyweight, Sandwina, was a sick man when he boxed Jack Dorval. Dorgan says that Sandwina had an attack of grippe, but that, being a game lad, he said nothing about it, even to his manager, and went on with the fight. Under the circumstances, he was lucky to get a draw.

A Massachusetts legislator wishes to investigate wrestling. That man is just a born investigator, but he should work up to wrestling by some preliminary bouts—say an investigation of card tricks or trained seals.

For the first time since 1922 a driver and a mechanic will ride in the racing cars when they start their 500-mile sprint on the Indianapolis motor speedway in the annual Memorial Day race.

They took the mechanics out of the cars because, traveling at such speed, there is always danger, and it seemed poor policy to risk extra lives. A skid, a blown tire, a mistake in judgment, any one of a dozen things may mean a smash. The face of danger shines very brightly in this race, which probably is what draws the huge crowds. It is very thrilling from the shelter of the stands to watch others making turns at around one hundred miles an hour.

DUNCAN FOOTBALL

DUNCAN, April 22.—The annual Easter Monday football match for the Leslie Charity Cup, between the Canadian Legion and Kinsmen, was won for the second time by the Legion, by a score of five goals to one. The Kinsmen's goal came from a penalty kick within three minutes of full time. R. Spruston refereed the game. The gate receipts, as usual, will be donated to the Mill Bay Solarium.

NEW ZEALAND MAN REGULAR HERCULES

Dr. Karl Sarpolis, Cleveland mat man physician, who will make his initial appearance in British Columbia Saturday night, when he climbs over the ropes at the Tillicum gymnasium, is without doubt one of the best of the present day grapplers. The doctor is the only wrestler to stay the distance with "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, world's champion, and the thousands of fans who saw the titleholders in action here know that such a feat is not easy.

The Tillicum Athletic Club has been successful in securing Andy Brown, New Zealand mat man, as an opponent for Dr. Sarpolis. Weighing approximately 200 pounds, with the appearance of a Hercules, Brown is a finished exponent of the mat game. In his last appearance here against Bob Kruse, the big boy from "down under" made himself a favorite with the fans by the clean tactics. His return here should prove popular.

DeMAVE DID A "RUN OUT"; IS GIVEN A YEAR

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 22.—Jack de Mave, who did a "run out" in his bout with Otto Von Porat at St. Louis last week, was today suspended for one year by the Missouri Athletic Commission.

The edict is effective in thirty-two states affiliated with the National Boxing Association. The commissioners barred De Mave from even sparring with boxers licenced by the N.B.A.

MEN WHO KNOW STEEL PREFER THE VALET—MEN WHO KNOW FACES PRESCRIBE IT

The new VALET is a triumph in steel

FAMOUS research laboratories have subjected the new Valet blade to every conceivable test and pronounced it a revelation in steel. One laboratory says, "Nine out of our 10 research men use this blade because its shaving quality bears out the findings of the microscope." Quality that deserves and wins the praise of scientists offers you an entirely new degree of shaving comfort. Men who know steel—engineers, metallurgists, chemists and others who have tested and proved the superiority of the new Valet—are using this remarkable blade because its performance bears out the promise of their scientific findings.

Dermatologists know faces. These specialists prescribe the Valet as an aid to skin health. Experience proves it helps correct conditions caused by harsh shaving. The scientifically adjusted Valet AutoStrop razor holds the micro-edge Valet blade at the friendliest angle. It glides across your face lightly.

Every Valet shave is quick, comfortable and kind to your face. Remember the Valet blade is made exclusively for the Valet AutoStrop razor—the only razor that does not require removal of the blade for stropping, shaving or cleaning. Try the new Valet. Discover real shaving convenience and luxury.

At The Playhouses

ROYAL THEATRE The successful comedy, "The Man From Toronto," which the Gordon McLeod Players are presenting at the Royal this week, is proving a very strong attraction. Tonight it is hoped that there will be a very large attendance as through the auspices of the Veterans' Club, a portion of the proceeds is to be given to the Red Cross. Claude Bailey, in main part, gives a fine rendering of the Canadian who values the love of the woman of his choice, more than the chance of a big fortune. Lilian Christine, as the woman who does not wish to marry because she fears to be only sought for the money she can bring, gives a charming performance as the disguised Mrs. Calthorpe.

VARIETY THEATRE Laughter and tense dramatic situations distinguish the brilliant comedy-drama, "Toby on the Spot," which the Toby Leitch Players are producing at the Variety Theatre this week, with such outstanding success. In addition to tense drama and hilarious comedy, the play is given a shining lustre of romance by a very charming story of love, of which Leone Weber is the heroine.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE "Love, Live and Laugh," George Jessel's starring vehicle, produced by Fox Movietone, marks the return to the screen after a long absence of Marcia Manon.

Others in the strong supporting cast include Lila Lee, Kenneth MacKenna, Henry Kolker and David Rollins. Will K. Howard directed "Love, Live and Laugh," which is the current attraction at the Playhouse Theatre.

DOMINION THEATRE Dick Grace has captured the curiosity of America. Films show his work, popular magazines carry his stories, and the radio will soon broadcast his adventures. Grace is a dare-devil. His name is synonymous with clever cunning at cheating death by a bare inch or two. To date, thirty-three ships have been wrecked by him. Of the two hundred bones in his body, Grace has broken sixty-nine, including his neck and back. Almost every big air moving picture bears the mark of his talent. In "Wings," "Lilac Time," "The Big Hop," "The Air Circus," and, now, in "Young Eagles," which will show at the Dominion Theatre last times today.

CAPITOL THEATRE If he takes up golfing seriously, he had better go into the caddying end of the pastime was the conclusion reached by George Sidney, after an experience he had during the filming of "The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," fourth of Universal's hilarious series, now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

"How is this, Mr. Sidney?" queried the assistant director, "I gave you only twelve balls this morning and you are returning twenty."

Looking at a number of golfers worriedly and fruitlessly searching the rough, the actor replied: "That's right, we were only taking a picture. You know, for a minute I thought we were playing for keeps."

Benefit Performances Being Given at Theatre

A special interest centers in the Gordon McLeod Players' afternoon and evening performances at the Royal Victoria Theatre today, as part of the profits from "The Man From Toronto," the engaging comedy which they are presenting this week, are to be turned over to the British Columbia provincial divison of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The company's interest in the work which is being done by the Red Cross is much appreciated and the commissioner, Mr. J. G. Corry Wood, hopes that those of the public who are sympathetic to the many activities of the society in supplying nursing service in remote districts, health propaganda, assistance to returned soldiers and sailors, etc., will support the benefit performance by their presence.

The Loveliest Prima Donna this Side of Paradise

EVELYN LAYE, beautiful English actress and prima donna, who is playing in Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet" in New York, has been described by the critics as being "the loveliest prima donna this side of paradise." Miss Laye and her company are only playing in four cities on this continent before returning home to England. Toronto is to be the only Canadian city to be honored by her visit. Miss Laye is known in England as the English "Patti" and is the daughter of an actor. She was forced, however, to run away from school in order to get on the stage, her first engagement being with a traveling company. Oddly enough, she at one time didn't have a very great voice, but it seems that from some divine dispensation, and by dint of determination and much practice, she gradually forged to the front and was rewarded by being chosen as the leading lady in the English revival of the "Merry Widow." Miss Laye is also a beuaty specialist of note in England, her columns in a large London paper being a source of great interest to women readers.

HEADMASTERS TO SPEAK TO CLUBS

Mr. F. Fletcher and Mr. M. L. Jacks Will Address Big Luncheon at Empress on Monday

Arrangements have now been completed for the visit, next Sunday and Monday, of the headmasters of British Public Schools who are touring Canada at the present time. On Monday the Canadian Club of Victoria and the local branch of the National Council of Education will give a joint luncheon at the Empress Hotel, which will also be attended by members of the Gyro Club.

Speakers at this luncheon will be Mr. F. Fletcher, M.A., headmaster of Charterhouse, and Mr. M. L. Jacks, headmaster of Mill Hill. Each speaker will address the meeting for twenty minutes on "The Freedom and Tradition in English Schools."

It had originally been decided that Dr. C. Norwood, headmaster of Harrow, would not come further West than Winnipeg. This plan, however, has been altered, and Dr. Norwood will address the Vancouver Canadian Club tomorrow and come over to Victoria with the rest of the headmasters.

The visitors have particularly requested that no formal arrangements shall be made for Sunday, and the British Public Schools Club has arranged for golf, drives over the Malahat and other kinds of informal entertainment.

The Story Behind the Play

By J. J. GELLER

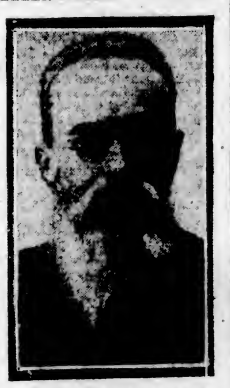

"LE COQ D'OR"

With the possible exception of Moussorgsky, the illustrious creator of "Boris Godounow," Rimsky-Korsakoff is held to be the greatest Russian composer. The last opera he composed is that dazzling, melodious "Le Coq D'or." Written in the twilight of life, it stands as a towering monument to the man's genius.

His career is all the more remarkable when we learn that contrary to most composers, Rimsky-Korsakoff was ignorant of musical theory, unacquainted in harmony and orchestration and played the piano badly. But his natural gift for melody encouraged him to learn counterpoint and harmony, which he taught himself through books. Under these conditions he composed his first works, which earned him a professorship at the Petrograd Conservatory. Throughout his lengthy career, in face of harrassing and bureaucratic officialdom and censorship, Rimsky-Korsakoff bequeathed perhaps ten of the finest lyrical operas which have been accepted by followers of grand opera.

"The Golden Cockerel" or "Le Coq D'or," as it is best recognized by its French translation, is based upon a story from Pushkin, Russia's immortal bard. This story is best described as a fable. Between the lines one can discern a satirical thrust poked mischievously at the follies of Russian court life. The composer remembered this plot ever since he was a youth and it always lingered in his memory. Now it bobbed up once again, and it occurred to him that as his stay on earth was short, he would embody this story into a final opera, which would be his legacy to society. He discussed his purpose with one Bielsky, a librettist who frequently collaborated with him. There was a strong bond of sympathy and co-operation between these two men, because of their common interests.

They planned something new which would combine acting and ballet dancing with vocal gifts of the highest order. When the first two features were accomplished in the text, Rimsky-Korsakoff supplied the tunes. His music was colorful and bizarre and he forbade any meddling with the score. If the work was to be staged publicly, the producer must agree to accept the score in all its entirety. Too often, producers and managers have taken liberties with manuscripts. No deletions were to be tolerated. He was well aware that the score contained satirical allusions to the Czar's court, and so he realized that it would be futile to expect the Royal Opera House to present "Le Coq D'or." He thereupon dispatched it to Zimin, one of the few who controlled operatic troupes in competition with the company favored by royal patronage.

N. A. RIMSKY-KORSAKOFF
Composer of "Le Coq D'or"

In 1907 Zimin accepted it, but did not count upon the censor. Under the royal regime, no play or opera could be produced unless the censor approved it. For a period of two years the ban remained until the librettist and composer agreed to modify the text. They were, indeed, fortunate that no imperial decree for banishment was forthcoming.

The opera was finally presented at Zimin's Theatre, in Moscow, on September 24, 1909, and in Petrograd the following year. It is one of the most difficult operas to present effectively. While the story is unfolded in song, it is danced on the stage by principals who ostensibly double for the singers. There is no work in the realm of grand opera which offers singing, acting and dancing upon so high and unprecedented a scale. As a result, "Le Coq D'or" is only presented by representative opera troupes in America and Europe. No second rate organization could attempt its production. The opera is truly a mine of fanciful melodies, composed by Rimsky-Korsakoff in the last year of his life. It is a coincidence that the two foremost operas from Russia, "Le Coq D'or" and "Boris Godounow," were suggested from stories by Pushkin, whose brilliant career was suddenly cut short in a duel.

New Zealand Publishers to Arrive Friday

A party of eleven newspaper editors and proprietors from New Zealand will arrive here on Friday, commencing a comprehensive tour of Canada before sailing from Montreal on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York, May 16, for London, where they will be delegates to the fourth Imperial Press Conference in June.

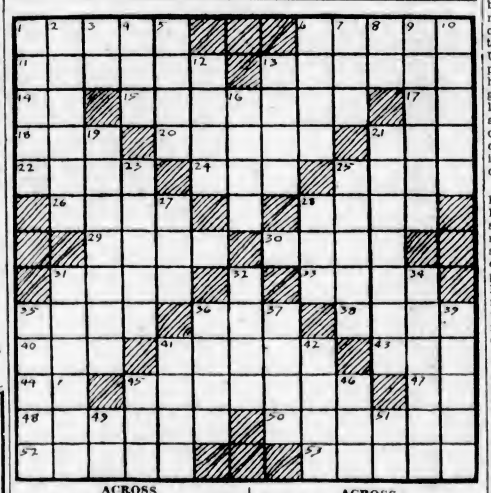

Arriving on R.M.S. Niagara, the delegates will be entertained by officials of the Government on Friday evening.

Throughout their Canadian tour, which has been arranged by the Canadian Section of the Empire Press Union and the Canadian Pacific Railway, the New Zealand delegates will make stops at Lake Louise, Banff, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Ottawa and Montreal.

Two young artists were communing. One asked the inevitable question: "Have you sold anything recently?"

"Yes," replied the other, "my watch and chain."

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

MODERN MAN'S PHYSICAL INFERIORITY

Excepting trained athletes, we moderns are puny creatures compared with our forefathers. Even athletes soon burn out eating acid-forming foods, the great cause of modern physical inferiority. From thirty-two to fifty Dr. Jackson was one of the unfit. At fifty Dr. Osler gave him four months to live, dying from acid-forming foods. He then invented alkali-forming Roman Meal. Before that he had lived on the ground floor, unable to climb stairs. Four years afterwards he climbed the fifty stories in Washington's Monument, up and down, solely due to the alkalinizing properties in Roman Meal. In September, 1928, when seventy, he ran five miles in forty-five minutes—was not even winded; again due to Roman Meal. Write for free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 315 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont.; or write for free sample of Roman Meal.—(Advt.)

Zeebrugge Exploit Twelve Years Ago Astonished World

Bruges Became Base for German Submarine Campaign Owing to Proximity to British Shores —Remarkable Protective Devices Designed to Safeguard Underwater Craft

Proud City of Bruges Has Lost Much of Former Fame

By J. A. SKELLERN

WHEN British marines and bluejackets swarmed over the Mole and cruisers were sunk in the channel at Zeebrugge, on April 23, 1918, and the blocking process repeated later at Ostend, the blows were aimed at Bruges. In this old, decadent city, straddled across a three-veined canal system which led out to the English Channel and the North Sea, the German High Command saw a base from which a relentless submarine campaign could be carried on against Great Britain within easy striking distance of her shores.

Possibly the importance of Bruges in the German submarine campaign has never been fully realized. It was made the nesting place of a huge fleet of underwater craft, and torpedo boat destroyers, which were able to reach the sea, by way of Ostend and Zeebrugge, in twelve and eight miles of sailing, respectively. This canal system was used, in addition, for the transportation of supplies and material from Germany itself, and submarines were assembled at Bruges.

Until October, 1914, the city was made the headquarters of the British force in Belgium, but in the subsequent consolidation of the Western fighting line it lay twenty miles behind the German front at Dixmude, and it was not until the abandonment of Ostend as a naval base that the old Flemish capital was counted as having any real significance in the general scheme. With its conversion into a submarine base, however, it assumed a position of such vital importance to Great Britain, in particular, as to drive her to the desperate ventures at a Zeebrugge and Ostend.

BASE EQUIPPED

Once the German authorities had decided upon the utilization of the centre, they went about their business with traditional thoroughness. It was equipped for the assembling of submarines, which were transported in parts by canal and rail from Germany, and its spacious docks and excellent quays, to which had once been moored the ships of ancient Venice, England and Scandinavia, now harbored stranger craft.

Having thus discovered and equipped a convenient base for the craft, with easy access to the sea, the German proceeded to excel himself in the construction of protective works for their security while in port. From the dock sides huge steel and concrete "shelves" were constructed, which in some cases presented a protective thickness of nearly sixteen feet against aerial bombing. Under these low-lying shelters the underwater craft were able to lie secure, safe at the outset from observation and, subsequently, even against what was possibly the most sustained and terrific aerial bombardment of the war. In all the various chambers and "houses" found necessary on the docks the same extravagant use of steel and concrete was in evidence, constituting altogether one of the finest examples of the German method of "digging in."

By 1918, it has been stated, Bruges had accommodation for probably thirty-five torpedo boat destroyers and thirty submarines, and I was told in Bruges by a responsible inhabitant that nearly 100 enemy craft were using this port by April of that year, when this particular set of "dragon's teeth" were drawn.

POWER OF BOMBS

In this area were to be seen many remarkable examples of the tremendous power of modern bombs, and, in the condition of the city itself, an equally striking instance of British forbearance. A German torpedo boat destroyer, in one case, had literally been heaved on to the top of a similar vessel, alongside which it had been moored. In another, a terrible mass of wreckage which had once been a destroyer lay in a floating portable steel dock, and it was explained that a British plane had followed the German vessel up the canal, and, on its entering the dock, had set about the double destruction.

But notwithstanding the terrific aerial bombardments directed against the docks and naval works, during which the airmen were declared to have come down so low that a ground observer could plainly see "whether they had shaved that morning," I was assured that not a single window had been shattered in the city itself, which lies somewhat apart from the dock area. Even the fire from the gun emplacement erected on top of the old Belfry, which was a constant menace to the airmen, was ignored.

Bruges, with the coming of the German high naval command, took on some slight measure of its former social gaiety, as German high officers live well. Their wives came from the Fatherland, and an imposing social circle functioned in the approved German manner. To a degree, the inhabitants were allowed to share in the temporary prosperity of the town, and probably the citizens, or many of them, experienced a mild regret when, with the events of Zeebrugge and Ostend, the place fell back to its former insignificance.

PROPERTY APPROPRIATED

This comparatively generous treatment of the population was, however, after the manner of the bandit who hands back the wallet after the extraction of the money it previously contained; for property to the value of 20,000,000 francs was appropriated and converted to the building of a most elaborate series of resthouses, baths, and other "accessories" for the use of the German officers.

With the conclusion of the war, Bruges slipped back to its former state of semi-stagnation, though with the construction of the modern Heyst Canal and the works at Zeebrugge, giving direct communication with Hull and other ports, some revival in its trade and industry had been in progress until the outbreak of the war, and probably again will give to the old metropolis some measure of its old-time importance.

From the twelfth to the sixteenth century it was the largest commercial city in the north of Europe, a centre for the huge English and Scandinavian trade and the emporium for Venetian, Hanseatic and Italian merchants, and its bourse regulated the rate of exchange in Europe, though with access to the sea finally stopped by the silting up of the Zwyn in 1930, Bruges began to lose ground against her ancient rival city of Ghent.

RIVALRY OF GHENT

Dating from the third century, by the seventh Bruges had become important, and in the ninth century the Counts of Flanders held court there. During this particular period in its history its wealth and power were almost unbounded, and until 1180 was the capital of Flanders, Ghent then assuming the title. Unlike the latter city, Bruges has during the intervening centuries gradually lost in influence, importance and, as a natural sequence, wealth, and during the past hundred years or so had come to the point where almost one-third of its population were in the pauper class, though many rich businessmen and merchants still choose it as a quiet heaven where they may settle in retirement.

Bruges, or "The City of Bridges," is intersected in all directions by its canal network, and fifty-three bridges or more span the waters. A few of the gates of the old forts still remain as reminders of its eventful military past. Its quaint, mediaeval air has an irresistible appeal to the visitor, and even its small houses, with their gables toward the streets, possess a quality entirely in consonance with the more imposing public buildings of the place.

THE BELFRY

Undoubtedly the most striking feature of Bruges is its famous old belfry, a magnificent structure rising over 350 feet, and probably the most beautiful of its nature in the whole of Europe. Over five hundred years old, its purpose through the centuries has been principally the calling of its citizens and warriors to arms, fire alarms, etc. Four hundred and one steps wind up from the courtyard to the top of the tower. Its clock chamber houses as marvelous a piece of machinery as may be found anywhere, as the entire mechanism was constructed before the days of cast iron, etc., and a stay in the chamber to hear the striking of the hour by the ponderous clock bell and the performance of the huge musical box as it plays the accompanying melodies is truly a unique experience.

Continental Europe has in the past justly prided itself on the excellence of its carillons, and in this respect the belfry at Bruges stands out as the finest in all Belgium. Its carillon of bells consists of forty-two chimes, and the tunes are changed every second year. The workable combination runs into many thousand of melodies. The city fathers, in due time, caused the substitution of modern airs for the old-time hymns.

WEALTH OF ATTRACTION

For student and tourist alike there is a wealth of attraction. Its Gothic Hotel de Ville, or town hall, dates from the fourteenth century; the Town Chancellory, the Palais de Justice, from the sixteenth. Among the remarkable features within the latter building is the wrought masterpiece in the president's chamber, depicting the complete story of the stoning of St. Stephen, which forms a border for the massive fireplace.

In the Church of Notre Dame is "The Virgin and Child," by Michelangelo, and, in addition, Flemish masterpieces, more of which are to be found in the Church of St. James, while in an obscure museum are paintings for which millions of francs have been refused. One of these, a small canvas, discovered in use as a fish-cutting block on the wharves at Havre, brought an offer of over a million, while 15,000,000 francs could not change the ownership of at least one other.

There are charitable and religious institutions by the score, for which, in the passing years, there has been increasing need. With a population of 250,000 or more in the period of its greatest prosperity, Bruges now houses, at most, 52,000 persons.

Dartmouth College

It was in the mouth of that river that the fleet conveying the Crusaders of Richard III, in 1190, gathered, and, when Edward III took Calais, in 1347, it was with the aid of thirty-one ships and 737 seamen sent from the port of Dartmouth.

For a number of years Dartmouth has been the headquarters of a training establishment for naval officers, built on the Mount Boone Estate and capable of accommodating between 300 and 400 cadets.

Tribute to England

By RT. HON. STANLEY BALDWIN, M.P.

The Chairman: "England," Stanley Baldwin:

My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen,—I do not think that in the life of a busy man there could be placed into his hands a more difficult toast than this, but the first thought that comes into my mind as a public man is a feeling of satisfaction and profound thankfulness that I may use the word "England"—(applause)—without some fellow at the back of the room shouting out "Britain." (Laughter and applause.) I have often thought how many of the most beautiful passages in the English language would be ruined by that substitution which is so popular today. I read in your dinner book "When God wants a hard thing done, He tells it," not to His Britons, but "to His Englishmen." (Applause). And the same way, to come to a very modern piece of poetry, how different it would be with the altered ending, "For in spite of all temptations to belong to other nations, he remains a Briton." (Laughter.)

We have tonight to celebrate our country and our Patron Saint. And it always seems to me no mere chance that besides being the Patron Saint of England, St. George was the Patron Saint of those gallant sailors around the shores of the Adriatic, and that in his honor there exists one of the most beautiful chapels in Venice today. And the Patron Saint of sailors is surely the most suitable patron saint for men of the English stock. And I think tonight amongst ourselves we might for a minute or two look at those characteristics, peculiar as we believe, contradictory often, in that great stock of which we are all members.

The Englishman is all right as long as he is content to be what God made him, an Englishman, but gets into trouble when he tries to be something else—(laughter)—and there are chroniclers, or were chroniclers, who said it was the aping of the French manner by our English ancestors that made us the prey of William the Norman, and led to our defeat at Hastings. Let that be a warning to us not to ape any foreign country. Let us be content to trust ourselves and to be ourselves. (Cheers.)

Now I always think that one of the most curious contradictions about the English stock is this: That while the criticism that is often made of us is not without an element of truth, and that is that as a nation we are less open to the intellectual sense than the Latin races, yet though that may be a fact, there is no nation on earth that has had the same knack of producing geniuses. (Applause.) It is almost a characteristic of the English race, and there is hardly any line in which the nation has not produced geniuses, and in a nation which many people might think restrained, unable to express itself, in the same opinion you have a literature certainly second to none that has ever existed in the world—(applause)—but in poetry supreme.

Then, for a more personal characteristic, we grumble, and we always have grumbled, but we never worry. Now there is a very great truth in that, because there are foreign nations who worry but do not grumble. Grumbling is more superficial, leaves less of a mark on the character, and just as the English schoolboy, for his eternal salvation, is impervious to the receipt of learning, and by that means preserves his mental faculties further into middle age and old age than he otherwise would, and I may add that I attribute the possession of such faculties as I have to the fact that I did not overstrain them in youth, just as the Englishman has a mental reserve owing to that gift given him at his birth by St. George, so, by the absence of worry he keeps his nervous system sound and sane, with the result that in times of emergency the nervous system stands when the nervous system of other peoples breaks.

The Englishman is made for a time of crisis, and for a time of emergency. He is serene in difficulties, but may seem to be indifferent when times are easy. He may not look ahead, he may not heed warnings, he may not prepare, but when he once starts he is persistent to the death, and he is ruthless in action. And it is these gifts that have made the Englishman what he is, and that have enabled the Englishman to make England and the Empire what it is. (Loud cheers.)

It is in staying power that he is supreme, and fortunately, being, as I have said, to some extent impervious to intellectual impressions as a nation, he is equally impervious to criticism, a most useful thing for an English statesman. (Laughter and applause.) That may be the reason why English statesmen sometimes last longer than those who are not. English. I admit that in past generations we carried that virtue to an excess, and by a rebound the sins of the fathers are being visited on the children. For instance there was a time when this particular epithet was more in vogue in political society, and the Englishman invariably spoke of the "damned foreigner." Those days are gone, but the legacy has come to us in this, that by the swing of the pendulum we have in this country what does not exist in any other, a certain section of our people who regard every country as being in the right except their own. It largely arises I think among a section of the population who hold beliefs that they cannot persuade their fellow countrymen to adopt.

There is yet one other point. I think the English people are at heart and in practice the kindest people in the world. With some faults on which I have touched, there is in England a profound sympathy for the under dog. There is a brotherly and a neighborly feeling which we see to a remarkable extent through all classes. There is a way of facing misfortunes with a cheerful face. It was shown to a marvelous degree in the war, and in spite of all that he said criticising his own people, Ruskin said one thing of immortal truth. He said "The English laugh is the purest and truest in the metal that can be minted. And indeed only Heaven can know what the country owes to it," and there is a profound truth in that. As long as a people can laugh, they are preserved from the grosser vices of life, political and moral. And as long as they can laugh, they can face all the ills that fortune may bring upon them.

Then, in no nation more than the English is there a diversified individuality. We are a people of individuals, and a people of character. You may take the writings of one of the greatest and one of the most English of writers, Charles Dickens, and you will find that practically all his characters are English. They are all different, and each of us that has gone through this world with his eyes open and his heart open, has met every one of Dickens' characters in some position or another in life. Let us see to it that we never allow our individuality as Englishmen to be steamrolled. The preservation of the individuality of the Englishman is essential to the preservation of the race, and if our differences are smoothed out and we lose that great gift, we shall lose at the same time our power. Uniformity of type is a bad thing. And I regret very much myself the uniformity of speech. Time was, two centuries ago, when you could have told from what part of England every member of Parliament came, and you could have told every member of Parliament what part of England he came from by his speech. He spoke the speech of his fathers, and I regret that the dialects have gone, and I regret that by a process which for want of a better name we have agreed among ourselves to call education, we are drifting away from the language of the people and losing some of the best English words and phrases which have lasted in the country for centuries to make us all talk one uniform and inexpressive language.

Now I have very little more that I want to say to you tonight, but on an occasion like this I suppose there is no one who does not ask himself in his heart and is a little shy of expressing it, what it is that England stands for to him, and to her. And there comes into mind a wonder as to what England may stand for in the minds of generations to come if our country goes on during the next generation as she has done in the last two, in seeing her fields converted into towns.

To me, England is the country, and the country is England. And when I ask myself what I mean by England when I am abroad, England comes to me through my various senses—through the ear, through the eye, and through certain imperishable scents, and I will tell you what they are, and there may be those among you who feel as I do.

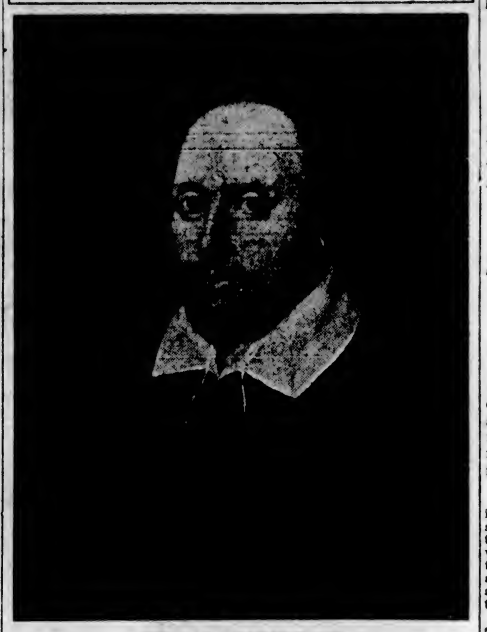

The sounds of England, the tinkle of the hammer on the anvil in the country smithy, the corncrake on a dewy morning, the sound of the scythe against the whetstone, and the sight of a plough team coming over the brow of a hill, the sight that has been seen in England since England was a land, and may be seen in England long after the Empire has perished, and every works in England has ceased to function, for centuries the one eternal sight of England. The wild anemones in the woods in April, the last load at night of hay being drawn down a lane as the twilight comes on, and you can scarcely distinguish the figures of the horses as they take it home to the farm, and above all, most subtle, most penetrating and most moving, the smell of wood smoke coming up in an Autumn evening, or the smell of the scutch fires: that wood smoke that our ancestors thousands of years ago must have caught on the air when they were coming home with the result of the day's forage, when they were still nomads, and when they were still roaming the forests and the plains of the continent of Europe. These things strike down into the very depths of our being, and touch chords that go back to the beginning of time and the human race, but they are chords that with every year of our life sound a deeper note in our innermost being. (Loud applause.)

These are the things that make England, and these are the things, and I grieve for it that they are not the childish inheritance of the majority of the people today in our country. They ought to be the inheritance of every child born into this country, but nothing can be more touching than after generations in the towns to see how the working man and woman will have their tiny bit of garden if they can, will go to gardens if they can, to look at something they have never seen as children, but which their ancestors knew and loved. The love of these things is innate and inherent in our people. It makes for that love of home, one of the strongest features of our race, and it is that that makes our race seek its new home in the Dominions overseas where they have room to see things like this that they can see no more at home. It is that power of making homes almost peculiar to our people, and it is one of the sources of their greatness. They go overseas, and they take with them what they learned at home: love of justice, love of truth, and the broad humanity that are so characteristic of English people. And it may well be that these traits on which we pride ourselves, which we hope to show and try to show in our own lives, may survive—survive among our people as long as they are a people—and I hope and believe this, that just as today, more than fifteen centuries after the last of those great Roman legionaries left England, we still speak of the Roman strength, and the Roman work, and the Roman character, so perhaps in the ten thousandth century, long after the Empires of this world as we know them have fallen and others have risen and fallen, and risen and fallen again, the men who are then on this earth may yet speak of those characteristics of the English, and that long after it may be the name of the country has passed away, wherever men are honorable and upright and persevering, lovers of home, of their brethren, of justice and humanity, the men in the world of that day may say that we still have among us the gifts of that great English race. (Loud and continued applause.)

ENGLISH COOKING TRIUMPH TOLD

The defects of English cooking are a constant subject of complaint, and, it is to be feared, with some reason. Too much cold meat is a widespread reproach; but it is evident that we can do things with cold meat that the continent, which despises that kind of dish, has never yet conceived. At the quadrennial International Cookery Exhibition at Frankfort-on-Main, the London team was supreme in the cold buffet display. Their workmanship was so far ahead of their continental competitors that they were awarded a special prize in addition to the highest certificates.

Patron Saint of England Gave His Emblem to Nation

Link Between Sea Power and St. George Has Been Close Throughout Long Maritime History of Britain—Dependence on Navy Has Been Necessity of Island Nation

Why He Is Always Shown With the Standard of Faith

A GREAT deal of mystery surrounds the person of St. George, the anniversary of whose birth and death will be celebrated on St. George's Day, April 23, in song and speech, at the annual banquet of the Royal Society of St. George. Every ship in the navy flies a flag in which is embodied the Cross of St. George, and every ship in commission flies also on its masthead the Flag of St. George. At any rate, it is known that St. George was a military hero, and a military saint, and as a military saint it is useful to recognize this fact that in the navy in the old days it was the soldiers who fought on the ships, just as much as they fought on land, and when Richard I took his Crusaders to deliver the holy places from the infidel all the soldiers on his ships wore the cross upon their shoulders and upon their breasts. The ships also flew the white flag with the red cross of St. George at their masthead. In later days the attitude was taken that for the future the leader of a great national expedition should be called an admiral, and not general, and at the same time it was laid down that every ship in His Majesty's fleet should carry three flags, one of which should be the flag of St. George, and that same codification of our customary sea laws laid down those grand and memorable words that "it is upon the navy under the goodness of God that the safety, honor and welfare of this realm do chiefly depend." These three things happened in the same year.

Now, St. George, notwithstanding the difficulties with regard to his history as the Patron Saint of England, is always represented with a standard: he is either represented as carrying the standard himself, or as being attended by a standard-bearer. And why is this? It is because he was the hero of a great and daring action. He was a distinguished officer in the Emperor's household, and because of his love of the religion to which he devoted his life, he tore down the decree condemning the Christians from the forum of Nicomedia, and trampled it underfoot. That was a very great and daring action for a man in his position, and he was chosen as the Patron Saint of England, because an action of that kind has always appealed to the English spirit, right through the Elizabethan era to the days of Nelson, and to the days when our men fought on Zeebrugge Quay.

Now every ship goes into commission prepared for a great adventure. There is no greater adventure than the adventure of the sea, and all ships of England, from the days of Alfred the Great to the days of the Great War, have been instruments of Empire. It has been through sea power that the Empire has been built up. The ships of England in those days were merchantmen, and it was many a long day before the warship developed out of the merchantmen, and I think there is a great significance in that fact. The significance seems to be this, that English people have always regarded sea power in quite a different light from the way in which other nations who have been great upon the sea in their time—like Spain and Holland—have regarded their sea power. They have regarded it as a method for their own aggrandisement. The English have always taken the line that the exercise of their sea power is for one great reason only—to keep the highway of the sea open for every nation in which to trade on their lawful occasions, and that connection between the merchantmen and the navy has a great deal to do with that English feeling with regard to sea power.

The flag of St. George is shown in every port and on every sea, and every national, wherever he is, whether he is under his own flag or under the flag of some other nation, knows that somewhere there is the British Fleet or part of the British Navy, within hail, and it is that which is one of the great factors

ENGLAND'S SPEED SUCCESS TOLD

England's success in retaining the Schneider Cup must have been a matter of rejoicing for Englishmen throughout the Empire, and Flying-Officer Waghorn's success was followed by Orlebar's record flight in a motor car has been followed by his record in the motor boat Miss England. The American humorist, Will Rogers, made a pleasantly amusing comment on these victories, telling America "to think again," and adding, "So we are a nation that travels so fast and thinks all other countries are still in a covered wogan. Well, some Englishman just went 355 miles an hour in a plane yesterday and almost wept because it was foggy and misty and he was not able to open up.

"If you remember, one came over here and ran an automobile faster than we can even wreck one. So, when it comes to speed we are not exactly what you would call sitting on top of the world.

"Englishmen live slow and move fast; we live fast and move slow."

SCHOOL BECOMES MILNER MEMORIAL

Sturry Court, the home of the late Lord Milner, has been generously given by Lady Milner as a school for the junior boys of King's School, Canterbury, as a memorial of her husband. It was opened by Mr. Rudyard Kipling. The manor house has become the residence of the headmaster and his family; the great tithe barn, which dates back to the time when Sturry was an abbey, forms the gymnasium and big school, and the new building has been well placed and maintains a certain monastic simplicity. The whole will rightly bear the name of "Milner Court," and it is to be hoped that the boys trained there will be a living memorial of a great man who worked untiringly for the safety and welfare of England and the Empire, receiving but little gratitude, contending with immense difficulties, but, as Rudyard Kipling explained in his opening address, wanting no time in personal complaints and in defending himself, but instantly ready, when danger came, to serve his country side by side with the very men who had done him the gravest injustice—"a glorious climax to a devoted and unspotted career."

A marble portrait tablet to the memory of Chatham and his son, the younger Pitt, has lately been erected in the Parish Church of Hayes, Kent. Directly opposite the church is Hayes Place, where the younger Pitt was born and where the elder Pitt died. William Pitt, "The Great Commoner," before he became Lord Chatham, bought Hayes Place in 1754 and built the existing house, and his second son, whose political genius was only second to his own, was born there in 1759.

LOOKING BACKWARD TO EARLIER PERIOD

How Seventeenth Century England Appears in Age When Life was Slower and Comforts Rarer, and When Good Fellowship Was Studied—Influence of Coffee Houses on Politics

Street Lighting Was Just Coming Into Use in London

IT is always interesting to view ourselves and our own country through the eyes of a foreigner. Shortly after the restoration of Charles II we find the ambassador of Louis XIV, M. de Comminge (or Comminges), paying a visit to the English court and delivering himself of the following observation upon our national temper: "It is intrepid of nature to the point of rashness . . . superb, haughty and suspicious . . . and so vainglorious that I do not believe it yields in this to the Spaniards!"

BEFORE ENCLOSURES

Another point that impresses him is the large number of cattle and sheep which he sees wandering over the open, unhedged country, and of which he says: "No shepherd keeps them save public honesty." This is a pretty tribute to our character, and may, perhaps, serve as consolation after the dictum quoted above.

But possibly this surprising honesty noted by de Comminge depends in no small measure upon the harshness of the laws of the day, for should a man steal a cow or a sheep he would surely hang, and for a far lighter misdemeanor would be cast into one of the dreadful prisons which were veritable forcing houses of crime and disease. In spite of the severity of the punishment, there was a good deal of petty larceny among the common people, who often, to escape the authorities, would take to a life of piracy on the high seas; but he who was unfortunate enough to mismanage his flight must endure at least the stocks, the whipping-post or the pillory.

Besides being an excellent rearer of cattle, the countryman of the Restoration was a successful farmer and breeder of horses. He and the squire were enthusiastic hunting and racing men, and it was at this time that Newmarket came into prominence as the headquarters of English racing, Charles II being the promoter of the famous "Newmarket Mile" race. Deer and foxes, fish and birds were plentiful, and afforded as good an excuse for a day's sport then as they do in our own time.

HOSPITABLE PEOPLE

The squire and his lady were, for the most part, kindly, hospitable folk, and probably devout, but of what nature their piety might partake it would be hazardous to say off-hand, as religions in England were numerous, although many of these were hardly tolerated. The freedom and lightness of the Court had given rise in certain quarters to a reaction, and a strong tendency to Quakerism and other revivals of a Puritan nature had sprung up.

The squire's lady was skilled in embroidery, perhaps music, and all matters pertaining to her house. Her stores of linen were ample and of fine quality, her furniture was massive and handsome, though the chairs may sometimes have been a little too straight-backed for comfort; her cupboards were capacious and well stocked, and her larder was always capable of yielding hearty good cheer at a moment's notice. She traveled but little, and was generally content to rely for news of the gay doings of Court and society upon the weekly news sheet which came by the public coach to the nearest town, or to the rare visits of her lord to London on business.

NOT LIGHTLY UNDERTAKEN

When these visits were undertaken it could only be as the result of much forethought and preparation. The squire, having booked his seat in the coach, which, if he should live as far away as York or Exeter, would only run one day in the week, would repair to his local man of business and make his will. He would then resign himself to four weary days of travel in a jolting vehicle with no springs, which might at any time get stuck in snow or mud, so bad was the state of the roads. He might also be set upon by highwaymen and robbed of all he had with him; but, provided he got through the perils of the road he would at last find himself and his baggage deposited at the London terminus of the coach. From here he would make the best of his way to the house of his friend with whom he was going to stay; but this might be difficult at night, for until 1685 there was no street lighting at all, and then it consisted only of one lamp in front of every tenth house from six o'clock until midnight from Michaelmas to Lady Day. On finally reaching his destination, he would be heartily welcomed by his host and drawn into the oak-panelled parlor, with its wide hearth glowing with a fire of large wood billets and cew coal, or in Summer filled with branches and sweet-smelling herbs, and here the ladies of the household would soothe his weary spirit with their charm and wit and their picturesque appearance.

DRESS OF PERIOD

Their dress would consist of a tight bodice and flowing skirt of rich silk or satin, the skirt looped back to show a petticoat of lace, and the bodice cut low on the neck and shoulders and surmounted, perhaps, with a fine lawn kerchief edged with lace. The hair would be in ringlets falling to the shoulders or elaborately dressed at the back of the head, and jewels would be worn.

The men would have the high cavalier boots with turned-down tops, and often two pairs of stockings, one of these turned over the tops of the boots and bordered with lace. The satin or silk doublet and hose, and rich cloak worn over one shoulder, the hair long and curled, or a highly decorative wig.

The squire's visit in London would be passed in savoring the delights of the town.

He would promenade in Hyde Park, where he would see all the wits and beauties of the day, famous and infamous; he would visit the play, and the ladies of his party would accompany him if the play were deemed a suitable one, or if the ladies were heavily enough masked to hide their blushes and amusement; he would go on 'Change and he would make a daily call at one or more of the coffee-houses which had by this time become such an institution. His coffee-house would be chosen absolutely to his own taste. If he was of sober habit he would choose one frequented by non-smokers or non-drinkers; if a Jew, he would go where bargaining and noses predominated; if a Quaker, then he would be able to listen to the discourse of those moved by the Spirit; but if he was a man of letters, he would then seek out the famous Will's, in Bow Street, where Dryden might be found in his corner by the fire in Winter or in his special chair which was carried on to the balcony for him in Summer; and perhaps he would find Samuel Pepys and, according to the latter, "all the wits of the town."

THE COFFEE-HOUSE

These coffee-houses formed a very strong factor in the lives of London dwellers, as they were the centre of much of the social and political life of the day. They constituted a meeting place where men met to discuss every subject under the sun, from politics to personalities, religion to trade, the most scurrilous gossip to the profoundest philosophy. As a political menace they were looked askance at by the authorities, who at one time would have suppressed them had they dared, but so much a part of everyday life had they become that the vetoing of them was impossible.

Before the squire's visit ended he would make an expedition to some of the shops in his neighborhood and would buy the presents to be taken home to his family. He would go to the mercer, where he would find ribbons, scented gauntlet gloves, silks and satins and taffetas, the latter mostly from Paris, and nearly all to be used in London; in fact, the importing of French silks so swamped this industry in England that the King at last issued an order that only English silks were to be used, and set the example by himself excluding all others from his wardrobe.

When the squire at last returned to his distant home, having once more braved the discomforts and dangers of the homeward journey, he would find himself received in much the same spirit as we would welcome one who had dared the risks of the North Sea in an open boat, and not the least enthusiastic of his friends assembled to greet him would be his dogs, who played as important a part in his surroundings then as they would today.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY
(April 23)

Saint Andrew, Saint of Scotland,
And Robert Burns, the Bard,
Have each their day of honor,
Which Scotsmen love and guard.
But we, the men of England,
Have we no Saint to praise?
No bard to honor duly?
No noble flag to raise?

Chorus:
Saint George, Saint George of England!
And Shakespeare's glorious name;
These stand for England's honor,
And her immortal fame.
And in the cross of crimson
Upon a silver field
Behold Saint George's banner:
His sunlit, shining banner:
His fair and glittering banner,
And dear old England's shield.

Saint Patrick with the Irish,
He has his holy day—
That good old saint, Saint Patrick
He chased the snakes away;
But our Saint George of England
Deserves still greater fame,
For he destroyed a dragon
That spouted fire and flame.

Chorus:
So hail Saint George of England,
Who with his mighty spear
Impaled the writhing monster,
The cause of woe and fear:
And with his cross of crimson
Upon a silver field
Taught us to trust in Heaven,
To place our hopes in Heaven,
To look to God in Heaven,
To fight—and never yield.

The Welsh have bards aplenty:
But we have poets, too,
And these have sung of England,
As surely is her due.
So let us band together,
Wherever we may be,
And praise the name of England,
The Mistress of the Sea.

Chorus:
Saint George, Saint George of England,
And all our mighty men
Who make our country famous
By gallant sword or pen.
Long may our noble banner
Float bravely overhead—
The field of glistening silver,
Of bright, untarnished silver,
Of pure and snowy silver:
The cross of burning red.

W. H. STOKES.

Victoria, B.C., April, 1930.

Mr. Howard Ruff, founder and hon. secretary of the Royal Society of St. George, died in November, 1928, in London, England. He was born in 1851, near Wraysbury, in Buckinghamshire, with which county his family have been associated for many generations. His early life was devoted to country pursuits. He was a keen sportsman and a progressive agriculturist. More than forty years ago he was struck by the neglect of English national patriotism, and on each recurring St. George's Day he was a contributor to the press on this subject, and was one of the first to adopt the custom of wearing the English rose on that day. The year 1894 saw the modest beginnings of the Royal Society of St. George, to which Mr. Ruff had ever since devoted himself with unflagging zeal and enthusiasm.

SEAL HUNT IS CLOSE TO END

Newfoundland Captains Make Good Start by Securing 150,000 Pelts in Three Days

OLD MAMMALS LEAVE YOUNG TO SEALERS

(Special to The Colonist. Copyright, 1930.)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 22.—The annual seal hunt off the coast of Newfoundland is now in progress and will continue until the end of April. Present indications point to an average kill.

The fleet entered the seal herd 250 miles north of St. John's, and the kill began on March 13. Seventy-two hours later 150,000 pelts had been secured and taken on board. The total catch will likely reach 300,000 before the end of the voyage, nearly $1,000,000.

The seal hunt is one of Newfoundland's greatest industries, and at the same time, a huge lottery. Success or failure is controlled by Winter storms and Arctic currents that often baffle the most experienced men, upset their most careful calculations and frequently bring to naught the best directed efforts of those "Vikings of the North"—the Newfoundland sealing captains.

The home of the seal-herd, which the Arctic ice-floe brings to Newfoundland's shores annually, is in the Arctic circle. Early in September of each year the migration southward begins, covering 1,500 miles in the course of seven months, when they reach the whelping ice northeast of Newfoundland.

SEEK LEVEL ICE

For whelping ground they seek the level icefield, which drifts along the Labrador and northern Newfoundland coasts from January till the end of April. The young seals are in their prime when four to six weeks old, and the choice of the herd are the young harp seals, locally known as the "whitecoats." When born, the young harp weighs about seven pounds and its fur is almost pure white. It grows with surprising rapidity. Zero weather, with snow and sleet, is the ideal condition for the young seal in its ice-cradle out on the Atlantic.

When the whelping ice is reached the sealers pour forth from their ships and dash over the frozen surface of the ocean into the midst of the herd and fall upon the helpless whitecoats, too young to make escape over the ice into the water. Often 100,000 or more are killed within the space of a few hours.

DESERT YOUNG

As the sealers approach, the old seals scamper away, deserting their young, the whining of which may be heard thousands of yards distant, resembling the cry of an infant in pain, which sometimes stirs compassion in the hearts of even the rough seal hunters inured to the sight of the annual slaughter.

An incomplete record of fatalities shows that about 1,000 sealers have lost their lives, and as many more have been maimed and broken in the prime of manhood in the prosecution of the seal-fishery during the past 100 years. Over 200 of those were frozen to death in blizzards on the icefields.

Vessels have been crushed in the rafting ice and sunk, leaving crews numbering hundreds adrift on the ice-floe far out of sight or reach of land, their only hope being a chance rescue by other sealing vessels. Vessels laden with seals have been caught in storms and submerged with all on board, leaving not a trace behind.

SARAWAK'S RAJAH DUE ON SATURDAY

British Potentate From Borneo Is Aboard Inbound Empress of Russia

Carrying 820 passengers in all classes, R.M.S. Empress of Russia, Captain A. J. Holland, is expected in port some time on Saturday from the Orient.

Those on board include the Rajah of Sarawak, Borneo State, accompanied by five friends and Government officials.

The Rajah is an Englishman, His Highness Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, G.C.M.G., who succeeded to the throne of Sarawak in 1917, following his father, Sir Charles Johnson Brooke, who succeeded his own father, the late Sir James Brooke, named Rajah of Sarawak in 1842.

Sir Charles Brooke's son, the heir presumptive to the throne, is His Highness Tuan Muda (Bertram Willis Brooke). Sarawak is rich in precious metals, petroleum and all the agricultural products of the tropics.

The Rajah is proceeding to London and will sail from Montreal on May 7 on board R.M.S. Empress of Scotland.

Others aboard included Captain G. A. Massey, R.N., of Sydney, commander of His Majesty's Australian ship Canberra; Mr. D. B. S. Beith and Mrs. Beith, of Hong Kong; Mr. W. M. Booth, a veteran traveler to the Orient, bound home to London; Chief Justice Gollam, of Hong Kong; Captain E. J. Hillman, of Burns, Philp, and his friend, Mr. Derby, bound for England and the Derby; Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Marsh of Honk Kong, bound for the United Kingdom and the Continent.

There is also a large party of Chinese officials journeying to the League of Nations at Geneva.

Officials See Fast Plane Put Through Paces

THE PHOTOGRAPH here shows group of Government officials at recent test of the new Blackburn "Lyncock," fast military machine fitted with a Lynx engine driving out 150 miles per hour. Its extreme manoeuvrability, speed and low maintenance cost rank it among advanced training machines. The plane was piloted during demonstration by J. O'Brien. Group shows, left to right, Group Captain L. S. Breadner, chief aeronautical engineer of Department of National Defence, Ottawa; W. Zimmerman, secretary of the De Havilland Aircraft of Canada; Wing Commander E. W. Stedman, director of the R.C.A.F.; and R. A. Loader, general manager of the De Havilland Aircraft.

Young Mother: "I don't know which to teach him first—to walk or to drive the car!"

CHICHIBU MARU ON FAST TRIP

NEW JAPANESE LINER BEATS TIME OF ASAMA ACROSS PACIFIC

With Many Unusual Features Is One of Ocean's Most Luxurious Ships

On her maiden voyage from Japan, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Chichibu Maru made San Francisco last Thursday in 297 hours and seven minutes; twenty-six minutes faster than the initial trip of the Asama Maru, according to word received by Mr. Alfred H. Hebb, N.Y.K. agent here.

With a gross tonnage of 17,500 tons and displacement of 22,200 tons, the Chichibu Maru is 534 feet long, seventy-four feet in beam and forty-three feet deep. She is equipped with two sets of four-cycle, double-acting Diesel engines capable of developing 26,000 horsepower, and can make twenty-one knots. Passenger accommodation comprises 243 first class, ninety-five second cabin and 500 steerage.

Unusual features of the new liner consist of a large and complete beauty parlor, branch office of the Sumitomo Bank of Japan, ship's photographer and public dark-room for amateurs, private dining-rooms, tiled swimming pool and many Japanese art treasures. The ship's public rooms and staterooms make her one of the most luxurious liners plying the Pacific.

SPRING SAILINGS FROM LAKES OUT

Ss. Renfrew to Leave Sarnia, Ont., for Walkerville on Wednesday

SARNIA, Ont., April 22.—Sailings of Canada steamship lines passenger and freight steamers from this port will commence later in the week, it was announced at the local office today. The freighter Renfrew will be the first to leave, sailing for Walkerville on Wednesday and returning here for additional cargo on Thursday to clear for the Upper Lakes. The passenger steamer Hamonic will leave on April 26 with a freight cargo.

TRADE SCHOONER TO LEAVE SOUND ON ARCTIC TRIP

SEATTLE, April 22.—Bound for Arctic regions, Captain John Backland, youthful skipper of the schooner C. S. Holmes, plans to leave Seattle on May 20 on his fourteenth trading trip.

The C. S. Holmes will carry an extensive variety of miscellaneous freight and trading supplies and a fox terrier that will make his home at Point Barrow with only malamutes as playmates. He was purchased by Captain Backland for Dr. L. Greist, the physician at Point Barrow. Dr. Greist's dog died last Summer after raiding the medicine chest at the Barrow Hospital and eating a box of strychnine pills, Captain Backland said.

The C. S. Holmes will be towed to sea off Cape Flattery and then head under sail for Gambel, St. Lawrence Island. She will go to Sevoonga, also on the island; to Tinn City, Bering Strait; Cape Prince of Wales, Shishmarf, Kotzebue, Kivalina, Point Hope, Point Lay, a new trading station, Wainwright and then to Point Barrow. The Holmes is expected to reach Barrow August 15.

Princess Joan Calls in Canary Islands En Route

FLYERS PERISH IN AIR CRASH

Mr. H. W. Carew, of Vernon, and Sergt. A. Richards, of Winnipeg, Crash at Regina

STALLED ENGINE IS CAUSE OF DISASTER

REGINA, April 22.—Flying Officer H. W. Carew, of Vernon, B.C., and Sergeant A. Richards, of Winnipeg, were instantly killed today when the engine of their airplane stalled and the machine crashed in the west end of the city. Both are members of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Winnipeg.

The two flyers were pinned under the wreckage of the craft, which dropped from an altitude of 400 feet.

The two men took off from the Regina Municipal Airport at 10:15 o'clock in a Fairchild monoplane, army model. They intended to fly to Saskatoon. Leaving the airport the plane zoomed off the ground, but despite the bad start they reached a height of 400 feet when they suddenly dropped as the engine stopped.

The plane went into a turn and crashed to the ground and overturned. Gasoline spread over the plane from the tank but there was no fire. The plane dropped about 200 yards south of Thirteenth Avenue, near Aberdeen Street, about two miles west of the centre of the city.

SHIPS SOLD FOR NEW OCEAN LINE

Roosevelt Company, Inc., to Ply Between Baltimore and German Ports

WASHINGTON, April 22. — The sale of five vessels to the Roosevelt Company, Incorporated, of New York, for a new transatlantic steamship line was authorized today by the shipping board.

The five vessels, of 11,773 tons each, are to be reconditioned so as to provide a speed of sixteen knots each and accommodations for 100 passengers. The new line will operate between Baltimore and Hampton Roads, and Bremen and Hamburg, the ships also having calling privileges at French Atlantic and Channel ports.

BIRTHDAY TODAY

Mr. Henry Hammond King, of King Brothers, shipping agents and Customs brokers, today celebrates his fortieth birthday. A native son of Victoria, Mr. King, with his brother, Mr. Edward Hammond King, was prominent in yachting circles before the war with the forty-foot cruiser Kaheea, and up to a year ago was an enthusiastic hunter in many Island forests. He joined his brother under the name of King Brothers in 1909, and since that time the firm has become widely known from Alaska to California and east to the Old Country.

FRENCH GIRL GETS POST

For the first time in France a girl just out of her 'teens has been appointed private secretary to a Cabinet minister. She is Mlle. Odette Raoul Peret, whose appointment has just been officially announced as "right-hand man" to her father, former Prime Minister and now Minister of Justice in M. Tardieu's Cabinet. Mlle. Peret is a charming and vivacious brunette. She has studied law and is an expert on political questions.

SCOTCH HIRING FAIRS HELD

Hiring Day in Border towns of Scotland was more eventful this year than usual because of the unemployment situation. Market squares were crowded, and often farmers could not be distinguished from applicants. In some places farm workers pinned a straw or some other mark of distinction to their coats to show that they were for hire. Some towns report that wages were down this year as much as $1.25 a week, and that farmers were doing with fewer workers.

POLICE CLUE EXTENSIVE

London police have a clue running back beyond the Bronze Age. When a stone coffin, containing bones, was found during excavations at Church Road, near Croydon, the sleuths asked British Museum officials to determine the age of the bones. The reply was that the coffin was one of the oldest ever discovered, and that the bones were relics of before the Bronze Age—1000-2000 B.C.

"What," asked the teacher, of one of her pupils, "do we mean by the word 'plural'?"

BLUNDER PUTS SHIP IN WRONG

AGENTS WONDER WHO TO PLACE BLAME ON

VANCOUVER, April 22. — One often hears of persons getting into wrong hotel rooms, but seldom hears of a vessel getting into a wrong port. The oil tanker Los Alamos, bound from San Pedro to Seattle, arrived here last night and asked the local agents for orders. The master of the vessel soon found out, however, that somebody had blundered, and that his cargo was bound for Seattle, not Vancouver. He and his vessel got out of port on the same tide.

HARD PASSAGE IS TERMINATED

FREIGHTER MAPLETON PROCEEDS THROUGH NEW WELLAND CANAL

Insufficiency of Water Encountered —Fifteen Craft Waiting to Go

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., April 22.—After a difficult passage, the freighter Mapleton steamed through the lower gates of Lock 4 of the newly-opened Welland ship system at 1 o'clock this morning, the first ship to negotiate the canal from lake to lake.

The Mapleton was the first boat to enter the Port Colborne end of the shipway and led the down traffic in spite of many stops, owing to insufficiency of water. About fifteen boats are lying in the canal.

MISHIMA MARU IS ON WAY TO PORT

Having left Yokohama for Victoria on April 15, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Mishima Maru is expected at Rithet piers on Monday, April 28, according to Mr. Alfred H. Hebb.

For this port the liner carries twenty-two first class passengers, two second cabin, nineteen third class, 223 tons of cargo and seventeen cases of silk goods. Twenty first class passengers, nineteen second cabin and thirty-five third class will go on to Seattle.

Pacific Pioneer

Bound for Victoria, the Furness (Pacific) motorship Pacific Pioneer left Los Angeles at 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon and is expected at Rithet piers Thursday evening or Friday morning, according to King Brothers.

ANTIQUARIANS PUZZLED

Antiquarians of Scotland are puzzled over a recent find in Stirling during the demolition of ancient buildings. They could determine that an old draw well had been under a house built 275 years ago and that window stones with the inscription "A. R." in flowing letters probably dated from the reign of Queen Anne. But a legend on a window is causing them to scratch their heads, for they have no record of anything like it. The legend reads: "I. B. IT."

GERMAN SOLDIERS USE SKIIS

The German National Guard in Silesia are being trained to march on skiis. Skiing on night patrols through forests of snow-covered evergreens has been part of the work at the Winter training camp near Hirschberg, the heights of the Reisen Mountains being utilized as a practice ground. Carrying guns and full equipment the soldiers made forced marches over the snow-covered passes, camping at night on the snow.

Wide trousers, similar to the Oxford bags, are being worn by fashionable women at the Riviera.

Bowel and Bladder Trouble for Years. Now Never Sick

"Am 60 and doctored for years for trouble between bladder and bowels. Often home from work months until I took 'Fruit-a-tives.' Since then never sick a day."—Thomas Graham, Oshawa, Ont.

MUSEUM MADE THIEF-PROOF

PRICELESS TREASURES ARE GUARDED BY WONDERFUL ALARM SYSTEM

Attempt to Steal Would Automatically Bring About Imprisonment of Culprit

NEW YORK, April 23.—Installation of a super burglar alarm system in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, with its priceless treasures, has made this famous institution thief-proof, it is believed by the museum trustees and the engineers who perfected the system.

Not only is the museum protected against actual theft, but any attempt to molest the treasured objects would result automatically and immediately in imprisoning the vandal within the walls of the museum. The greatest secrecy regarding the system and its operation is maintained by the museum officials and the Holmes Electric Protective Company, a subsidiary of the New York Telephone Company, which installed it.

ELECTRIC "NERVES"

According to authentic information, the system recently installed works like the nervous system of a human body. The instant anyone disturbs any of the protected objects the electric "nerve" records in the "brain centre" the exact point of trouble and also automatically sounds the alarm.

The force of guards always on duty at the entrance and exit doors close all doors with the sounding of the alarm and no one is permitted to leave the building until the cause for the alarm has been thoroughly investigated and all exhibits found to be intact.

At night, with the museum closed, guards have designated posts throughout the building. Their watch tour is so arranged that not one of them is left alone, and in this way they check up on the movements of one another.

The intricate and highly ramified electric wire connections throughout the museum make it a small replica of a city-wide burglar-alarm system, and has been the result of nearly a half-century of experimentation.

INVISIBLE WIRES

A visitor will not notice strips of tinfoil on the glass enclosed receptacles that contain these priceless objects. But under these unnoticed little strips are the telltale invisible electrical wires of communication to the galvonometer. These wires are highly sensitized and the cutting of the glass receptacle or even the lifting of the object would instantly record an alarm.

The famed cup of gold and enamel called the Rospiglion Cup by Benvenuto Cellini; the statuette of the god Amon, and other objects in the Carnarvon collection of Egyptian antiquities are protected in this way.

The famous Adams gold vase, made of California gold and other metals, is another priceless object which would instantly "shriek" out for protection if anyone even attempted to lift it.

Irish Songs and Dance Hits Will Entertain Fans

Two Irish songs are included in the programme to be presented by Zac Kalbach's Hometowners over KJR this evening, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. The Hometowners will play "Bits of Blarney," and Glen Eaton, tenor, will sing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Other selections include "Jolly Coppersmith," "Miss Trombone," "Coons Holiday" and "Forget Me Not." Eaton will also offer "Among My Souvenirs."

Vic Meyers' recording orchestra, playing from Club Victor, will supply listeners with dance music beginning at 11 p.m. The Whirlwinds, with Marjorie Robillard, pianist, and Ukelele Bob as intermission artists, will play a dance programme from 10:30 to 11 o'clock.

The famous actress hit upon what she thought a first-class plan for insuring the safety of her pearl necklace.

But when she returned home one night, the necklace had gone. In its place was this note: "This necklace will do, thanks; I'm only a substitute. The burglar who usually looks after this district is in prison."

Billy Brown was dreaming of the glorious game of football he was going to have as soon as he got out of school. He wasn't a bit interested in the elephant, which was the subject of the lesson to which he ought to have been listening. The teacher saw this, and pounced on him.

Billy was staggered for a moment, but rose gallantly to the occasion.

"P-please, sir," he stammered, "elephants are so big that they're hardly ever lost!"

FAINT, DIZZY SPELLS
Had to Sleep Propped Up In Bed

Mrs. Norman Bishop, Salisbury, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with faint and dizzy spells and when I would lie down I would suffer terribly with smothering spells. I got so bad I had to sleep propped up in bed.

"My doctor said it was my heart and nerves, and that I needed a good heart tonic.

and I had not taken one box when I could lie down and sleep like a child."

PROGRAMME IS WITH PRINTERS

Tickets Available for Festival Which Will Open Within Two Weeks

Arrangements are well in hand for the Musical Festival to be held in this city May 6 to 10 inclusive. The entire committee is very busy with final arrangements. The programme—a colossal piece of work—is in the hands of the printers, competitive cards are being sent to competitors, and the festival itself is but two weeks off.

The committee is confidently expecting the support of the entire community in this undertaking and that the sale of the membership tickets will reach the same large number as last year (there were 950 tickets provided and were practically all sold).

These tickets admit one to all-day sessions of the competition programme and at half price to all evening sessions except the final concerts on Saturday night. This final programme will take the form of two concerts—one in the Metropolitan Church and the other in the First United Church. This is being done because there is no building in Victoria large enough to accommodate the number of people who will wish to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these concerts. It is confidently expected that both halls will be filled to capacity.

It is the wish of the committee that the whole community will get whole-heartedly behind them, encourage students in their educational activities, give a helping hand to deserving talent, making the forthcoming festival the greatest thus far given.

Membership tickets may be obtained at any of the music stores or from any of the committee.

BANK OFFICIALS FACING CHARGES

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 22.—Charges of misapplication of $1,297,366 funds of the Texas National Bank here, and of false entry in an individual account, were filed today in Federal Court against Mr. B. B. Samuels, president, and Mr. A. L. Baker, vice-president.

Music of Lost Continent in Damski Concert

The mystery and romance of Atlantis, the lost continent, written into music by German, will be transmitted to listeners when Henri Damski's Neapolitans play over KJR this evening from 9 to 10 o'clock.

The composition is in four movements. The first is "Nocturne and Morning Hymn of Praise." The second takes listeners to a "Court Function." The love song of the Prince and Aana, "I Love Thee," makes up the third movement. The composition ends with "The Destruction of Atlantis."

A new arrangement of the old favorite operatic selection of Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," "The Dutch Mill" from the suite "In Holland," "Three Dances," by German, and "Silhouettes," a characteristic suite of different countries, by Hadley, are included in the programme.

Agatha Turley, soprano, is the vocal soloist. Selections to be sung include "My Hero," "Love Went a-Riding," and "In Italy."

The programme will be heard over the Northwest broadcasting system for release through KGA and KEX.

"It won't be long now," as the man said when he found the terrier chewing up his wife's evening frock.

CHEVROLET

It's wise to choose a SIX!

After all, it is a perfectly simple matter to decide which automobile you want to buy. Only two questions must be answered to your satisfaction—

First*: Which car gives the most for my money?

Second*: Which car represents the soundest investment from the standpoint of satisfaction and pride of ownership?

Six-Cylinder Motor

In buying a low-priced car consider the following facts:

* * * *

It is wise to choose a six-cylinder motor—for in order to get six-cylinder smoothness, it is necessary to have six cylinders.

Six-cylinder smoothness takes out vibration and roughness. This saves the motor, the whole chassis, the body, the passengers, and the driver. Drivers who try six cylinders never want less.

The Chevrolet is a six. And yet it sells at a price that anyone can afford to pay.

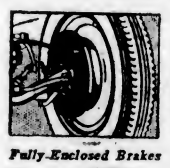

This very low-priced car lasts longer, not only because of fine materials and over-size parts, but also because it is a six. The big, smooth, 50-horsepower six-cylinder Chevrolet engine is always "taking it easy." From crawling to racing speeds, everything is smooth. There is no feeling of strain.

And at every speed—no matter how hard or how long you drive—the motor is protected by water temperature and oil pressure gauges, mounted on the dash. These gauges are important safety features and give added assurance of long engine life. You should demand their extra protection in the car you buy.

* * * *

With all its six-cylinder smoothness and power the New Chevrolet Six uses no extra gasoline or oil. Modern efficiency in design makes this possible—overhead valves—high compression power from ordinary fuel—very latest high-acceleration carburetor—close-fitting, long-wearing pistons—crankcase ventilation—air cleaner. You can really have extreme economy and still satisfy your modern performance ideals. Chevrolet brings truly modern transportation within reach of all who can afford any car. Chevrolet economy is the mark of Chevrolet sincerity in manufacture. To illustrate:

Chevrolet valves are readily accessible and easily adjustable—a feature not usually found on cars of low price. This not only saves the cost of replacing valves, but it also makes it possible to preserve quiet, economical, efficient motor operation.

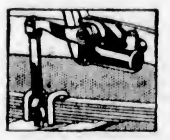

Fully-Enclosed Brakes

* * * *

A similar example is found in Chevrolet's molded brake lining. In careful tests at the General Motors Proving Ground this lining has lasted over 25,000 miles of usage—reducing the necessity of frequent replacement, and consequent expense.

Furthermore, there is a rear axle inspection plate on the Chevrolet. This makes it unnecessary to take the axle apart to examine or clean it.

Delco-Lovejoy Shock Absorbers

* * * *

The Chevrolet Six is full of such evidence that true economy comes from advancement and refinement.

Like all the finest cars, the Chevrolet Six provides the comfort and protection of four extra-long, chrome-vanadium springs that are controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers. They are mounted lengthwise, in the direction of car travel, and self-adjusting spring shackles are used for lasting quiet.

With modern low suspension and extra wheelbase, the Chevrolet Six has the fundamentals of modern motor car beauty. It is long, low and properly proportioned. The impressive front view is distinguished by the genuine honeycomb radiator, another mark of modern cars.

Safety Gasoline Tank

* * * *

The gasoline tank is mounted in the rear. This not only increases the safety of the passengers, but results in finer appearance.

Chevrolet beauty instantly says "Body by Fisher." Body by Fisher means the style of the costliest cars. But it means much more—permanent quiet, sturdiness, balance and safety, made possible only by Fisher composite steel-and-wood construction.

Body by Fisher gives you a genuine non-glare windshield, as in the finest cars. It gives you an adjustable driver's seat, used in every luxury car. The New Chevrolet Six gives you more seat space, deeper cushions, greater leg room, clearer vision, finer fabrics and fitments.

* * * *

You can actually see all the extra value of Chevrolet-Fisher bodies. And there is just as much extra value everywhere in the car. By actual count of modern features—by actual measure of value—by actual weight—by actual scientific test—AND BY ANY MODERN STANDARD OF PERFORMANCE the Chevrolet Six is the greatest value in the low-price field.

It is wise to choose the Chevrolet Six with its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor . . with full scientific equipment . . with its Body by Fisher . . with four long semi-elliptic springs, long wheelbase, low suspension, rear-mounted gasoline tank, honeycomb radiator and all the other features of this day and age.

See your nearest Chevrolet dealer today and drive a Chevrolet Six. Ten minutes at the wheel will show you what a difference six cylinders make. Ask about the G.M.A.C., General Motors' own Time Payment Plan.

After Selling Wave Goes At N.Y. Speculation for Rise Is Quickly Resumed

NEW YORK, April 22.—The stock market was called upon to absorb further heavy liquidation in pivotal issues early today, but as the selling wave appeared to have spent its force by afternoon, speculation for the rise was briskly resumed, several pool favorites shooting up in spectacular fashion as short commitments were hastily covered.

The recovery was somewhat irregular, but a handful of shares surged up 3 to 11 points, several reaching record levels for the year, and J. I. Case rushed up 29 points. The index of ninety leading shares recorded a gain of only 1 7-10 points, however, which was less than half yesterday's loss. Trading was in slightly greater volume than yesterday, transfers aggregating 4,589,090 shares.

Call money was again plentiful, renewing at 4 per cent, dropping to 3 1-2 per cent and loaning in the outside market at 3 per cent.

Diamond Match rushed up 10 points in a large turnover, and American Waterworks, Eastman Kodak, Electric Power & Light, and Worthington Pump sold up 7 to 11 points. Radio rose nearly 5 points to a new high for the year at 68.

Crucible Steel, American Can and Westinghouse Electric lost a point or two, Ingersoll Rand six, and Federal Mining touching a new low at 170.

Easier credit conditions lent some assistance to the bond list today. Investment rails hardened considerably, while United States governments and the utilities were firm. The volume, however, remained unimpaired, although a few carrier liens turned over in larger volume.

Such Losses Are Preventable

There are men, once well-to-do, who went broke through some so-called misfortune which swept away their whole accumulations of money.

A close analysis of almost any one of them reveals the fact that they have made investments with practically no facts upon which to base judgment.

It is the more regrettable because complete information could have been obtained through any investment banking house. There is never any obligation for such counsel.

SAY DEBENTURES ARE IRREGULAR

Sproat Lake Lumber Co. Defends Action Brought by Royal Trust Co. as to Issue

VANCOUVER, April 22.—In an action by Royal Trust Company, West Pender, to enforce a $100,000 debenture issue against properties of Sproat Lake Lumber Co., Ltd., Vancouver, the defendant has pleaded that the bonds are irregular and ultra vires on the ground that they had not been authorized by a general meeting of shareholders.

Mr. Justice W. A. MacDonald is hearing the trial in Supreme Court.

The Sproat Lake Lumber Co., Ltd., was adjudged bankrupt on November 7, 1929. The Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, was, on December 18, appointed trustee in bankruptcy of the estate. In the meantime, on November 28, the Royal Trust Company had Adelbert Roy MacFarlane appointed receiver of properties covered by the debentures.

In the interest of unsecured creditors, with claims aggregating $56,000 against the estate, Mr. J. E. Bird and Mr. R. M. MacDonald, as counsel for Sproat Lake Lumber Co., Ltd., seek to have the debenture issue set aside, and the registration of the bonds discharged.

The debentures were hypothecated to the Bank of Montreal as collateral security for advances made by the bank to the defunct lumber company.

Mr. H. B. Robertson, K.C., is counsel for plaintiff.

Calgary Oil News

(Miller, Court & Co., Ltd.)

A report from Oyen, Alberta, yesterday states water has ceased running into the Fuego well for the past forty-eight hours. A production test was made covering a twelve-hour period of Fuego No. 1, which showed sixty-eight barrels a day. Oil is accumulating in the hole too fast for the gas to raise it and a pump is to be installed immediately. The oil now coming in is of a rich amber color and apparently of a much higher grade. Work will commence early on the No. 2 well.

A.P. Con. No. 1 struck the Turner Valley limestone yesterday at a depth of 5,563 feet. Will drill about twenty-five feet in formation before running five-inch casing. Well was drilled to present depth with rotary and mud circulation. No definite plans yet for equipment to be installed in completing the well. A.P. Con. No. 2, in resuming drilling after unsatisfactory production test, has cut fifteen more feet of porous lime. The porous stratum was hit at 5,595 feet. The well is now 5,633 feet; 469 feet from top to the lime.

Homestead is drilling past lost bit after shooting dynamite at bottom of hole to loosen formation. Royalite No. 16 is small producer, states officials. This well may be shot with nitroglycerine.

Eastcrest No. 1 plans to run five-inch casing to bottom of hole, 4,412 feet, 112 feet in lime, as soon as the bit drills beyond the lost basket. Regent sale to Mid-Continent authorized by share vote yesterday with 400,000 shares favoring and 160,000 opposing.

Mayland No. 1 gas flow, as liberated by shot of nitroglycerine, is comparatively small. Estimated to be about 4,000,000 cubic feet.

Freeman Lundy, Central Turner Valley, struck another large flow of gas late last night and appeared to have about ten million feet in all. Tools were pulled and it was planned to go back in the hole this morning if the flow could be counteracted.

Dalhousie No. 7, recently resumed from the top of the limestone, reported to have struck small quantity of gas at comparatively shallow depth. Capitol No. 2, Red Coulee, has derrick erected and machinery is on the way. Hargal is drilling in very hard formation at 5,235 feet, 185 feet in lime. Freehold No. 2 had another increase in gas at 185 feet in lime and is still drilling in hard formation.

LIQUIDATION ON IN WHEAT

May Drops Two Cents to New Low on the Crop—Slow Foreign Demand Reported

CROP COMMENTS ARE RATHER CONFLICTING

(B.C. Bond Corporation, Ltd.)

CHICAGO, April 22.—Liquidation was on in wheat, especially in May, which dropped over 2 cents from yesterday's finish to a new low on the crop. Scattered longs went out of their holdings on the way down. There was aggressive buying of July at times, credited to short covering for Eastern account, but locals were bearish and there was also persistent commission house selling. Buying against bids helped check the decline. Rains in parts of Oklahoma and Kansas had some effect on sentiment, as did a slow foreign demand for cash grain.

The seaboard reported a little business in Manitobas and Winnipeg reported sales to Greece and Italy. Liverpool closed 1 3-8 to 1 7-8d lower, compared with Saturday's finish, while Buenos Aires was unchanged to 1-4 lower at midday.

Forecast was for threatening weather in Kansas and Nebraska. Crop comments from the Southwest were somewhat conflicting.

Corn was somewhat firmer, although weakening with wheat at one time. Cold weather over the belt had some effect, but there was no material pressure. Buenos Aires was 3-4 to 1 cent lower at midday. Commission houses were fair buyers of futures here, while locals were the main sellers.

Oats averaged lower with other grains and on favorable crop comments from the main sections of the belt. Condition in Kansas rather unfavorable. Rye weakened with wheat.

EDUCATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE

One way is to open a straight savings account and estimate the amount necessary to be deposited each month to have the required amount by the time the child is ready for college. Then to deposit the estimated amount each month.

Another plan which has attractive features is the new educational policy being offered by some of the life insurance companies. Under this plan a certain premium is paid yearly to guarantee, for instance, a fund of $4,000, this fund to be paid in four installments, beginning at the time the beneficiary reaches college age. Under this plan, should the father die after paying only his first premium, his son or daughter is assured of a fund for a college education and the same is true, of course, if the father lives.

Rally to End Early Today Says Whitney

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, April 22.—Whitney, of Wall Street Financial Bureau, says: It was expected that today's market would produce a rally, although as it did develop it was perhaps entitled to a better description that that which was given it here, viz., "a fitful rally." The fact remains, however, that it is a rally and nothing more, which represents, on the whole, every moderate retracement of the 5½-point industrial average decline of Monday, and the less radical decline in the rail and utility groups of the same day, and in no way alters the short term trend which is downward.

I continue to believe that this 1930 market is going to very closely approximate the 1908 market just as it has done in the first phase of advance, with the calling for an interruption to the advance, which should find its bottom 10 points below today's close. Thereafter I expect the advance to be resumed, and prices substantially higher than have been witnessed this year. As stated yesterday, I expect one group to break away from the general market trend at this time, and advance steadily through the period of correction which we are now in. This is the oil group, and advantage should be taken throughout this period of reaction for the purchase of the most promising oil stocks.

So long as Standard Oil of New Jersey is obtainable below 80 a share, it should be purchased. As a matter of fact, there need be little hesitancy in following it even beyond that price, as I am quite confident that we shall witness Standard of New Jersey at about 120 a share this year. In the low-priced oils, nothing appears any more attractive than that issue which the Rockefellers purchased along with their buying of New Jersey in the November crash; Transcontinental, which is the owner of the greatest oil reserve in the country today, and must be considered as in a buying range at any figure below 25 a share.

A word about International Utilities "A." It is one of the issues which should be held or bought irrespective of general market action, as I am advised plans have been definitely made for the retirement of the stock at its callable price, which is 60 a share. Radio, which you were given as one of the issues which would "buck the trend" has, I believe, about completed this phase of its advance and consequently it is recommended that in the early strength which is expected for tomorrow's market you cash in your profits in Radio at any figure of 68 or better. Believe that evidence of the termination of this phase of advance in Radio will be the tape signal for the reappearance of general reaction today.

COARSE GRAINS ARE REMARKABLY FIRM

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, April 22.—Wheat: The market, while acting stubborn, lost ground today and prices on the extreme dip were 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 cents below yesterday's closing figures. There was no particular pressure from offerings, but weakness in Chicago, where the May futures fell to 1.02 3-8, which was a new low point for the whole crop, had the effect of pulling this market downward, but Winnipeg gained on Chicago, the local May future going to a premium of 4 cents over Chicago May. Trade volume was not large, but on the declines some seaboard buying developed against export sales, which were estimated at around 750,000 bushels, which caused a fair reaction upward. The Chicago market also recovered more than 1 cent, and the Farm Board was reported to be supporting the May on the weak spots.

There was a fair demand for cash wheat and some sales of 1 and 2 Northern were made to Canadian mills at spreads 1-4 better, but offerings generally were light and there was no pressure to sell. The United States Farm Board was credited with the statement that it would make no more loans to farmers against their cash wheat, and this was construed as bearish. There were a few light showers in the Southwest. There are still a few dry spots in Kansas being reported, but generally speaking the crop has been greatly benefited by the precipitation of the past week. Conditions in Western Canada are mostly favorable for the time being, but weather conditions are too cold for any growth.

Coarse grains: These markets hold remarkably firm with no selling pressure in evidence, but business is extremely quiet, cash demand almost flat and nothing of feature is going on. Flax: Dull and featureless. Liverpool due 1 1-2 higher based on Winnipeg.

POST-HOLIDAY STOCK MARKET OPENS LOWER

NO ENLIVENMENT IS RESULT OF CLOSING

VANCOUVER, April 22. — The local stock exchange reopened today following the extended Easter week-end holiday, and prices dropped to lower levels, no interest in the market having accumulated in the interim between Thursday and today.

Home Oil suffered a 10-cent loss to $7.80, while Mayland was off 6 cents to $1.06. Five-cent declines were registered by Vancouver-Alberta and Calmont. Southwest Pete went contrary to the general trend and gained 5 cents to .60. C. & E. Corporation and Eastcrest each dropped 3 cents.

The mines were dull. Five-cent losses were suffered by Pend Oreille and Reeves-MacDonald, while Planet dropped .04 to .25.

Employees Present Large Trust Fund

MR. C. O. STILLMAN (right), president of Imperial Oil, Limited, is seen above accepting a cheque for $35,300, which is being handed him by Mr. A. MacCorkindale, manager of the company's marketing branch at Victoria, as chairman of an employees' committee. The fund was voluntarily subscribed by employees to commemorate the completion of fifty years of activity during which the company has never experienced a strike or been engaged in major litigation. It is to be a neucleus of a trust fund to be administered by the directors, and the income from which is to be devoted to humanitarian purposes. Others in the above photograph are Mr. Charles Wall of Toronto, representing marketing, with 46 years' service; (left), Mr. James Wade, of Sarnia, representing manufacturing, 45 years' service, and Mr. Matt Smith, of Petrolia, representing production, 46 years' service.

MENNONITES ARE ALL PACIFISTS

Future of Colony in Gran Chaco Rests on Outcome of Bolivian-Paraguay Dispute

While the Gran Chaco controversy has been raging between Bolivia and Paraguay, one of the groups most vitally interested in its solution has been completely ignored both by the parties to the dispute and generally by the press of the world. This group is the Mennonite Church, which now holds by grant from Paraguay a large tract in the Gran Chaco.

Should the conciliation commission, which is reported to be on the eve of settling the whole matter, give to Bolivia the lands which that country has granted to the Mennonites, what would be the standing of that small sect as regards the homes and farms which they have so laboriously wrested from the wilderness?

One of the cardinal principles of the sect is pacifism. They are forbidden to bear arms, or, indeed, to take oath for any purpose, or to take part in any civic activity. They are thus quite at the mercy of any nation or organized group with whom they may be in dispute.

Some time ago a small colony of Mennonites emigrated from Canada to Paraguay and were there granted lands well within the Gran Chaco by the Paraguayan Government, in spite of the fact that Bolivia claims a clear title to the Chaco of over three hunderd and fifty years' standing.

NO ACTUAL TITLE

Paraguay, while she has no actual title to any part of the Gran Chaco, is very close to the territory and for years has sent her nationals into it without Bolivian permission and, indeed, in the face of constant Bolivian protest. Whatever rights she may have—and Bolivia does not admit that she has any—are the rights of a squatter only. It is therefore quite possible that the lands granted to the Mennonites by Paraguay will, in the near future, be ruled by Bolivia.

While apparently not disposed to disturb those settlements already made by Paraguayans or others within the territory, it is very doubtful if Bolivia will concede ownership by grant or otherwise, of any territory bordering on certain navigable parts of the Paraguay and Pilcomayo Rivers. These rivers constitute her last hope of an outlet to the sea—in this case the Atlantic Ocean. This she has determined that she will have. She is in desperate need of a port, and the present situation, whatever it may be, will not weaken her insistence upon this.

While the land granted to the first Mennonite settlers by Paraguay was small in extent, the drift of members of the sect to the Chaco has greatly increased of late. Recently an American steamship line took 500 Mennonites from Canada to South America in order that they might join their brothers in the Chaco. Plans are being made, it is said, to transport to the same territory a large body of Mennonites who have recently left Russia and are now in Germany. The German Government is understood to be making all arrangements and bearing the expense of the migration.

These facts would point to a considerably larger distribution of land to the Mennonite sect, with a consequent greater danger to its holdings in the event than the expected arbitration greatly changes the status quo in the Chaco Boreal. Evangelical Christians who stress complete gentleness and purity of life, entirely non-combative and mostly agricultural in habit, the Mennonites are poorly equipped to assert their rights in a wild country situated, and in dispute, between two countries unfriendly to each other and comparatively warlike.

REASSURING ANSWER

However, an inquiry just made of the Bolivian Government has resulted in a most reassuring answer: "Under no circumstances would my Government disturb the Mennonite settlers in the Gran Chaco," said Victor Sanches Pena, Bolivian Consul-General at New York. "They do not conflict with our ownership of the Chaco. Should Bolivia be awarded, in any arbitration, the lands which they occupy, her first act would be to confirm officially the Mennonite possession. Indeed, these immigrants are of such a high character and so expert as agricultural workers that it would be to the interest of Bolivia not only to confirm their ownership of the lands they now occupy, but to increase these holdings at any time, should they desire it. I am authorized by my Government to state that under no conditions will there be any disturbance by the Bolivian Government or citizens of the Mennonites settled in the Gran Chaco. I have had copies of this assurance sent to the various Mennonite bodies in the United States, Canada, Germany and the Gran Chaco."

EXPLORING SOUTH OF MAIN ORE ZONE

Kirkland Lake Gold Finding New Ore Bodies With Diamond Drill

(Miller, Court & Co., Ltd.)

TORONTO, April 22.—Kirkland Lake Gold is exploring the ground south of its main ore zone by diamond drilling holes projected from the 3,850-foot horizon. The first hole cut ore in a porphyry zone in this section, and the additional drilling is expected to show other occurrences. Further drilling will be done later from the 4,000-foot horizon.

The new No. 3 shaft at Lake Shore, which caused considerable trouble by caving below the 300-foot level, is again in full operation. Steel and concrete were employed and men are now being carried as well as ore down to 2,000 feet.

Mining Corporation earned ten times as much on investments in 1929 as it did on Cobalt operations. The total was equal to 57 cents per share and liquid assets are shown to equal 2.37 per share.

BULLISH TONE IS DEVELOPED

CARRIES NEW YORK STOCKS ABOVE PREVIOUS DAY'S CLOSE

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, April 22.—Starting off fractionally lower, the market before the end of the first hour developed a moderate bullish tone which carried it slightly above the previous day's close, although the coppers remained stationary, with Anaconda a conspicuously weak spot. Fox Films and allied shares from the beginning resumed their activity at the high levels and continued so through the day.

The bulge was reversed toward the middle of the day, following the publication of reports of operations among the Chicago steel mills, which showed a decided falling off in operations. This had the effect of encouraging professional selling, which became more aggressive until past the noon hour, although it was noted that the drive did not invite the pressing of stocks for sale in any great amount by the general public.

The downward movement was halted by the publication of petroleum figures, which showed a sizeable falling off in the stocks of crude oil on the Pacific Coast, and, after riding along for a while at a sustained level, the list in the last hour developed a pronouced improvement, which manifested itself particularly in U.S. Steel and the oil shares, especially Standard of California, which was probably directly affected by the improved gasoline price situation reported from California. The buoyancy continued to the close, resulting in the general list closing at or near the highs of the day, with net gains of from 1 to 4 points quite numerous.

We are impressed with the fact that in recent upswings and downswings the almost invariable experience has been that trading slows up on any decided downward swing, indicating that holders are confident regarding the ultimate, but not necessarily distant, course of the market. We would continue the policy of following the constructive side of the market in the belief that therein rests the greater certainty of profits.

Women's Lives Grow Shorter but Longer Than Those of Men

NEW YORK, April 22.—Dorothy G. Wiehl, of the Milbank Memorial Fund's research staff, announces that Federal census bureau figures show American women now have less chance of living to old age than women had ten years ago, although women have better chances of reaching three-score-and-ten than men have. Miss Wiehl's report is based on a study of deaths among adults from 1921 to 1927.

Lady Meredith Dies

She was one of the original members of the Imperial Order Daughters of Empire, and served on many of its committees, especially on the committee appointed to care for the graves of Canadian soldiers who died during the South African War.

A layman whose duty it was to read the lesson in church came to a passage concerning "the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof." Unfortunately, the word "horsemen" came at the bottom of the page, and, after a slight pause occupied in turning over, he startled his hearers by pronouncing the next word as "they're off."

GROUP LIFE CASE

A large group life case covering 4,000 employees of the Kelvinator Corporation and subsidiaries has just been closed by the Detroit group office of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. The total volume of business will approximate $9,000,000. It covers employees of the company and its subsidiaries at Detroit, Mich.; Cleveland, Ohio; New York, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Cambridge, Mass.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; London, Ont., and London, England.

The coverage is an exceptionally good one, for, in addition to life assurance protection, the policy includes health and accident benefits written jointly with the Sun Life in co-operation with the Zurich General Accident & Liability Insurance Company, Limited.

The details of the case were handled by Ralph C. Wilson, of Detroit, working in conjunction with Harry N. Phillips, of the Sun Life Detroit office.

UPWARD TREND IS PERSISTENT

LOEW'S SHOWS PROGRESSIVE GAINS IN MOVEMENTS DEVELOPED

Pick Up in Motor Stocks Activity Indicated by Chrysler's Increased Steel Orders

(B.C. Bond Corporation, Ltd.)

NEW YORK, April 22. (By Caplane).—Since Loew's shook off the influence of the Fox troubles, the stock developed movements of its own and showed progressive gains. A close study of its fluctuations reveals a persistent upward trend with setbacks of normal character. Each gain is being consolidated before the stock moves into new high territory. Yesterday, it resumed its advance and set up a new high for all time. The gains should be extended a little bit further but then the usual reaction is expected to set in.

In view of the fact that Fox situation is not yet fully straightened out, the outlook for Loew's continues satisfactory. We believe that a price of 120, reputed to have been paid for the stock by the Fox interests, will ultimately be attained by Loew's. The publicity regarding the Loew's transaction shows that this company is in an exceptionally sound position and that it is in no way affected by the Fox situation. An organization of Loew's is therefore a strong asset to any enterprise. The retention by the Fox organization of the acquired Loew's stock now appears definite and the independent stockholders can expect just value for their holdings. Inasmuch as the market, however, is bent on profit taking, we anticipate lower quotations for Loew's and such recessions should be utilized for reacquiring holdings of this stock.

CHRYSLER

While the Street remains cautious with regard to motor stocks, the pick-up in activity as indicated by increased steel orders from this source and also increase in retail sales reported by the companies, warrants a more constructive attitude toward this group. At current quotations, the motor stocks have fully discounted the poor first-quarters earnings and are therefore in a good technical position to show sharper gains as soon as the market is ready for a new upswing.

Chrysler, which moved within a very narrow range around 40, should not suffer much from a reactionary setback and there is a sufficient volume of buying orders in the hands of specialists around 37 to 40 to account for a speedy check to the downward trend and subsequent early recovery. We are confident that by the middle of next month, the motor group will again command public favor and Chrysler, as one of the best situated members of its class should be able to show appreciable gains. Accumulations on a scale down promises good profits.

WILL SPEND MILLIONS IN NORTHERN SEARCH

Five Companies Combine in Five-Year Programme of Prospecting

(Meharry, Roe & Co., Ltd.)

One million dollars will be spent on mineral prospecting and development in the Far North this year by five Eastern groups, marking the greatest period of activity in the history of that part of the country, declared Colonel J. K. Cornwall, director and field chief for the Dominion Explorers, Limited, interviewed by The Edmonton Journal recently.

A short time ago Colonel Cornwall left for Waterways to arrange for accommodation for a flying base. Hangars will be built by Dominion Explorers, Limited, and other arrangements made, as it is expected that many of the concerns operating aeroplanes in the Far North this year will use the end of the steel at Waterways for their base.

Areas which will see the greatest amount of mineral activity will be around Great Lake and Great Bear Lakes, Coppermine River, Foothills region and in the area near Bathurst Inlet on the Arctic coast.

The companies will include Consolidated Mining & Smelting, Dominion Explorers, Atlas Exploration Company, the N.A.M.E. and others. From ten to twelve aeroplanes will be in operation over the northern mining fields during the coming season, says Colonel Cornwall. Arrangements have also been made for some of the leading geologists of the United States and Canada to fly over the northern zones and check the work of field men, some of whom are now there.

THE WORDS REBUILT—GUARANTEED—CERTIFIED and RECONDITIONED have been used very recklessly in the automobile field without resard to their real meaning. We have some cars which have been rebuilt, some which we sell "as is," and our salesmen are instructed to have all verbal agreements written in the sales order.

BURGLARS GET BIG CASH HAUL

TAKE NEARLY $1,000 AS PROCEEDS OF SAFE ROBBERY

Powers & Doyle, of Nanaimo, Are Victims of Robbery—Chisel Affords Only Clue

NANAIMO, April 22.—Burglars entered the premises of Powers & Doyle, men's clothing store, on Commercial Street, some time during the week-end and rifled the safe of its cash contents, totaling about $900. The burglars gained entry by the rear of the building, either by boat or walking under the building when the tide was out, and gained entrance by the back door.

The dial of the safe was chiseled off, the culprit or culprits being content to walk away with the cash, leaving cheques and other paper money behind. The only clue which the perpetrators left was a chisel, probably used in breaking off the combination. This chisel in now in the hands of the police, who up to the present have no clue as to the identity of the culprits.

Club Begins Season

METCHOSIN, April 22. — The Metchosin Tennis Club began its season on Easter Monday. There was a good attendance of members and guests, the two courts being in constant play, notwithstanding the occasional showers early in the afternoon. Tea was served by Miss Stretton, assisted by the ladies of the club.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST. MARY'S, MAYNE

Church Possesses Natural Font Found in Beach at Saturna Island

MAYNE ISLAND, April 22.—A beautiful service was conducted by Col. Fawkes, lay reader, at 11 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, Mayne Island on Easter Sunday. Fifty people attended the service from the nearby islands, and visitors from Victoria and Vancouver were there.

Mrs. Haulgate and Mrs. Rawlings decorated the church very nicely on Saturday, and Miss Robotham played the organ. Miss Robotham has been organist for a number of years in St. Mary's, and her services have been much appreciated by the members of the church. St. Mary's Church was built in 1896 by the late Canon Paddon, who later held services in the church here for twenty-five years. The church is built on a slope sixty feet above the sea and overlooks Active Pass.

Thousands of people passing up and down the coast have visited St. Mary's and have been very interested in the natural sandstone font.

Canon Paddon, realizing what a perfect font it would make, at once had it moved to St. Mary's and carefully placed in the church.

East Sooke News

EAST SOOKE, April 22.—An enjoyable dance was held in the Hall on Monday evening, with a fair attendance. Eric Walker's Orchestra won many commendations for the very spirited playing which kept nearly everyone dancing until 1 o'clock. About $10 will be cleared for the Solarium. Notice was given at the dance of a fancy dress dance to be held probably on May 30. Prizes will be given for the best and also the cheapest made costume.

There were good attendances at the services held by the Rev. R. Walker at Ragley; sixten being present on Good Friday and twenty-one on Easter Sunday.

* * *

It was with deep regret that the news of Mrs. Donaldson's death was received on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Donaldson was an old-timer in East Sooke, and was much liked and respected by all who knew her. The suddenness of her passing was quite a shock to the district, and the greatest sympathy is felt for her son and daughter, Mr. "Alec" Donaldson and Mrs. Clay.

NANAIMO COUNCIL DEBATES JOBLESS

Work on South Forks Soon to Be Started Expected to Give Relief to Present Situation

NANAIMO, April 22.—With Mayor Hall presiding, a full roll of aldermen was present at this evening's meeting of the local council.

On behalf of the unemployed, John Hitchen wrote the council asking them when they intended to relieve the present situation or whether they were leaving the question in the hands of the Government or not. Alderman Barsby stated that the council was doing all within its power at the present time, but now that the engineer was appointed the work on the South Forks would soon be started and the situation would be much more relieved, and that Mr. Hitchen and his committee be notified to that effect. Alderman Dixon seconded the motion.

The public works superintendent reported expenditures on the streets last week of $224 and on waterworks $277.77. The report was received and filed.

Alderman Cavalsky moved that the present auditors be notified that their services will no longer be required after sixty days, as the city now have a local accountant. Alderman Brake seconded the motion.

Mayor Hall stated that the Provincial Government was building a new detention home in Vancouver and thought it would be a good idea to write the Government to see if it would be feasible to burn pulverized coal in the place of oil burners; also to write the David Spencer Company, Limited, on the same subject for the burning of pulverized coal in their two new greenhouses at Langley. The motion carried unanimously.

By-law No. 470, to fix the rate of taxation upon real estate in the city of Nanaimo and to provide for the payment of taxes for the year 1930, passed its third reading.

GIRL GUIDES TO HOLD CONCERT

LANGFORD, April 22. — The Langford Girl Guides will hold a concert and dance with a three-piece orchestra on Friday at Langford Lakeside commencing at 8 o'clock. The programme will consist of plays, fancy dances and music.

CHEMAINUS, April 22. — The Anglican Church of St. Michael's and All Angels' was most beautifully decorated for the Easter services, quantities of daffodils, blossom and wild lilies being used. Rev. William Barton conducted the services, Holy Communion at 8 a.m., Holy Communion and Matins at 9:30 a.m., and Evensong at 7 o'clock. All of these services were well attended.

Canadian Yacht Seized by Guard But Is Released

PORTLAND, Maine, April 22.—The schooner yacht Cachalot III, seized off Rockland after customs officers said several hundred bottles of liquor were found aboard, lay at anchor in the harbor here today free to leave port at any time.

At a hearing before Federal officials, attended by Mr. Herbert White, the Marblehead, Mass., owner of the craft, the case was dismissed after it was learned the vessel was of Canadian registry.

While officials concerned refused to give out information on the matter, it was learned the seizure was considered illegal because of the craft's registry, and that the yacht should have been accorded privileges of other foreign vessels in regard to liquor aboard under seal upon entry into a United States port.

NURSES' ANNUAL COMES TO END

FINAL SESSION ADDRESSED BY DR. CHISHOLM AND DR. R. ROBERTSON

Survey of Nursing Heartily Endorsed, Even if More Money Is Required

The annual meeting of the Graduate Nurses' Association of British Columbia concluded last evening with a session at the Nurses' Home of the Jubilee Hospital, during which addresses were given by Dr. A. R. Chisholm and Dr. Russell Robertson, a quantity of unfinished business was dealt with and a short vocal programme given by Mr. Thomas Kelway and Miss Rossiter, with Miss Taylor as accompanist. A majority of the Mainland delegates left by the night boat for Vancouver.

One of the important matters disposed of was the election of delegates to the biennial conference of the Canadian National Association, to be held at Regina, these being as follows: Miss Mary Campbell, of Vancouver, representing the public health nursing section; Miss O. Cotsworth, of Vancouver, private duty section, and Miss Curry, educational section. These delegates will vote on various questions with regard to the Canadian Nurses' Association, with special regard to the survey of nursing now in progress in British Columbia, and of which Dr. Weir is to speak tonight at the Jubilee Hospital Nurses' Home. The meeting passed a resolution to the effect that the association was of the opinion that to be of any value, the survey should be thorough, and that the British Columbia delegates to the biennial conference be instructed to vote in favor of further money being applied or raised for that purpose if, after hearing the report, they felt this advisable.

Dr. A. R. Chisholm spoke on "Recent Measures of Prevention," Representing the Provincial Department of Health, in the absence of Dr. H. E. Young, he referred to the health units to be formed throughout British Columbia along the lines of that already in operation in Saanich and that shortly to be opened in North Vancouver. He particularly touched on the question from the angle of the prevention of disease and the work that could be done in educating the public to this effect.

MATERNAL MORTALITY

"We are losing over 1,530 mothers every year, practically two-thirds of which number could be saved by proper prenatal care and treatment," Dr. Russell Robertson told the nurses in his address on "Ante Partum Care During Pregnancy." Coupled with his summary of the regrettable conditions in Canada in the matter of maternal mortality he showed the more hopeful phase of the question in the very gratifying results which were being experienced in the maternity clinics of Toronto and elsewhere. This showed what could be accomplished by prenatal care. He also enumerated some of the things which were implied in prenatal care proper dieting, exercise, fresh air, sunshine, rest and sleep, congenial surroundings. Maternal life was held in too light esteem in this country, apparently, or there would not be such a high mortality rate.

The meeting discussed the dual affiliation plan, also the matter of reduced number of meetings each year. By the constitution the annual meeting must be held on Easter Monday, but hereafter two instead of three meetings will be held during the year, at any time or place desired.

Before the annual meeting adjourned, Miss Breeze, of Vancouver, on behalf of the visiting delegates, thanked the Victoria association for their hospitality; also the alumnae and staff of St. Joseph's and Jubilee Hospitals for their hospitality, and the musicians who had entertained them at their several sessions.

TROUSER PROBLEM PRESSING

While the business interests of Britain are clamoring for a return to the penny post, officials of the postoffice department are trying to decide whether postmen's trousers should be creased front centre or at the side. The postmen want the knife-edge effect in front. They also are demanding a new style of hat.

JOINT SURVEY IS ADVOCATED

Mr. John Dean Urges Municipalities to Co-ordinate Water Resources for Mutual Benefit

$1,000 OFFER STILL STANDS

A joint survey of the areas of the city of Victoria and the municipality of Saanich by a specialist waterworks engineer for the purpose of co-ordinating their water resources for their joint benefit, was strongly urged by Mr. John Dean, in a letter to the City Council last night.

Mr. Dean, who is at present visiting in Cairo, Egypt, renewed his offer while in London to ascertain what the cost of such a survey would be, if the municipalities mentioned would send him blueprint copies of their distribution systems. Oak Bay agreed to do this, he wrote.

"My offer of $1,000 towards the cost of the survey still stands," Mr. Dean advised the council.

The writer stated that there was a good market for British Columbia apples in Egypt and Africa.

"I have met with British Columbia (mostly Okanagan) apples clear through from Capetown, South Africa, to Cairo, Egypt," he wrote.

Mr. Dean supplied the council with a number of photographs of Egypt, data concerning the quantities and values of apples, flour and timber imported into Egypt, box labels and paper sack, obtained from fruiterers in Cairo, and a copy of The Egyptian Gazette, containing an article on the condition of crops in Egypt.

SPRING LAGGING

MONTREAL, April 22.—Spring gave way to Winter for fifteen minutes today when snow fell over the city. The bright sun came out again after the fall, though the air remained cool.

TWO AVIATORS KILLED

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—Two men were killed today when their plane crashed on a wooded hillside across the Allegheny River from Oakmont. The victims were Harry S. Lyle and Richard E. Gibson, both of Pittsburgh.

TWO DEAD IN PLANE CRASH ON PRAIRIES

it would have been almost impossible for even a higher powered motor than the 350 horse power Wright Whirlwind of the Fairchild type to withstand the sudden zooming upwards with the heavy load the plane carried.

WILL HOLD INQUEST

An inquest into the death of the two victims will be held in the city police courtroom on Friday night at 7 o'clock.

Police officers met with considerable difficulty in extracting the bodies from the mass of wreckage. That of Flying Officer Carew suffered the greatest mutilation, as the plane motor was crushed far back into the fuselage of the machine.

The flyers had apparently been detailed for aerial topography work. Their machine was heavily loaded with necessary equipment.

The two flyers arrived from Winnipeg about 5 o'clock on Monday evening. They berthed their plane at the field overnight. Richards was a married man. Carew, however, was single, according to officials.

WILL HOLD INQUEST

An official Government inquiry is expected to take place in Regina tomorrow into the accident.

Following the crash of the Fairchild cabin monoplane, the bodies of the two airmen were removed from the twisted wreckage and, on being viewed by a jury selected on the ground by Coroner H. Mitchell, M.D., were taken to a funeral home, pending arrangements for their final disposition.

Howard C. Ingram, Inspector of Civil Aviation, was in touch with the Winnipeg depot and with the relatives of the deceased men. Officials from Winnipeg are expected to arrive here tomorrow morning to take part in the Government investigation.

The formal inquest will take place on Friday evening.

AIRPLANE TROLLEY PLANNED

Combining the features of the airplane and the overhead trolley, Joseph Archer, a French engineer, has perfected a new electric trolley capable of a speed of 150 miles an hour. The invention will be demonstrated in Paris shortly. The car is similar to that of the airplane. It travels on a monorail. Finlike wings projecting from the sides support much of the car's weight when in motion. It can be brought to stop within 300 feet by reversing the propeller.

MORE MONEY OR WHISKERS

If the postal employees of the Kovno district of Lithuania do not get higher wages mail is to be delivered by bewhiskered postmen. The anti-shave strike is on, and already faces of the strikers are disappearing from view. The men asked for increased wages several months ago, but receiving no reply from the Lithuanian Postal Ministry, and knowing that to strike is illegal, they stopped the use of razors. If this is not effective, they say, they will place a ban on soap.

Curtain Falls Upon Naval Parley With Signing of Treaty

official pen with the efficiency of an orchestra conductor wielding a baton, made a pleasant speech bestowing the official pen upon Premier MacDonald.

"MY DEAR CHAIRMAN"

He paid tribute to "my dear chairman," who had mothered the London parley through many sinister forecasts, expressed his sorrow that complete five power success had not been attained at London, but added:

"I am perfectly certain my Italian colleagues share my views when I say our two countries will do all they can in order to overcome the temporary difficulties which have met them in the past."

Mr. MacDonald replied with fervor and then entertained a motion for adjournment. And at last "the London naval treaty of 1930," as it is officially named, was a reality. Its definite pact of limitation and disarmament in naval power applicable to Great Britain, Japan and the United States, which is framed by a five-power agreement of lesser import, was ready for ratification by the Governments concerned.

FINAL SCENE

It was an hour of satisfaction and congratulations for all who participated in the long weeks of conference work, but it was essentially an hour of triumph for Mr. MacDonald. Deeply etched in the memory of all who viewed the closing scenes is the figure of the sturdy gray-haired Scot, who today attained new heights in his romantic career as he witnessed the fruition of another task accomplished for the cause of world peace.

The Prime Minister was deeply touched by the tributes to his masterful handling of the problems, which often threatened the life of the negotiations and at the end he seemed loath to take leave of the delegates.

No one could doubt his words, "my heart has been very deeply in this work," or fail to have sympathy with his optimistic words:

"I hope I will be here in 1935 to be a member of the British delegation which will carry on the work begun today."

FACES TO MATCH FASHIONS

Beauty doctors of London have discovered that their clients' faces do not "go" with the new fashions, and are giving lectures on the subject. One lecturer pointed out that only a Dresden china makeup was suitable for the new flowing feminine frocks, and advocated the pink and white Victorian face, as opposed to the mahogany one of recent seasons.

TENNIS BALL CALLS FIREMEN

While players were enjoying an exciting tennis game in a covered court at Essen, Germany, recently, play was suddenly stopped when firemen appeared and asked where was the fire. A ball hit by one of the players had, unnoticed, struck and broken the glass of a fire alarm box, which turned in the alarm.

HAVE YOU ELASTIC INNER TUBES?

The little tubes which carry the blood from the heart to the tissues are called arteries. These have an elastic lining which expands and contracts in waves originating with the contraction of the heart. This is the pulse you can feel at various parts of the body. The arteries stretch and contract a good deal like rubber. When the patient grows older, the elastic in his arteries may lose its snap like an old garter, and then he has what is called hardening of the arteries.

It is an old saying and true, that a man is as old as his arteries, for the person with brittle arteries is truly aged, while the one with supple, flexible arteries is youthful. There is no reason for having the arteries harden early in life, since by reasonable living, their elasticity may be preserved throughout life. Remember that your arteries are a good deal like the inner tubes on your automobile. In fact, they might be called the inner tubes of your body, with the exception that the inner tubes on a car carry air and those in the human body carry blood. The best inner tube is made of springy, live rubber, and the best arteries are those which start out in life with plenty of flexibility.

We begin life with arteries which might almost be stamped, "Guaranteed for sixty years," but both inner tubes and arteries must be treated rightly if the best mileage is to be gotten from them. Inner tubes which are scorched while burning up the road with bursts of speed are apt to wear out, and arteries which are put under a great strain under the exciting press of modern life are bound for an early reconditioning or for the scrap pile.

The ancients really did think that the arteries were inner tubes made to carry air because they found that the arteries were full of air after death had taken place, and they deduced that this was their purpose in the body and gave them the name which signified that they were air carriers.

Hardening of the arteries itself may cause no discomfort. The principal trouble arises in that their hardening prevents the proper flow of blood so that the tissues which they supply suffer from a lack of this important food-fluid. Thus, the main symptons of arterial hardening arise from the diminished blood supply.

In the beginning, usually the smaller arteries are affected, becoming roughened, thickened and hardened on the inside, but as time goes on, the larger arteries may be affected, causing them to become narrower as the walls become thicker. This throws an extra burden on the heart to push the blood through them and it usually enlarges. High blood pressure is often present, too, as the blood must be under a high pressure to pass through the narrowed vessels.

The three vital organs which are most often affected by the hardening of the arteries, are the heart, kidneys and the brain. The brain may be softened, the heart enlarged and the kidneys present an overgrowth of connective tissue. When the brain is affected, the first symptons are those which are due primarily to a lack of blood, such as dizziness, reeling, inability to rise quickly, loss of power of memory. When the heart is affected, it becomes enlarged and there may be some pain through the heart or difficulty in breathing under the slightest exertion. The signs of derangement of the kidneys will be some phase of Bright's disease.

RIDICULE MORE FEARED BY MEN

Woman Peace Worker Thinks This Reason Her Sex Lead in Movement

TORONTO, April 21.—Are women less afraid than men of being thought silly?

Miss Kathleen Courtney, outstanding peace worker of Great Britain, gave it as her opinion possibly that is the reason why women have been among the leaders in the peace movement, beginning with The Hague conference, when they drew up resolutions promoting peace in the midst of the Great War.

She was speaking at a luncheon given in her honor by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and the League of Nations Society.

The similarity between the resolutions drawn up at the Women's International conference at The Hague, and President Wilson's fourteen points were noted by the speaker. She did not claim that the latter were copied in any way, but recalled that at a dinner where President Wilson was seated next to Jane Addams, head of the Women's International League, he showed a very soiled paper and asked her if he might have another copy of the resolutions, as his was very nearly worn out.

In thanking Miss Courtney, Miss Agnes Macphail, M.P., paid tribute to the efforts of British women, agreeing with the speaker that, although the Government reflected the opinion of the public, it was necessary that they first have an opinion.

Mrs. Saphead had just arrived back from a tour of Europe, and her long-suffering acquaintances had no opportunity to forget the fact.

"And Paris," she gushed. "Paris is just wonderful! The people are so well educated—not at all like they are in this crude country, my dear! Why, even the street cleaners talk French."

"Why, of course I got home safe; why shouldn't I?"

"Well, it's like this. While you were in this car late last night a lady got in and you offered her your seat."

"What of that? While I recognize the equality of the sexes, I nevertheless also recognize that the age of civility is still alive."

"Of course, sir, just as you say, but I thought it a little peculiar, as you and the lady were the only passengers in the tram at the time."

COLD STORAGE OPPORTUNITIES ARE STRESSED

GORDON HEAD GROWERS MEET

"Victoria is the first port of entry and the last port of call for ships trafficking to all parts of the world," stated Mr. H. G. Brown, manager of the Victoria Cold Storage & Terminal Warehouse, Limited, in addressing the members of the Gordon Head Fruitgrowers' Association at Gordon Head School last night. "With its favorable position geographically and with a climate that will permit the growing of two crops each year, no other part of the continent is placed so advantageously to produce wealth from the ground."

Mr. Brown told of what the farmers were doing in the United States with frozen fruits and vegetables and stated that the green grocery store of the future was going to be a refrigerating store. Great quantities of fruits and vegetables were continually coming to Victoria and kept in cold storage. There was something radically wrong when such conditions could prevail. California produce arriving was packed by specialists. You could take a tape measure, Mr. Brown pointed out, and put it on a California packed product, and find practically no variation in size. The uniformity of the product was a great marketing feature.

SUPERIOR FACILITIES

Victoria now had cold storage facilities superior to any on the Pacific Coast, and the producers of Vancouver Island should appreciate this and take advantage of the circumstance. Mr. Brown exhibited corn on the cob just as it was placed in storage at the Ogden Point plant last September. There was no apparent change in its condition after seven months of freezing. He told of what the growers of Keating were doing and hoped the Gordon Head district would decide to provide a quantity of beans from the most suitable seed obtainable. He stressed the value of cooperative growing and marketing under a common trade mark. He suggested that a committee be selected by the meeting to investigate the whole proposition and informed the gathering that the Department of Agriculture would assist in procuring seed, and that Premier Tolmie had stated that the Government would defray the expenses of a delegation from British Columbia to go to California and see what was being done there in processing fruits and vegetables for a twelve months' market.

SUITABLE BEAN SEED

Mr. W. W. Duncan, market commissioner, suggested that several varieties of bean seed should be tried in order to determine which would be the most profitable for the Gordon Head district.

Referring to possible markets, they existed right in Victoria and Vancouver, he said, and quoted figures to show the amount of vegetables imported into Victoria between April 1 and 21, and into Vancouver between April 12 and 18. Victoria in the time mentioned received, in crates, 519 asparagus, 292 cauliflower, 650 spinach, 1,282 lettuce, 164 cabbage, 175 celery, 293 carrots, ten parsley, 118 tomatoes, forty-two beets, thirty-one radishes, twenty mushrooms, eighty-five strawberries and 4,640 pounds of new potatoes. Vancouver received during the week dated, in crates, 160 strawberries, 1,260 tomatoes, 1,230 asparagus, 517 cauliflower, 918 lettuce, 400 celery, 1,440 spinach, 660 carrots, thirteen radishes, twenty-six parsley, forty green peas, twenty-six beets, 333 cabbage, 332 sacks of onions.

An item of 2,800 sacks of New Zealand onions was also received in Vancouver, while at the same time Okanagan growers had several carloads of onions available at New Westminster.

The frozen strawberries had been favorably received on the prairies, Mr. Duncan said, and with proper distribution and a steady supply, the market would continue to be a great one. In growing vegetables the right variety to produce quality was necessary. This growing for the market was not an individual game. It was necessary that a group of growers should co-operate together. The marketing branch would render every possible assistance. Mr. Duncan expected to see a revolution in marketing methods throughout the Northwest, owing to the activities of chain and department store merchandising. These great stores were ready to do business with organizations that could supply what the people wanted when they wanted it.

Questioned about what was meant by "shed packing" in connection with the marketing of strawberries, Mr. Duncan stated that the berries were not packed by pickers in the field, but were brought to a shed, where expert packers could be watched at the work. This was the method now practised with the British Sovereign, and which had proved so successful last season. It was also much easier to pack this way, the grower had less anxiety, and it assured a uniform pack.

Mr. R. G. L. Clarke, Dominion fruit inspector, of Vancouver, told of slipshod methods of packing. He said he was impressed by Mr. Brown's statements in connection with the freezing of fruit and vegetables. Cold storage processing had wonderful possibilities. He was greatly taken with the sample of corn exhibited. Mr. Clarke pointed out that this was the age of organization, and people had to adopt some system of working together for their common good. Haphazard methods would not get them anywhere. They should not be timid about branching out. They could protect their own interests only by putting their produce up in proper fashion. The better quality of the article, the better the returns, concluded Mr. Clarke. "The people of British Columbia have not yet begun to realize the importance of the market fight at their own doors."

Mr. Frank Higgins was of the opinion that farming would have to be industrialized the same as every other business if it was to succeed, and that he would give his services gratuitiously in any movement fostering organization.

Mr. MacIntyre, of Vancouver, prominent shipper of fruit and vegetables from the Coast to the prairies, suggested a central packing establishment if the efforts of the growers was to bring success. For himself, he would not take vegetables in future from independent growers. There was no guarantee that orders could be filled satisfactorily.

The chairman, Mr. W. F. Somers, appointed Messrs. Walker, Woods and Renouf as a committee to interview growers, and find out the quantity of seed they would agree to take. This committee secured a number of assurances from those attending, and today will meet Market Commissioner Duncan and endeavor to obtain a supply of suitable seed immediately.

Two Scots met at the club. Said Mac from Angus to Mac from Aberdeen: "I hear you've just come back from the grand wedding in Rome. How did you get on? Did you do as the Romans do?" "No, man," was the answer, "Ah did the Romans."

GORDON HEAD HEARS ABOUT LOGANBERRIES

A POSSIBLE MARKET IN GREAT BRITAIN

Present at the Gordon Head Fruitgrowers' Association meeting last night, Mr. N. H. Lamont, manager of the Growers' Wine Company, was asked to address the members on the prospects of marketing loganberries in 1930. Mr. Lamont stated that the prospects were bright for increasing business. They all knew about the plant extension being made at Lake Hill, where there would be a capacity for a million gallons of wine when the work was completed. At New Westminster, a new plant was to be erected to take care of another 400,000 gallons. This was necessitated by their withdrawal from Vancouver and concentration of Lower Mainland activities at one place. The Growers' Wine Company would be in the market for considerable quantities of loganberries this year. His company was concentrating at present on the four Western provinces, and when saturation had been reached there other markets would be sought.

Mr. Lamont expected that the local wine would be able to reach the British market in the near future, and the possibilities of selling in China and Japan were bright. A general invitation was extended to the Gordon Head growers to visit the wine plant and see for themselves just what was being done. The company was spending a lot of money there, and had it been realized how great an investment was necessary to effect the million-gallon storage capacity, a lot of hard thinking would have resulted before actual construction had been proceeded with.

BLIND ORCHESTRA TO PLAY FRIDAY

Concert to Be Staged at Empress Hotel by Sightless Musicians

In the Autumn of 1928 a number of musically inclined blind persons came together for the purpose of organizing an orchestra. This body, working under the heading of British Columbia Instrumental and Vocal Branch of the Blind, conducted an independent drive for funds with which to purchase instruments and to pay tuition for those who wished to study instruments. All the members of this orchestra are blind or partially blind, except the pianist and the leader, who have full sight. Two of the members, before the loss of sight, were performers in other orchestras, while the remainder have studied their instruments since blindness. At present there are thirteen members in the orchestra. Some of these, besides studying instrumental music, have remarkable vocal talent.

Although not yet one year a resident of Vancouver, from Montreal, Miss Esther Foley has become well known throughout the province by radio as a soprano of great ability. Mr. Gordon Rooke, baritone, has been for years a favorite on Vancouver platforms, while Ronald R. Matthews, sixteen-year-old boy wonder pianist, is renowned throughout British Columbia, Alberta and the State of Washington as an accompanying artist with Aunt Emma of the radio broadcast.

The main objective of this body of blind people is to foster musical talent among the sightless. Starting from a small nucleus, the orchestra has grown to its present size very rapidly under the guidance of the capable leader, Mr. A. Manzinoya. With the object in view of raising funds for further tuition and purchase of instruments the British Columbia Instrumental and Vocal Branch of the Blind will stage a concert in the Empress Hotel ballroom, April 25, sponsored by the Ladies' Musical Club and other prominent citizens of Victoria.

NEW PRESIDENT IS SELECTED TO FILL VACANCY

Liberal Candidate Speaks at Ward Seven Liberal Association Meeting at Hampton Hall

PRAISES RECORD OF ADMINISTRATION

Owing to the appointment of Mr. Francis Simpson as returning officer for the Nanaimo Federal riding, it has been necessary to choose a president of the Ward Seven Saanich Liberal Association. A meeting for that purpose was held at Hampton Hall last evening, at which Mr. H. Passmore was selected for the presidency.

Mr. C. H. O'Halloran, Liberal candidate for the Nanaimo riding, spoke on the financial record of the Mackenzie King administration. He urged that it showed revenue had increased, taxes were reduced, as was also the national debt.

He stressed the great importance to Canada of the various trade treaties which had been arranged by the administration, and also the importance of the development of foreign trade to the growth of the Dominion.

Mr. O'Halloran drew attention to the happy position of the Dominion of Canada in regard to the unemployment situation, which was better relatively than any other country in the world. He attributed that situation to the wise administration at Ottawa in a large measure.

Mr. David Ramsay, president of the Saanich Liberal Association, also spoke briefly.

Following votes of thanks, refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mesdames Pass, Handcock and Ramsey.

AMERICAN GOLFERS SAIL FOR ENGLAND

Sixteen Leading Women Players Will Cross Pond to Meet English Mashie Wielders

NEW YORK, April 22.—To take on ten of England's finest, sixteen of America's best women golfers sailed tonight on the Berengaria for England.

Glenna Collett

Miss Glenna Collett, four times American women's champion, is their captain, and this morning she suddenly discovered she had to get a new passport. Her old one will be no good after Thursday.

The idea of having some of America's best women golfers meet some of England's best is Miss Collett's own idea. But for her personally this trip has lost something.

For she said today she does not expect ever to have another chance to play Miss Joyce Wethered, the British women's champion, whom she regards as the greatest women golfer in the world.

Miss Wethered had announced she will play in no more tournaments.

Miss Wethered and Miss Collett met in two of the most thrilling matches ever played between women. Miss Collett lost both. One was in 1925 in Troon, Scotland, the other was played last year at St. Andrews. In 1925 the score was 4 and 3, and last year, 3 and 1, after Miss Collett led five up at the end of the first 18.

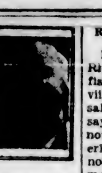

Although the British team has only ten members the Americans number sixteen. "They all wanted to go," their captain explained, "and every one of them is paying all her own expenses."

"My idea is for the best ten of our players to play the English ten in the five foursomes in the morning. Then, in the afternoon, six of our players will drop and the six who did not play in the morning will get their chance in the ten singles."

VACATION 40 YEARS OVERDUE

Hemel Hempstead, of London, has just enjoyed a week's vacation which he should have had nearly forty years ago. Hempstead entered the postal service when he was thirteen, and postal authorities learned only recently that he had had no vacation in his first year of service. Hempstead now is fifty-two.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

Alex Smith, the veteran golf pro, who died on Monday in Baltimore, was the game builder of three national champions. They were Jerry Travers, Marion Hollins and Glenna Collett, and the latter is now the women's golf champion of the United States.

Shortly after lunch on Monday at Knollwood I asked Miss Collett how her game was.

"Only fair," she said; "there are one or two faults in my iron play I will have to straighten out. I only wish I could get Alex Smith for about half an hour. He can always put me right in a few minute."

Five minutes later someone came up and announced that Alex had died that morning. So it was not under very happy auspices that Miss Collett sailed for Europe yesterday as captain of an unofficial American team, where the main idea happened to be the British championship for women.

STARTED TRAVERS

Alex's first noted golf pupil was Jerry Travers, four times amateur champion and once open champion of the United States.

Smith started with Jerry when the amateur star was around eleven or twelve years old. One of the great thrills of the colorful Scotsman's career came a few years later when Jerry was around fifteen and was drawn against Walter J. Travis at Nassau, in the first of their many famous meetings. Young Jerry beat the veteran champion that day with a rare exhibition of skill and coolness, and Alex was walking on air for a month.

He always said that Travers and Hagen had the greatest golf temperaments he had ever seen, but that Travers was even ahead of Hagen in this respect.

"I think Jerry had just a trifle on Hagen," Alex said, "because you could usually tell how Walter stood in a match, whether he was up or down, but you could never tell whether Jerry was winning or losing as you saw him come along the course. He might be 5 up or 3 down, but there was no emotional change in his face.

"Wherever he stood, the only thought in his head at that moment was the next shot to be played. His concentration and his determination were uncanny. Jerry was also the best golfer I ever saw at getting down in two from twenty or thirty yards off the green. If he failed to chip stone dead he would hole the putt."

NEXT TWO CHAMPIONS

Alex's next two champions were Marion Hollins and Glenna Collett. Both have always given him full credit for the development of their games. He lived to see his three pupils win ten national titles, which is fair enough for one golf teacher.

Alex himself used the old-fashioned, two-handed grip, and this is the grip he gave to Travers. It might be mentioned that four golfers using this same grip—Smith, Travers, John Ball and Walter Travis—won twenty-two championships in their day. Also that Jimmy Johnston, the present amateur champion of the United States, uses the same grip, which is neither interlocking nor overlapping.

Alex was the first teacher on this side to give his pupils the rocking motion from left to right on the back swing, starting with a lateral hip action. He was accused of teaching his pupils to sway, at one time regarded as a deadly fault. But in this way he taught them how to shift their weight from the left foot to the right as the back swing was made, one of the most important fundamentals in the game, a fundamental that so many break by retaining their weight on the left side through the back swing. He never advocated a sway, but he was not afraid of a slight sway that helped to carry the weight where it belonged. He made the use of hands and arms a big part of his instruction, figuring that few golfers gave enough attention to the matter of hitting the ball.

GOLF PSYCHOLOGY

The veteran Scot not only had a rare golfing temperament himself, but he also worked on this side of the game with his various pupils. He made a point of seeing that none of his young stars ever developed any conceit. Travers, as a kid, would report a 73, but Alex would tell him he was shot full of luck.

Some idea of his own golf psychology can be picked up from a remark he made during a championship. Alex had come to a fairly easy hole, a drive and a short pitch, a fairly simple 4 with a chance for a three. At this hole Alex took a 7. He came up to the next tee without showing any sign of being bothered or annoyed.

"How did you ever take a 7 on that hole?" some one asked.

"I'll tell you," Smith replied. "That was the best I could play that hole today."

Alex wasted no time in playing his shots. He was about as fast as George Duncan, stepping up and swinging before any tension could develop. This was especially true of his putting, where the blade would tap the ball about the second his feet were fixed and his balance established.

He never believed in fussing or fuming over a shot, thereby tieing the system in a number of knots, which is one of the quaint customs of the majority.

Smith was the most outspoken instructor of his day, being no respecter of rank. One afternoon he was teaching a certain copper king, one of the wealthiest capitalists in the country. This man weighed well over 200 pounds and was around six feet two inches in height. He had been a miner in his early career, but had fought his way into wealth and prominence. On this occasion the magnate would take a wild heave at the ball and hammer it about 140 yards.

Finally Alex turned on him. "Hit it, you big brute," he said. The startled magnate hit one about 250 yards, and after the lesson handed his rough talking teacher a $100 bill.

"You use language," he said, "that I can understand."

One of the greatest characters in golf and one of the most popular from coast to coast passed away in Alex Smith's death. He was a big part of the golfing history of the country and there is no one just like him to fill the gap he has left.

"They are knot holes."

"They are holes! Don't you think I know a hole when I see it?"

RHINE FISHING DYING OUT

Pollution of the waters of the Rhine is killing the once-prosperous fishing industry of many German villages. Even the celebrated Rhine salmon is disappearing, and experts say that within ten years there will not be a fish left in the river. Formerly, half a ton of fish would be a normal catch for a party of fishermen, but now only thirty or forty pounds are caught.

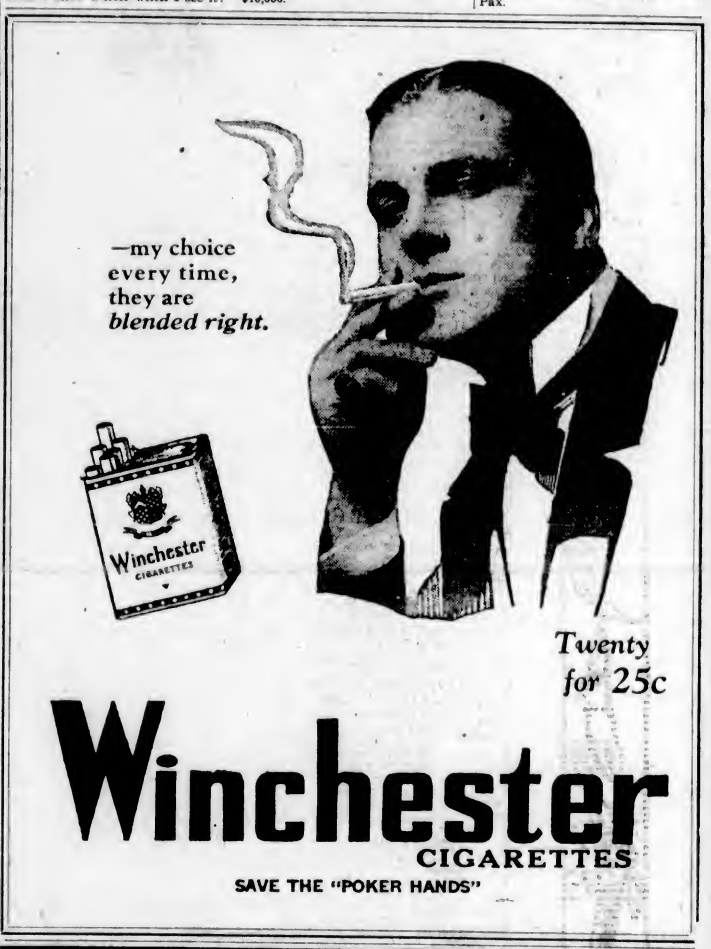

The Purves collection of Australian stamps, which was awarded the gold medal in 1928 at the International Philatelic Exhibition at Melbourne, was bought recently by King George of England, who is an ardent collector, the reported price being $10,000.

CLERKS WANT SHORTER WEEK

The Federated Clerks' Union of Australia has just proposed a thirty-five-hour week. The suggested salary rate to accompany the shorter hours is $42 a week for senior stenographers and ledger clerks, and $60 a week for customs clerks and wages clerks.

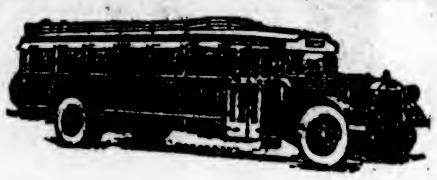

WOULD CALL NEW PLANET PAX

England has taken great interest in the newly discovered planet. The selection of a name was also discussed. One commentator said that the astronomers should hand the task over to the League of Nations, and if so it probably would be called Pax.

Russia Mobilizing Millions Preparing for Wheat Battle

Soviet Republic Will Probably Have 260,000,000 Acres Under Plough During 1930—New Machinery and Cheap Labor Available

(Special to The Colonist. Copyright, 1930.)

WINNIPEG, April 14.—That the world is preparing for a food war such as has never been paralleled, is the conviction of thousands of observers in Western Canada.

Principals in this warfare will be mighty Russia, on the one hand, and the bourgeoise wheat-exporting countries of Canada, United States, Argentina and Australia.

Canada and the United States, the lands which today export on an average 65 per cent of the world's wheat, it is thought, will provide the shock troops in an encounter which will be engineered from Moscow in a "peaceful infiltration" of capitalistic state organization by practical Communism, battening on the bargain-driving instincts of buyers.

But the war will not be North America's alone. Within a short time the warfare will extend itself. The wheat-importing countries will feel the first delusive benefits of cheap communistic production of farm and field and forest. But these coubntries will, in turn, strike unprecedented hard times when these customers cannot buy, and thus destroy the finely adjusted balance wheels of international trade. The whole thing, they say, will topple to the "demnition bow-wows."

WHAT IS HAPPENING

"Imagination, stark, utter madness—product of a distorted imagination," some say. But the facts are already against them. Russia is arming her docile millions for a warfare even more deadly than that of 1914-1918—a warfare which will appeal to the immediate cupidity of food-importing countries which apparently have little regard for the future. And here are some of the facts:

Russia, in the period ending 1913, was the world's greatest wheat exporter. Corruption in high places, Slavic indifference to progress and comfort, crude methods of agriculture which belonged more to the fifteenth century than the twentieth, could not hold back the sleepless industry of the millions of farmers of the Russian steppes. Their wheat lacking even rudimentary transportation facilities as North Americans understood them, still found its way to the markets of the world at a yearly average of about 120,000,000 bushels, and they themselves lived in a condition of serfdom almost inconceivable on this continent. Their farms were operated with machinery which harked back to the late middle ages, and their knowledge of agriculture was that of the crude experimenter rather than that of the scientist.

WORLD'S GRANARY

Yet despite these handicaps the Russian people achieved the incredible distinction of taking first place as a wheat exporting country. It was the reservoir of the prewar era, "the granary of the world." Its crops practically dictated the world value of wheat.

And Bolshevik Russia, recognizing these facts, is preparing to mobilize its countless millions of acres of farming lands, both in Europe and in Asia. It is increasing its acreage so that in 1928 there were 220,000,000 acres under the plough with 260,000,000 promised for 1930 compared with 215,000,000 in 1913 and with 162,000,00 in the United States and Canada in 1929. And this despite the fact that its richest provinces of prewar years, those of Russian Poland and the Rumanian Ukraine, have been taken away and given to other countries.

And Russian wheat production has risen from about 30 per cent of the pre-war levels during the post-war famine to 70 per cent, with the index finger of production mounting with almost fatalistic precision.

Even more significant than that is the establishment of great communal farms operated with the precision of a modern industrial plant. These farms are operated to the nth degree of efficiency, or are in the process of so being, by power machinery and conscript labor. They embraced 30,000,000 acres in 1929, and plans call for an increase to 75,000,000 in 1930.

Bolshevik Russia, faced with the mutiny of numerous farmers, who prefer death to economic or military conscription, has been, and still is, importing foreign farm power machinery experts.

Western Canada has already provided about 100 of these, and Russia is quietly seeking more of the type she wants—intelligent, trained, skillful and capable of teaching by precept and example. These men are also in many cases trained agriculturists who will succeed in the business of farming Russia, because they have scientific knowledge as well as the experience of their neighbors and fathers to guide them.

BUYING EXTENSIVELY

These two elements, power on the farm and farm experts to instruct their communistic farming units, would not be enough. Russia is poor. She needs the latest farm machinery invented by and used in other countries. She is buying tractors, seeders, ploughs, harrows, cultivators, self-binders, threshing machines and grain combines of the Western world. This plan is not developing as fast as she can hope, because she has not the necessary credit abroad. But she is inducing power machinery and farm implement manufacturers all over the world to sell to her, often virtually trading in kind with them.

And she is making progress. This year Russia has sold more wheat than in any other year since 1913. Next year, barring great wars and famines, she will have more. This year she was able to gloat over her ability to disturb the world values of wheat, more as a moral influence than a physical. But next year, given a freak bumper crop, such as Western Europe had this year, and she will wreck grain prices—that is if she considered that her "Der Tag" of economic anarchy has at long last dawned.

There is one remedy for this and only one. That is a fixed intention on the part of the Western world to keep wheat at a production-cost level and to build a barrier against Russian trade, until that country places her population in a position parallel with that of the rest of the world. Russia, driving her slaves to the wheat field, need disturb no one.

But a Russia with millions of antlike zealots, working for the economic emancipation of the world workers, is a spectacle which could as well disturb the sleep of kings on their thrones, Argentine serfs working for a pittance a day, and a hope of their own particular type of immortality, and North American farmers and their families on smiling homesteads.—Copyright, Star Newspaper Service.

REJECT QUOTAS

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Senate today rejected a proposal by Senator Guld, Republican, Maine, to place immigration quota restrictions on all countries of the western hemisphere, including Canada and Newfoundland. The vote was 38 to 29.

YOUTH IN AGE

(Reference has recently been made to Lord Oxford's saying that youth comes too early in life.)

Could I be young again
And by some freak recapture
The true, authentic youthful strain.
The "first fine careless rapture."
Should I, forsooth, be glad
Or should I take it badly.
Believing that indeed I had
Mismanaged matters sadly

Should I delight to show
Conceit in all its pureness.
Such "knowledge" of the world, and O!
Such absolute cocksureness?
Such courage of the kind
That all its fences rushes,
Or would the rawness of my mind
Suffuse my soul with blushes?

O Youth, but you were sweet,
And sweet the prize I played for.
But now I move on slower feet
For wisdom must be paid for.
No longer at a glance
I see my pathway clearly,
And did I change 'twould seem, perchance,
Like second childhood merely.

NEW INFLUENCES IN LITERATURE

Renovation of European Mentality Seen in French Books of Today

Foreign influences permeating through present-day French literature, a renovation of what is known as "European mentality," and the many and interesting ramifications they offer to students of letters, formed the subject of an interesting lecture given at Montreal by Professor Andre Marize, of Harvard University.

An analysis of the works of the French writers of the present generation reveals two distinct influences or literary currents—a crave for travels abroad in search of a new inspiration, which may be qualified as distinct cosmopolitanism, and an inclination to do away with geographical as well as literary frontiers indicating a real taste for everything that is European, making no secret about their European mentality.

INFLUENCES RENEWED

During the course of his lecture, Professor Morize made a careful and critical review of these two different influences. One cannot open a book written lately without noticing a pronounced taste for everything that is not French, he said. The last war may be partly held responsible for this radical change, and as people of different origin were associated for the defence of some common ideals, they want to know more about one another. Some critics are of the opinion that the rapid progress in many fields of human endeavor — rapid railway, ocean and air transportation—have abolished distances, and that writers only draw from a common source of human knowledge.

The French soul seemed to be restless and unable to resist the desire to "wander away from itself." This appeared to be a fair opinion of the new literary inclinations of the young generation of writers. "They are really 'intellectual tourists' whose object is to travel, see, observe intensely," said Professor Morize.

During the period of the French classics, writers of the class of Corneille, Racine, Moliere and all the highlights of that brilliant period were satisfied to picture humanity following the purest national inspiration. It was during the following periods that writers went to England, Germany and Russia in an attempt to bring about a renovation of the literature of the eighteenth century.

One might also trace the exotic influences to the presence of some writers of foreign origin, serving as liaison officers between their country of origin and France, a disposition for comparative study of literary works and a great demand for the translation of the most successful literary productions of the time.

MATERIALISM FASCINATES

Many of the young writers have been fascinated by the remarkable although materialistic civilization of the United States; others could not resist the temptation to visit Russia, find out all about the Soviet experiment and tell the world, and another group takes the roads leading to the mysterious Orient—Japan China and India—asking if this old civilization is the cure for the ills of the times.

These forms of intellectual inquisitiveness are traced in all kinds of literature, the novels and the theatre and exercise an influence on the language itself.

SOUND AUCTION and CONTRACT

The Folly of a Pre-Emptive Minor Bid When Holding Good Support for a Possible Major Bid by Partner

Contract Bidding

	1st Rd.	2nd Rd.	3rd Rd.
South	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
West	Pass	Pass	Pass
North	1 ♣	4 ♠
East	1 ♥	Pass

The above deal is still another example of how a pre-emptive bid of a Minor can block the partnership from arriving at their best bid for game. In the actual bidding of this deal in the Duplicate Contract Game in which it occurred, the North player at two tables, following a pass by South and East, opened the bidding with a pre-emptive bid of three Clubs, and at one table with a pre-emptive bid of four Clubs.

It seems almost impossible to educate players to the point where they will not make such bids, as they operate more as a shut out against partner than against opponents.

At two tables at which North opened the bidding with three Clubs, the East player over-called with three Hearts, which, South and West passing, North over-called with four Clubs. At the table at which four Clubs were bid originally, East, South and West passed. Thus, at three tables the hand was played at four Clubs, scoring 60 for trick points and 100 for honors. As against correct defence, four odd is the maximum that can be made on the hand at Clubs.

It is a natural tendency with players ignorant of the objective of sound bidding, to wit: Game and nothing short of game or the equivalent penalties, to desire to play a hand in which there is a long suit, and particularly when such suit contains a high honor count.

You can lecture to and argue with a certain number of players until they will not bid three in a Minor suit originally as Dealer and Second Hand when their partner is yet to bid. But the moment they have any excuse for a pre-emptive bid with a seven card Minor containing four honors, such a one in which partner has passed, that such bid becomes expedient to shut out, if possible, adverse bidding.

I have pointed out many times that a pre-emptive three bid in a Minor is not a shut-out against adversaries if holding anything worth while, but is a shut-out against partner who may hold a worth while subsequent bid, either that of a suit or No Trump, at which declaration there can well exist a greater probability for game than with the long Minor as trump.

With North's specific holding, a pre-emptive Club bid is especially unintelligent, as the chief object of a Minor bid is obviously to uncover, if possible, a secondary Spade bid by South, for which the North hand holds unique support. Whether or not South may hold such secondary bid has no bearing whatsoever upon the principle that North should feel out this possibility before insisting upon playing the hand at Clubs. The fact that at three tables North did not do so cost North and South a game hand.

SALIENT POINTS OF THE BIDDING

Auction: South and West passing, North opens the bidding with one Club. East over-calls with one Heart and South with one Spade.

It may be noted that South's bid of one Spade is predicated more upon the fact that his partner has opened the bidding Third Hand than upon his own values, as with but two cards of suit bid by partner, he should deny such suit even at some slight risk.

West passing, North bids two Spades and East three Hearts South and West passing, North bids three spades, concluding the bidding.

Contract: The bidding in Contract starts the same as in Auction, but is cut short in Contract by North jumping South's one Spade take-out to four Spades.

THE PLAY

West opens the Five of Hearts, the top of three cards of partner's suit. The Dummy going down with a singleton Heart, East wins with the King of Hearts and shifts to his Two of Diamonds in order to establish, if possible, a Diamond trick before West's stopper in Spades is taken out. East marks West with a stopper in Spades, either the Ace or King, from the fact that had South held both of these cards he would have had an original Spade bid. South (Declarer) wins the Diamond trick in Dummy with the Ace and leads the Jack of Spades, which West wins with the Ace and leads a Diamond. Whether West or East wins this trick makes no difference as South must win the next trick and from this point on can easily make the remaining tricks, making four odd on the hand.

ARCTIC IS FREE FROM MOTH BANE

By WILFRID EGGLESTON

(Special to The Colonist. Copyright, 1930.)

OTTAWA, April 20. — Clothes moths are unknown in the Arctic. Let a pair of white woolen mitts, hanging in the office of O. S. Finnie, at Ottawa, testify. Mr. Finnie is the director of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch, Department of the Interior.

They were knitted—these mittens—in England, eighty or ninety years ago. A bundle of them was purchased by the outfitters of Captain Sir Leopold McClintock, commander of one of the ships that went North in search of Sir John Franklin.

They were fastened up in a cask and cached on Dealy Island in 1852, exactly seventy-eight years ago.

Last Spring Inspector Joy came upon the mittens and he used them. They are back in civilization and look like new.

In Edinburgh, Scotland, in the last twelve months, fourteen people were killed in street car accidents; eleven on railways and sixty-eight buses.

Charge Archduke With Larceny on Sale of Jewels

NEW YORK, April 22.—Archduke Leopold of Austria was indicted today on a charge of first degree grand larceny by a grand jury, which investigated the sale here for $60,000 of the $400,000 Napoleon Bonaparte necklace which belonged to his aunt, the Archduchess Marie Theresa of Austria.
